The Come-Back Comedian

Fine Combination of Music and Comedy Enjoyed by Packed House—Old Timers Come Back

The Elks' minstrel show at Keith's theatre last evening proved to be one of the most successful events ever conducted by the lodge. It was the original intention of the lodge to run a charity ball, but being unable to get a date before Lent it was decided to hold a minstrel show instead. The minstrel show was a happy thought for it netted the charity fund much more money than a charity ball would have produced, while it furnished a grand good time for the largest audience that ever attended the popular vaudeville-house.

Many skeptical Elks said to their friends before the show, "There'll be a lot of fun anyway; you know they're only amateurs," really expecting that the show would be "punch" and they were mightily surprised to find a really clever amateur performance with some features that equal the best in the professional line.

To Warren Churchill, the patient and untiring musical director, should be handed the laurel for presenting so smooth a performance out of such rough-hewn material. Every member who took part was an Elks, most of them busy business men, who'd promise to attend a rehearsal and then attend it, perhaps. Some of them could sing like so many Carusos when nobody was around but tongue-tied when a rehearsal was held. A little Arthur Cull, the baby of Lowell lodge, remarked when at rehearsal, Sunday, he discovered that he was singing his head off while—Frank—Maloney, and Billy Mahan were "cheating." "What is this, a one-man chorus?" he asked, laughing and threatening. The gentle giant who sang into shape and last night they gave a very creditable performance to the delight of a crowded house. It might be said, right here, that as good luck would have it, the professional bill was one of the best seen at Keith's this season so that there were three Elks and a half of uninterrupted fun.

When the curtain went up the audience applauded the witty scene presented. There was the big semi-circle of white faced, dress-suited, singers, with Herb Webster, Sr., who needs no introduction as an amateur actor and comedian in the center, and a merry black-faced end-man fearfully and wonderfully attired. Prof. Joe Fredette presided over the orchestra, while Musical Director Churchill sat beside him armed with a huge baton which he swung with the grace and emphasis of a Creole. The gentlemen who sang into shape were Eugene V. Brown, Harry Pitts and John Hamilton while on the tambos were Capt. Walter Jones, Joe Haggerty and the Prince of "come-back" men, James H. Walker. The opening chorus included "Tipperary" and a sprinkling of the songs hits of the day. After a little chapter by the end men, John Hamilton made a hit in his character song, "Old Black Joe," made up as a venerable darkey of the "befo' the war" type. Mr. Hamilton was in good voice and gave fine expression to the ever-popular old-time song.

A Classy Solo
Then followed Andrew A. McCarthy, with one of the big hits of the evening, "Beautiful Night," a barcarolle from "The Tales of Hoffman." The song was an unusual offering for a minstrel show but the Elks have unusual talent and Mr. McCarthy's faultless rendition of the musical classic charmed even the most exacting critics in the audience and he was compelled to repeat it. Next came James E. Donnelly with the solo, "The Garden of the Gods," which he gave in a faultless manner. Jimmie sang under difficulties but a little thing like a refractory trouser-leg failed to disconcert him.

Joe Haggerty, the buxom and naturally funny end man sang "Oh, My Love" in a manner that brought down the house, and he was forced to come back several times.

One of the big solo hits of the evening was "My Sunshine," by Ernest J. Dupont. The latter is a recent acquisition to the lodge, and on the night of his initiation was called upon for a song. He responded with a solo that convinced the members present that another good singer had joined the ranks, and he was immediately booked.

AIRMAN SURPRISE TURKS

Passengers on Cunard Line Steamer Arduna Say Vessel Flew U. S. Flag for Nearly 24 Hours

MITLENE, Feb. 10.—Several English and French Zeppelins flew over Turkish Thrace yesterday, according to a despatch from Tenedos. Two of the machines went as far as Adrianople, dropping bombs on the forts. The Turks are said to have been unprepared for a bombardment as they did not expect allied aircraft to venture so far inland.

ANOTHER ENGLISH SHIP FLIES STARS AND STRIPES
NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Passengers on the Cunard line steamer Orduna which arrived here today from England said that the steamer flew the American flag for nearly 24 hours on Jan. 31, while passing through the Irish sea. The Stars and Stripes, they declared, were hoisted on Sunday about an hour after the Orduna left Liverpool and floated over the English steamer until early Monday morning.

for the show, and he made good with a large crowd. Mr. Dupont had a fine and well cultivated baritone voice and he sang with ease and good expression.

Capt. Jones was right up to minute with his end song, "Has Anyone Here Kissed Toddlers?" which was sung in Lowell probably for the first time. The captain showed his ability to sing the song right and the audience showed its appreciation by booking him repeat it several times. Then came "Gene" Brown, who is a real end man. "Gene" can do a black faced stunt with any professional and his rendition of "The Hill Cost of Living" was all to the merrily.

Mutt and Jeff
Toward the close of the first part an original feature was introduced by Michael J. Markham, who tips the beam at 300 pounds, and "Little Johnnie" Rourke, the popular assistant steward of the lodge, who is "hog-fat" at 112 pounds. As the biggest and the lightest members of the lodge done up in black face with wonderful paint and tall hats, their appearance alone was a scream. They came upon the stage, Rourke wheeling Markham in a toy wagon equipped with a tremendous auto horn. Mr. Markham was suffering with a severe cold and in the early afternoon found himself without any voice and for a time it was thought he would be unable to appear. But after an hour with Dr. Frank Brady, a sufficient amount of vocal power was brought back to enable him to go upon the stage which he did to the delight of the multitude.

Mr. Markham did a few Dockader stunts which abounded in local hits, and included a topical song, "Marching Through Lowell," but only those in the front seats got the full benefit of his fun on account of the condition of his voice. But the crowd didn't mind, the appearance of the pair was funny enough, and they were called back several times. At the conclusion of their act Mr. Rourke was presented with a beautiful bouquet, while Michael received an exquisitely trimmed and beribboned cabbage, his favorite flower. The finale consisted of "Auld Lang Syne" and "The Stars and Stripes Forever," each member waving his Elks' flag.

Fred H. Rourke's Graceful Act
The first number in the olio was a club swinging act by Fred H. Rourke, and prior to his appearance the interloper supplied the members of the orchestra with accident policies, lest the clubs set away from Fred. Thirty years ago Fred Rourke was considered one of the best club swingers in the country and was on the professional stage. By careful rehearsal Fred lumbered up his arms and did a very pretty act which included all of the most intricate movements of club swinging. Attired in white, his all-vase looks shining in the limelight, Mr. Rourke presented a most pleasing appearance before the freights, and the grace with which he manipulated the club brought down the house.

Jim Donnelly's Biz Hit
In all his long and successful career it was the verdict of the audience that James E. Donnelly never appeared to better advantage than he did last evening in his imitations of Harry Lauder. It was a case where the imitation outshone the original, for bawling the howlers he had it all over Lauder in every respect, while Lauder as a singer can't compare with him. Jimmie came out in full Highland costume and opened up with the remark: "There's an awfu' draught here, I dinna ken where it comes from; but I know where it's going." He gave several of Lauder's songs and the audience could have listened to him all night. Toward the close of his act four of the girls appearing in the professional acts came on the stage with nosegays for him and went through the concluding part of his songs with him, a feature not down on the bill which was delightfully received by the audience.

A Jolly Wind-Up
The wind-up was an act presented by James H. Walker, Joe Haggerty and Chris J. Hagan, and it was a corker. It opened with a banjo solo by Jim Walker, the first time that Mr. Walker has touched the instrument in 27 years. Mr. Hagan accompanying him on the piano. You'll hear more about Jim and his banjo in Friday's Quarter of a Century column. Then along came Haggerty and after an exchange of soft talk Joe proceeded to whistle "The Forgotten Melody," an exquisite old English composition now out of print, but resurrected by Mr. Hagan, who is an expert musician. Finally Jim and Joe brought down the house by a buck and wing dance followed by a screamingly funny Turkey Trot. The dancing would have done credit to a couple of professionals. When one considers that Jim Walker retired from the stage 25 years ago, he certainly proved beyond a peradventure that they do come back.

Then followed the regular bill, the professionals entering into the spirit of the occasion and presenting their acts with enthusiasm and dash. At 11 o'clock the illuminated clock appeared, lowered from the flies and Past Exalt Ruler William D. Regan arising from a seat in the audience gave the beautiful Elks' 11 o'clock toast. The performance came to an end about 11:30 o'clock and will long be recalled with delight by all who witnessed it.

Large Attendance Enjoyed Fine Program at Associate Hall—Farmers' Ball a Feature

The folks out yonder in Pawtucketville came to town last evening, and "look in" the annual reunion of St. Columba's parish at Associate hall and at the conclusion of the evening's program voted the affair the most amusing and successful ever held by the members of that progressive parish. The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion, vari-colored bunting and greenery, artistically arranged, adding to the delightful scene.

The main feature of the well diversified program was a farmers' ball and grand march and it proved one of the best "rube" affairs ever conducted in this city. The other attractions included a vaudeville program of rare excellence, dancing and visits to the "country stores" located around the hall, where the women who were doing the chores reported that considerable profit was realized and that many satisfied "customers" were waited upon.

While the farmers were getting in line at the patch hall and during the parade through the downtown district there was a procession of people to the hall and long before the announced starting time the attendance was so large that standing room was at a premium.

The evening festivities opened with selections by Miner's orchestra, after which Miss Frances Tighe entertained with a solo violin selections were artistically given by Mr. Frank Dedrick, readings by James Coughlin, Miss Mary Whiteley, solo and dance, Miss Anna McCaslin, song, Andrea A. McCarthy and vaudeville sketches by several performers from Keith's theatre.

"They, there," shouted Foreman Cronin. "The farmers are ready." With this ejaculation it was announced that the parade had started and that the next number would be the grand march. This was met with tumultuous applause and when the rube band, headed by "John Philip Sousa" Dillon appeared at the main entrance the applause was deafening. The band was followed by about one hundred couples, doled out in truly rural costumes. They marched around the hall, the judges looking over every rube and his'gal. The march was executed in a clever manner, being capably directed by Charles L. Crowley and Albert Olson of the Manhattan club.

While the march was in progress Messrs. Owen Monahan, James J. Gallagher and Michael Lynch, who acted as judges were stationed on the stage and at the conclusion of the parade announced that the winners were as follows: Women, first, Mrs. William McMahon; second, Miss Mary O'Hearn; third, Miss Anna Dunfee. Men, first, Joseph Cunningham; second, Cornelius Cronin; third, Patrick Harrington.

The selections of the judges were well received by the assemblage and after the participants had entertained with a variety of the rube rubes, the dancing was in order. During the dancing several of the Manhattan cabaret singers, under the direction of Albert Olson sang all the accompaniments. This feature proved very enjoyable and the efforts of the contributors were recognized by an appreciative gathering.

The management of such a large affair entailed considerable work and while all committees and officers did their share to make the reunion the great success it was, much credit must be given Charles L. Crowley and Albert Olson of the Manhattan club for assisting the committees in the plans and the execution of the plans for the big feature of the evening. Mr. Crowley, especially gave considerable of his time and energy to the rehearsals and the successful manner in which the march was given reflects credit on his ability. DAY OFF IN FIVE

Lowell Firemen Represented by Counsel at State House Hearing

A bill granting members of the fire departments of all cities one day off in five was given a hearing before the committee on cities at the state house yesterday. J. Joseph O'Connor appeared for the Lowell firemen and city solicitor Joseph Hennessy opposed the bill on the ground that the matter had been twice turned down by the voters of Lowell.

Lowell and Taunton were the only two cities in the state to reject the bill. The city solicitor, in his protest, stated that the measure would mean a big expense to Lowell and the people of Lowell, he said, had shown their opposition to it very emphatically.

Mr. O'Connor declared that in spite of indications to the contrary, the people of Lowell are anxious to give the firemen one day off in five. "The firemen," he said, "have never been able to get a fair hearing because every time this bill comes up, the press of Lowell fronts a bad atmosphere around it and the matter is not fairly presented to the voters."

The bill would not take the money from the city treasury, but would take the instruments to put their case before the people. Other cities have seen the justice of the proposition and believe Lowell should be forced to recognize the need of the firemen.

Asked if he would be willing to have the matter referred to the city government, Mr. O'Connor said that such a procedure would not be at all satisfactory. The members of the city council, he said, would probably adopt the "safety first" policy and refuse to endorse a proposition that the voters have declared against. He said that the expense to the voters, in connection with the acceptance of the bill, would be very trivial and would not affect the tax rate in the least. Mr. O'Connor allowed that the firemen would give much better service if they had proper days of rest.

"An attempt to pass this bill," said the city solicitor, "is an indictment against the intelligence of the city of Lowell. In 1912 our fire department cost us $134,000 and in 1915 the budget calls for an expenditure of $202,000 with an extra $16,000 for new equipment. The tax rate of Lowell jumped $2.50 last year. This bill, if passed, would cost the city of Lowell at least $5000 annually."

The committee took the matter under advisement.

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

HOW TO MAKE COFFEE

"I wish I could make good coffee," complained Marjorie to Marie one morning.

"It is a difficult problem," agreed Marie, "but I'm sure you can master the art, if you will take my advice. Madame will allow me one but me to make her coffee so I think I should be able to qualify as an expert."

"Many persons do not know that coffee is only 'good' in more ways than one when fresh made. Then its aroma is rich and fragrant, for there has been no time for any poisonous properties to steep out and it invigorates and stimulates, and is a whole some beverage. After it has stood an hour or less the grounds impart to it a flat, heavy, dead taste, it is then positively injurious."

"The percolators have solved the question of good coffee at all hours because with these the coffee is made and the used grounds can be thrown out; they do not stand in the liquor. If you have a percolator, put the coffee into a bag and after making lift this out and then there will be no stale taste to the coffee if you must repeat it for a hair-comer."

"If you use the percolator or a bag you can have your coffee pulverized instead of merely ground. This is a great saving, a pound of pulverized coffee will go almost twice as far as the coarser coffee."

"No egg is needed to settle coffee made so, for it cannot be muddy. The proper proportion for the average cup of good coffee is to allow one level tablespoon of coffee to each cup and one extra spoonful for the pot. Pour boiling water, boil gently five minutes, set back where it will keep hot five minutes, settle it with a dash of cold water and serve at once."

THE RABBIT'S FOOT

WOMEN WHO DYE

Many a woman dyes her hair because she believes it will make her more beautiful. And everyone has noticed it because her complexion does not tone in to the line of the hair about her face, and her eyebrows seem meant for someone else.

If your hair is light naturally and if it is dark you want it to stay that way and not become streaked after the shampoo. There are certain harmless ingredients which may be added to the shampoo water, and these will help you to retain all the natural beauty that your hair possesses.

Brunettes may help the color of their hair by using an egg or a little soda beaten into California claret. This red wine takes its color from the skin of the black grapes of which it is made and that contains tannin, which is good for the scalp and hair roots. The yolks of eggs or subcarbonate of potash or soda are excellent for very dark hair.

How fortunate you are if your hair is light, for the sun is always ready to shed its beneficial rays on your head and aid in the lightening process. The commonly accepted household bleaches ammonia, borax and soda—will lighten and burn the hair a little for a day or two after the shampoo but they must be used with great care for they have a very drying effect on the scalp. And, after they have procured a pretty coiffure for a few days, the hair may seem more lifeless and dead than ever before.

A harmless mixture for lightening the hair is one made of equal parts of honey and rhubarb stalks, which are steeped in three parts of white wine. Let this mixture stand 24 hours, strain it, and use as a lotion when the hair is wet. Massage it into the scalp and let it dry on the hair.

The faithful youth in the church will always have a vision. After many years of observation, I have come to the conclusion that the church always does more for us than we do for it. If you begin in your youth to serve God in your church, and let its services and opportunities for helping others lead you out, you will be more blessed than looking at it as a surprising, even an astonishing, fact that God does for his faithful children.

I think tonight of that little Swedish girl getting $6 a week and attending all the services of the church and taking part in the young people's meetings. Today she draws $500 salary. I know her development has been in the church. She discovered herself there. I can think of the obscure German boy, who began coming to the Endeavor society, and trying to take part, much to his confusion, and the amusement of the young people. He had no education. But by his study of the bible he gradually became a most accomplished speaker, and today is the president of a great Endeavor union with hundreds of thousands on its rolls. He has been prospered in business, too. I can think of the young girl working for small wages, and largely supporting her family. She attended church from early childhood till the last after-meeting at night. She made no excuses about being over-wearied on Sunday, although I know of no one with a better right. With no opportunity for his education, she began night study of music and now is organist in one of the leading Baptist churches of Chicago.

The following named are the officers of the Lowell Christian Endeavor union for 1915:

President, O. E. McGregory; vice president, Rev. E. A. Trites; Rev. A. Heford; Miss Mildred M. Collins; secretary, Miss Sara M. Dean; treasurer, Leander P. Conly, Jr.; auditor, James A. Grant; counselor, Rev. H. A. Barker; junior superintendent, Miss Ruth G. Lowell.

Committee for the year: Bible study and quiet hour, Miss Grace L. Collins; introduction, Mrs. H. E. Hayward; lookout, Burnett J. Sweet; missionary, Miss Ella M. Penn; prayer meeting, Miss Josephine Downs; social, Miss Lillian Chase; temperance, Walter A. Chase.

A WINTER TONIC

Why is it that some people keep well all winter while others, less exposed to cold and damp, suffer with colds, grip, pleurisy, pneumonia and all the ills of the season?

This blood and debility are the causes of much sickness in winter. When the blood is thin and there is oxygen starvation in the tissues of the body, poisons are retained that should be eliminated and there is a lowered resistance to disease.

Rheumatism disappears when the blood is built up and does not return if the blood is kept rich.

The after-effects of grip are never cured until the blood is built up.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood and enable it to carry more oxygen, to nourish the starved tissues in debility, to soothe the inflamed membranes in rheumatism, to quiet the nerves in neuralgia and sciatica and to expel the lingering germs after the fever and influenza of grip have passed. All winter Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be in every house, ready for use. You can get them now at the nearest drug store.

The third edition of the popular little book, "Building Up the Blood," has just been published. Write today to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for a free copy.

"It is the duty of those residing in the neighborhood to call on the newcomer after she has had sufficient time to get settled," answered her friend.

"Should a girl write a note of thanks to her escort for flowers which he sent her to wear to a party or will verbal thanks be sufficient?" inquired Lucy.

"Thank your escort verbally for the flowers which will be quite sufficient," was her aunt's reply.

"I want to invite my sister and her fiance to lunch some evening. Shall I ask them both or should she ask him?" was Maude's problem.

"Sitting you are to be the hostess you should ask both the young man and your sister to lunch," advised her sister.

"After one has called on neighbors and the call is not returned, should one call again?" queried Janet.

"Unless you have some reason to believe that your neighbor does not stand on ceremony, but call again when you have the time and inclination," answered her friend.

AN ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

AUDIENCE AT FIRST TRINITARIAN CHURCH TOLD ABOUT BUTTE, MONT., AND ITS RESOURCES

An interesting lecture was given at the First Trinitarian church last evening by Rev. Lawrence Wilson of Butte, Mont., who took for his subject, "Reedding the Highest Town on Earth." The affair was largely attended and all present thoroughly enjoyed the address, which proved both interesting and instructive.

A collection of 116 finely colored, well chosen views were flashed on the screen, and these proved particularly interesting, inasmuch as they showed the various places of interest in Butte, Mont.

The speaker said what the people of Butte need is the eastern capital to develop the latent mineral resources and also to build up their spiritual nature. He said in Butte there is no Y. M. C. A. or Y. W. C. A. and no institutional church work, although the population is 70,000. He said the city needs church work and a parish house as a social center, and to inaugurate these was the first effort of a Congregational church with 75 miles of Butte.

The speaker gave a vivid description of the city and occasionally referred to its inhabitants. The lecture proved most entertaining and it is possible Rev. Mr. Wilson will return to Lowell shortly.

LOWELL SOCIAL LEAGUE

The Lowell Social league will hold a meeting tomorrow afternoon in Memorial hall to introduce the new general secretary, Miss Mary Alma Collier. Mr. Charles H. Hall of the Associated Charities of Pawtucket, R. I., will speak briefly of what such an organization can accomplish and of his own work in Pawtucket. Two representative citizens of Lowell will speak of Lowell's needs and Miss Collier will tell briefly how she hopes to make the league a benefit to the city.

WITH THE PADDED MITTS

Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, will meet Eddie Morgan in a return engagement at the National Sporting Club of Philadelphia next Saturday night. They met about a month ago at the same club and boxing critics called the affair a draw.

Next Sunday the fight fans of New Orleans will see Joe Mandot and Johnny Dundee clash in a twenty-round contest. Dundee has been fighting at a great clip during the past year and his friends expect him to outpoint the clever southern champion when they meet.

Lemon Kegg, the Johnstown, Pa. boxer, has a record of 35 knockouts in 45 fights which shows he has a wallop concealed in both hands. He recently cleaned up all the featherweights of southern California and is looked upon as a corner by critics around Pennsylvania.

Willie Lewis and Young Ahearn will exchange courtesies in Havana on Feb. 13. All the other "midwinter" pastimes being tough and it looks as if he fell into something easy when he was matched to clash with Lewis, who has not boxed for more than a year and has shot his bolt. Lewis will receive $3000 for his troubles.

Al Jordan, an English boxer, has the contract of stopping Al Shubert's punches at Danbury, Conn., Feb. 15. Shubert boxes Young Labore at Manchester on Feb. 13. From the Shubert side it is expected that he will fight every night with opponents such as these two and not feel any ill effects.

The Olympia A. C. of Philadelphia offers Johnny Kilbane $5000 for a bout with Kid Williams. Kilbane demands this sum and the promoters have agreed to give him such a purse. Kilbane wants the weight to be 122 pounds at eight o'clock, while the king of the bantams insists on 122 ring-side.

Bill McKinnon, who showed his ability in this city several times, will meet Bob McFay at No. 400, Abington, Feb. 13. Both can hit, but McKinnon's ring generalship should make him a favorite.

An all-star show will be put on at the Unity club of Lawrence, Thursday. Young Stone of Lowell will meet Pat North, a rugged Providence boxer, in one bout. Tommy Carson will resume hostilities with Howard MacLae in another ten rounder. These boys fought a slashing draw a few weeks ago and each is anxious to prove that he is the better man. Mr. Crilley has selected for his third team Joe Boudreau and Al Limerick.

Joe Carroll, the Lawrence boxer, showed a fine brand of ring goods last week in the semi-final to the Mack-Butler bout. Joe had his man at his mercy at all times but lacked the steam to win in a decisive manner.

Eddie Murphy of South Boston won his first battle in the south when he defeated Will Schert at New Orleans last Saturday. Eddie will probably get a chance to appear against the winner of the Dundee-Mandot contest.

Larry Burns will meet Tommy Moore of Providence at Manchester, Feb. 19. Moore will outweigh Burns by several pounds, but he will have to step his fastest if he expects to beat the former Lawrence boxer.

It is expected that Fred Yelle will appear at the Lawrence club in the near future as Eddie Moore, his mentor, is checking with him Crilley to stage his charge at the Unity against the best lightweight available. Yelle is a good card anywhere.

Can he come back? Steve Kennedy, who a few weeks ago was one of the best lightweights in the east has signified his intention of re-entering the roped arena and when he climbed through the ropes last Thursday to challenge the winner a howl of appreciation went up. Kennedy always gave a good account of himself when performing. Steve has not boxed since Christmas 1913, when he lost the verdict to Eddie Murphy of South Boston in a twelve round battle.

Bill McKinnon, who showed his ability in this city several times, will meet Bob McFay at No. 400, Abington, Feb. 13. Both can hit, but McKinnon's

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

We notice that Steve Kennedy is training for a comeback stunt. He was introduced last Thursday night as a challenger for the winner of the night's battle.

Kennedy was one great lightweight when in condition. Lowell fans have not forgotten his game battle against Joe Egan when the two boys boxed 12 furious rounds at Spaulding park on July 4th, 1913. Although handicapped by weight and in ill health at the time, Kennedy forced the going all the way.

If Kennedy can really get back into shape it will be a home to Ken Egan and fight fans. The Lawrence boxer has always been popular wherever he put up his hands. He is just the sort of ringster that the followers of the sport like to see on the bill.

Eddie Collins is expected to boost the Chicago White Sox into fame this season. The former Athletic is looked to for a wonderful change in Comiskey's ball club.

How Collins and the new manager of the White Sox will pull together will be interesting to observe. If they do not agree there is certain to be a bad break in the club.

Rik leaguers as a rule look upon a minor league manager as an inferior being, especially if he appears to lead them something about the game. If this should prove to be the case with Comiskey's club the team won't climb very high in the American league scramble.

The Federal league invasion of New England baseball preserves hasn't increased any farther. The White Sox, far, in no city along the circuit has a "flash" been spotted.

The Fed invasion looks like a false alarm. From the first it has been assumed anything like a threatening attitude at present we haven't any assets except a few good press agents and these were merely victims of a circular letter for sporting news has been very meagre of late.

According to rumor, the Feds, or "Angels" Ward, you please, have something like $25,000 in the Colonial something deal last season and did not realize a player worthy big league notice in exchange. No wonder the outlaws were on another minor league proposition.

It will not be long now before the big league clubs will be departing for the south on their spring training trips. A number of them will have several of the clubs trying out their youngsters and getting the veterans into condition for another strenuous season.

The consensus of opinion among managers of the northern major league clubs is that a shorter stay in the south would be more practicable. The reason for this is the decided change in the climate on the homeward trip. From the sunny south to a cold early spring day in New York, for instance, has been found to do the players considerable harm. Therefore, they intend to stay only long enough to get in shape and not linger south of the Mason Dixon line a sufficient time to have the players become acclimated.

Louis Pieter, former Lawrence manager and now at the helm of Lynn baseball, is "in right" with the sporting writers of his town. For one they have a manager in the South town whom they approve of. Good for you, Louis.

If the negotiations which are now pending between Messrs. Roach and Kennedy for the purchase of the club and the owners of Washington park come to a satisfactory conclusion the Lowell team will once more move to that location.

It is expected that something definite will be known before the week is out. The two baseball men are emphatic about Spaulding park. Unless there is positively no other alternative they will not open another season out near the Tewksbury boundary.

Arthur Irwin, former business manager of the New York Yankees and one of the best known figures in baseball circles, may manage the local team next spring.

Mr. Irwin was at the New England league session in Boston last week but would say nothing relative to the rumored job in Lowell. He simply smiled and said that there was lots of time to talk later. He has always borne the reputation of being close-mouthed when it came to business discussions, although noted as a social entertainer.

The former New Yorker would be a valuable man for the Lowell club. He has been associated with baseball all his life and knows managers and owners alike in the big show. His ability to procure players in times of emergency would be a great asset to any club.

Nobody knows whether or not he would take the job. He has stepped down from major league baseball for the season. The big leagues are sure to lose money, said Mr. Irwin to The Sun writer. "The Federal league battle is bound to be productive of big trouble and to me it is a vacation from active participation in the sport is not a bad idea just at this time."

That all we can say now is that Arthur Irwin is on a vacation from big league baseball and that he would make a mighty good manager for the Lowell club.

Carr's Team in Slashing Game—Mercantile and Baraca Leagues

Carr's team turned in the high team total last night when the City league bowlers got together. The White Ways, Crescents and Kittredge's teams were the other winners in this league. Carr's five rolled 1555 with four men over 300. Martin of the White Way team, was high man with 333.

In the Baraca league the Immanuel Baptists proved too fast for the Highland M. E. bowlers and the Gorham Street P. M. last to the Swedish Methodists by seven pins. Whiteclock was high man.

The team won from the C. P. Macanney's in the Mercantile league and the Waldorf lunch rollers took two strings and the totals from the J. L. Chaffin's five. Long put up 370 for high. The scores:

WOODBINES WON

Defeated C.Y.M.L. Second Team in Fast and Exciting Contest 13-11

The C. Y. M. L. second team went down to defeat last night for the first time in two seasons when it tackled the husky Woodbine club basketball quintet. The contest was very close and exciting all the way through and the several hundred fans in attendance were kept "on their toes" throughout. It was a great game of basketball. The final score, 13-11.

Foley and Lepper were the players who did the greatest damage to their opponents. Both players, although opposed to each other, scored three baskets from the floor. The other points were scored by Flynn, Kenner, Lath, Lane, Randall and Shanahan. The score and summary:

WOODBINES C. Y. M. L. SECOND TEAM
Gills 4 16 Randall
Kennedy 4 16 Flynn
Lath 4 16 Kenner
Shanahan 4 16 Kenner
Lepper 1 2 Foley
Totals 40

Baskets: Foley 4, Lepper 1, Flynn, Lane, Kennedy, Randall and Shanahan.

7 Other Reels

Nearly 53 years ago the Company was chartered by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

It has seen over half a century of useful service, and this is its 52d annual statement.

Its mission has been and is to furnish life insurance to the public upon the best terms.

Though it is in the form of a corporation, it has no stock, and is conducted wholly for the benefit of the policyholders.

It has become one of the strong institutions of the land—7th in point of insurance in force, 8th in point of income, and 10th in point of assets, among the 270 legal reserve life companies operating in the United States.

The gross assets of the company on December 31st, 1914, were	$116,305,468.82
The reserve for policies and for sundry minor liabilities aggregated	$109,062,538.01
The unassigned or safety funds, measured upon the Massachusetts standard, were	$7,242,930.81
The Company paid to policyholders for death claims in 1914	$7,987,287.28
The Company paid in 1914 for matured endowments	$550,152.00
The Company paid in 1914 for surrendered policies and for dividends or abatement of cost to policyholders	$5,220,087.48
There was added to the policyholders' reserves in 1914	$8,819,672.00
The total payments to policyholders, together with the reserve addition, equalled	$22,577,198.76
The death claim, endowment and other policy payments made during 1914 averaged for each working day	$45,858.42

The Directors report that the volume of new insurance added during 1914 was ample and of good quality; that the expenses of conducting the business continued to be reduced; that the reduction in expense effected during the last seven years represents a saving of over six and one-half million dollars; that the scale of surplus return or abatement of cost to the policyholders for 1915 will be continued as in 1914; that the plan of paying all weekly premium death claims on the present high scale of benefits, which in 1914 resulted in the payment of $429,286.00 more than was called for by the policies concerned, will also be continued in 1915; and that with the intention of making such a condition ultimately permanent there has been laid aside out of the resources of the Industrial Branch this year the sum of $2,900,000.

The Directors further report that their Committee has examined the cash and the bonds held December 31st, and has found the account correct; that the securities of the Company are in good condition; that the Company holds no foreclosed real estate; that it is their continued belief that the investments of the Company are upon the very highest possible plane; and that it is a satisfaction to be able to record the conclusions of the examiner of the Massachusetts Insurance Department in his report upon the triennial examination of the Company, finished in the early part of 1914, when he said: "the company is thoroughly organized, and honestly and efficiently administered."

REV. E. J. CORNELL MADE PASTOR

Will Have Charge of St. Joseph's Church in Ottawa

Deserved Recognition of an Able and Zealous Priest

Rev. Edmund J. Cornell, O. M. I., former pastor of St. Andrew's church, North Billerica, and more recently a member of what is known as the Missionary Band of the Oblate Order, stationed at the O. M. I. novitiate in Tewksbury, has been assigned as pastor of St. Joseph's church, Ottawa, Canada, and left last evening for his new field of work.

SHOT TO DEATH THE AYER HOME

Pastor of New Britain, Trustees Held Annual Meeting - Report by Dr. Parker

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 9.—Rev. Joseph Zebrzy, pastor of St. Andrew's Lithuanian Catholic church, and his housekeeper, Miss Eva Gillman, were found dead in the rectory today. The priest had been shot to death, a preliminary examination showing two bullet wounds. The woman had been strangled with a clothesline and also had a bullet wound in the wrist. The body of the priest was found on the parlor floor and that of Miss Gillman in her room in the attic. Father Zebrzy was 40 years old and had been here 15 years. Miss Gillman was 52 years old.

CALLS RAIDERS PIRATES

LORD HEREFORD WANTS GERMAN HANGED FOR MURDER OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Lord Charles Hereford will put a question to Premier Asquith in the commons tomorrow in which he will demand that Great Britain treat German raiders on undefended places as pirates and after a trial by court martial hang them in public for the murder of women and children.

WESTFORD TOWN MEETING

Westford's annual town meeting was held in town hall, Mon. Herbert E. Fletcher was moderator and about all of the articles on the warrant were adopted. The article providing for the purchase of the Westford Water Co. was dismissed. The sum of $100 was voted for the distribution of library books in Granvilleville, Farnerville and Forge Village. Harry L. Nason was elected town warden. Stephen Gardel was chosen constable over John A. Sullivan. Fred E. Hodgett defeated Joseph Wall for overseer. The other town officials elected were: Clerk, Charles L. Hildreth; selectman, Frank L. Furubush; assessor, J. Austin Healey; treasurer, Harwood L. Wright; overseer of the poor for one year, Charles L. Hildreth. This election was also all a vacancy; collector of taxes, Leonard W. Wheeler; auditor, Edward T. Hanley; school committee, Charles O. Prescott, T. Arthur E. Wilson; trustee of the library, Julian A. Cameron; commissioner of burial grounds, Wesley O. Hapworth.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

I recently re-visited a small New Hampshire town where once I spent several years of my young life. Much to my satisfaction the townspeople were to have a social gathering in the town hall and I extended my stay for a night in order to see how much they remembered the social times of 20 years ago. There was a general good time for everybody, young, middle-aged and old. I met many old time friends of my youth many of whom had grown-up children taking part in the evening's pleasures. There was music, declamations, and a son of the town at home for a visit, whose name was I to mention it would be recognized by everybody, got up and made a beautiful talk to his old townsmen. He began by quoting the lines: and put everybody in good humor. He didn't talk politics or religion. He was right down among the old folks at home who knew him and whom he knew. Really, I don't believe this eminent man ever in his career made such a gem of a speech—if it could be termed such—as he did this night up among the neighbors of his old mountain home.

"You would scarce expect one of my age
To speak in public on the stage,"

At a fairly early hour the old folks departed for home leaving the young people to themselves. Being still somewhat of a youth I stayed with the young folks and took part in everything as well as I was able. I was a boy all right "just for tonight." For a time all the old country games held forth, and then somebody produced an old fiddle and outburst there was nothing doing but quadrilles and Virginia reels. Then home over the snow under the bright stars—home to the old house on the hill, a midnight luncheon and something hot, hence to bed, vanquished by the last great slumber—a good sleep, and up in the morning eating breakfast before light in order to ride with the milk man to catch the first train down country. I was glad I had stayed over a night and concluded there wasn't much difference between the new and the old time country jollifications.

Tribute to Little Chace

Even after many years there are many men and women in Lowell, Dracut and Pelham who will learn with regret that Mrs. Joseph Clayton, better known to them doubtless by her name before her marriage, Little Chace, died at her home in Jackson, N.H. last Thursday. They will recall with pleasant memories that 40 and more years ago she was their teacher in the schools of Pelham and Dracut. For many years she taught in the Navy Yard district in the school house then situated on Pleasant street and so indispensable was she among the people of that locality that thought that any other teacher should teach in her room was never considered for a moment. For many years her fellow teacher in the Navy Yard school was Miss Ellen M. Holden, who has long been a valued teacher in our Lowell schools and who is still teaching in the Colburn school. Even after Miss Chace's marriage to Mr. Clayton she continued to teach for a time—such was the demand for her services by the Navy Yard folks; and truth to tell, it was likely she found it hard to give up the vocation which she loved. Mrs. Clayton had been a district school teacher of the old school; but she was an excellent type of

one. She was energetic, painstaking and thorough in her methods. Kind and sympathetic, she yet maintained discipline without severity. Her affectionate interest in her scholars had the natural effect of binding pupils to her in bonds of affection; and I have never found among her old scholars one to say aught but in her praise. Sometimes the going back through 40 years' wilderness of days, weeks and months, with their storm and sunshine, their joys and sorrows, their interminable offerings of sweets and bitterness, their tangled webs, their gifts of hope and their cups of disappointment, their grotesque mingling of good and evil, is like a dream that comes and goes in a night—it is about as intangible and insistent. If memory mercifully closes the book to much of our past, she opens it, too. At the top of those 40 years stands the old school house and the teacher within at her desk, bright-eyed and alert. It is she who now lies dead in Illinois. The school house has long since gone—the teacher but yesterday! This page in the book of memory shall always be open and luminous with the light of other days—the old school days so dear to us. Those of us who survive and whose memory lives may well pause beside the hier of our old schooler, who knew us better than we knew ourselves, who labored for our good and whose influence upon our lives may have been potent for good—and pay a tribute to her worth.

The Orchestral Society

The audience that completely filled Central hall Sunday afternoon to listen to the concert given by the local Orchestral society was not only encouraging but showed that the society has many friends. It was evident, too, that Madame Sapin, the soloist, had many friends. The work of the orchestra was quite satisfactory, showing evidence of painstaking training and conscientious interest. There should be no deprecating of an object on the part of a body of musicians to produce music of high character and the program given Sunday was such. Even though it fell short in actual performance, the standard set should be endorsed by all true lovers of the best in music; and in this relation it might well be said that it may be better to play high-class compositions indifferently well, than to play low-class productions with facility. So taken all in all, I hope that Mr. Schiller will continue to keep his standards high and train his orchestra as heretofore. I thought the best work of the orchestra was shown in the "Madam Butterfly" music. The themes were admirably worked out, while the sustaining parts did themselves credit.

That Madame Sapin scored a distinct triumph goes without saying. From her opening number, "Meyerbeer's 'O Sweetest Than the Breath of Morning,'" until her final encore she held her audience as none but a great singer and consummate artist can. Now Madame may not be particularly beautiful, yet she is attractive and possesses a charming stage presence. But, bless you, how she can sing! What range, what power, what delicacy, what pliancy, what art! May we hear Madame Sapin in Lowell frequently.

February Weather

February that started out so fierce—

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By giving the Hivellst exhibition by way of an old-fashioned blizzard, subsided soon into the same mild manner of her sister January, and has thus deposited itself up to the present hour. Each day like this is tolerable enough in more ways than one. Each completed day and we are nearer by so much to the day when spring officially arrives—now but about six weeks away; and she cannot come too soon for us.

Yet aside from this and the tokens we may yet receive from this artful month, she is interesting in many ways. She is even distinguished in being the birth-month of our two biggest and best men; and if you are up on dates it will occur to you that quite a respectable company of illustrious men and women first saw the light in this month. A friend informed me the other day that Abraham Lincoln and Charles Darwin were born on the same day, same year—an interesting fact certainly.

Outlook for Ball Team

Now that it seems assured that we are to have a ball team, let us breathe easier and feel content to feel that not yet is it written that the little old New England league is to give up the ghost. Fortunate in the selection of the right man to manage the Lowell club owners will go far towards making a creditable and let us hope, profitable season. It is high time there should be a little profit in the business for the gentlemen who have $15,000 to $20,000 invested. It's all very well to pose as baseball magnates, but so far as Lowell is concerned there are no gold mines located at Atherton. Yet, after all, if Lowell wants league ball, it's up to the baseball public to say if it does want it then let it patronize the home team.

The Lowell Art Society

The following communication is received and will be commented upon in a subsequent issue.

Will "The Man in the Moon" grant me a little space to consider some of his recent criticisms of the Lowell Art Association? His complaint, which in a measure was perfectly justified, was that the association did not realize its full opportunities, in that it had failed thus far to make of the Whistler House an "art centre" in the larger sense, but seemed to be content with having a few exhibitions—insufficiently advertised—and an occasional social function.

Now that is so far true that no officer of the Art Association would deny it. On the contrary it is probable that every officer of the association would acknowledge the impeachment and concur heartily in the wish for broadening the scope of the work. "The Man in the Moon" states as the proper ideal for such an organization the very one which the society itself already has, but one which thus far it has been unable to carry out—chiefly because of deplorably insufficient public backing.

Protest ought to be made, however.

against any imputation, such as the "Man in the Moon" appeared to make in his recent article, that the failure of the association to achieve its full object was due to any spirit of "exclusiveness."

It seems impossible that an association which has no limitation as to membership and asks no more than one dollar a year in dues should be "exclusive." No record exists, if memory serves, of any refusal of admission to any applicant. On the contrary the society deprecates the fact that, with its dues so pitifully low and the doors open to any who care to come, the membership should be so small. It is at present rather less than 500, when it ought to be triple that number, and would be if the Lowell public took the required degree of interest.

With what revenues it now has from membership and occasionally letting the rooms, the association maintains a very precarious existence. It has nearly paid for the house; it manages to heat it, light it, provide a caretaker and telephone, make minor repairs, give a few exhibitions every winter (in itself an expensive thing, by the way) and secure, largely through charitable speakers who talk for love alone, a series of lectures. To such entertainments all members who have paid their dollar are welcome, free of the general public; and any one of the general public may visit the house at any such time, at exhibitions, entertainments and all, on payment of the nominal fee of a quarter. But unless many hundred more people take sufficient interest to join and thus increase the amount the society has "to do with," the present activities of the association are all that can be afforded. The lack is both of members and money.

Exclusiveness, however, is not among the association's sins. We (I speak as an officer of the society from its beginning) are most anxious to do the things the "Man in the Moon" wants us to do. We want to have the society stimulate a love for artistic things, and afford instruction in artistic works, for the public of the city. We simply cannot do it, however, when people stand aloof and prefer to our unlimited membership and its pathetically small annual dues as an example of "exclusiveness." Many of us have gone deeper into our pockets than we like to think to give the society even such possessions and activities as it now enjoys—and the slow appreciation of the possibilities, on the part of others, has often been a source of genuine discouragement. We see what little money we have to do what little we can; and by great parsimony are usually able to make both ends nearly meet.

Our need is of cordial cooperation, wider interest, new blood, encouragement to do the very things you so truly say we ought to do. At present, when we do open a new exhibition, we can scarcely afford to advertise it publicly. Lessons in drawing and painting are far beyond our financial power. The accumulation of works of art for a small local museum is farther still beyond our reach. Yet

FOR A BAD COLD

The surest way to stop a cold is to loosen the liver and cleanse the bowels, and the nicest cathartic to do this is a 10-cent box of Cascarets. Take one or two Cascarets tonight and your cold may be gone by morning.

All these things might be added unto us if only the Lowell people would cordially join hands with us and help, laying aside any fear of exclusiveness. To permit any such movement to lapse into a mere pink-tea affair would be, indeed, a pity—and nothing is farther from our wish, who have sought to create and keep alive this institution.

P. S. M.

Lincoln Day

I met my friend, the poet, who appeared to have something on his mind he wished to unload, yet did not know how to begin doing it. Thinking that perhaps he needed only a little encouragement, I proceeded to draw him out until at last he poured out the news that he had thrown together a few lines in commemoration of Lincoln and wondered whether it would be a sacrilege to have them printed. The responsibility was too much for me; and so I shifted it to the shoulders of the gentle editor of The Sun who, if he prints the lines, I know they must be all right.

LINCOLN

He sought amid those sorry scenes
To rise, and felt within his soul
If you want help at home or in your business try The Sun "Want" column.

How much that knowledge paved the way
To fields of larger usefulness.
Not golden youth to thee was given,
O, strong boy of the Sangamon
To battle it for pleasure's sake
And idle hours and vain dreams;
How wide the varied store that came
From simple source and hampered means!

But God led on as though 'e'en then
He'd found within the wilderness
A heart of gold, strong, undenied,
Fit to atone a nation's crime
And strike the chains of Slavery!

Lowell Coke is the Satisfactory Fuel

Lowell Coke is good coke.

The quality of coke depends on the making—and Lowell Coke is made by the most modern processes.

The coal we use costs 15 per cent. more than the coal used by the makers of ordinary coke—our gas making plant demands it.

Our improved equipment takes out all impurities and leaves coke with a higher percentage of carbon than any other.

Lowell Coke is practically 90 per cent. pure carbon—only 2 per cent. volatile matter necessary for kindling.

The Lowell Gas Light Company employs three chemists to see that Lowell Coke is kept up to a certain standard.

Let us send our coke specialist to show you how to use Lowell Coke. You will understand then why all your neighbors are using it.

It will keep a hot even fire for over 12 hours and you will save at least 25 cents on every dollar of your fuel bill.

Little bother—few ashes; dust-clinkers, none.

A ton for $5.90 from any coal dealer or

Gentlemen: Being somewhat doubtful that Lowell Coke would really save so much as some claim, I have kept close account of what it cost me and find I get the same heat for nearly one-fourth less money.

Am free to recommend it to all. Have no trouble in keeping fire every night and it doesn't harm the grate in the slightest.

ment the limousine and touring cars of A. Archembauld are being given a new glossy appearance. This same station is overhauling and repairing Fred Phillips' motor, the touring car of Ashworth, the milkman, and several others.

A bustling automobile salesman has a fine chance to take over the agency of the well known car, the Paige-Detroit. This company is looking for a live representative for Lowell and vicinity and is prepared to make the right man an interesting proposition. The auto editor will assist in every way possible anyone who would like to examine into the matter.

It seems that the prices of tires are on the downward slide according to the interesting announcement made in The Sun a few days ago by the Pisk Rubber company. This considerable reduction in prices on both casings and tubes has been made possible by the lower cost of crude rubber, resulting from increased supplies from the Far East, assured since the raising of the embargo, and by the greatly increased production. Mr. Beharrell, local manager of the Pisk, says: "In accordance with our protective policy, we will rebate the difference in your cost on any Pisk casings or tubes (firsts) on hand purchased from us within sixty days prior to February 1st, serial number inventory to accompany claims which should be sent to our branch."

A. P. Hovey, of the Hovey auto livery, has been quite busy serving the people who have had need of his machines during the past few days. The inclement weather has brought his cars into great demand. Harry Pitts has had his Oakland touring car overhauled by the clerks in his employ, thus giving them practical experience of the inner working of an automobile.

Today the Donovan Harness Co. reminds the autoist that he should remember a reliable horse when looking for one. This company has established more than a local name in the upholstery line.

With the coming of an early spring the local auto livery men are happy with the expectation of a big increase of business from the public who will be calling on them to furnish their cars for pleasure trips. Lowell has some very up-to-date auto liveries, each of which have a number of cars of different styles with careful drivers ever alert and prompt.

THE AMERICAN AUTO ABROAD

The remarkable increase in popularity of the medium-priced American car abroad is especially marked in localities which, until a year or two ago, had been supplied almost entirely with cars of foreign manufacture. Although the outbreak of war in Europe has brought this fact into particular prominence by developing the foreign market for America even more rapidly, the general excellence of the American car was already making itself felt long before hostilities started.

The realization of the full extent to which the English car has been ousted from South Africa had come to John Bull before this year. Since the start of war, practically all of the cars sold in South America have been of American construction. It is declared that although the closing of the English factories, brought about by the war, forced the South Africans to call on America for their cars, the same ultimate result was simply a matter of comparatively few years.

MANY PAIGE MOTOR CARS SOLD

More than a half million dollars' worth of Paige motor cars were sold at the recent Chicago Automobile Show. This is not only far in excess of the record made by the Paige at the New York Show, but, Paige officials believe, it is the best record yet made by any company in bona fide sales at any motor car show.

One of the astonishing features of this significant recognition of Paige quality and value is the fact that 263 Paige cars were sold at the Chicago Show exclusively by the Bird-Sykes company, Paige distributors for Chicago, and of these 263 cars 92 were sold at retail directly from the floor. Added to the sales by the Bird-Sykes company were large orders taken in Chicago by other Paige dealers and distributors who were present and the total value of all orders was thus well over a half million dollars, for the week's business.

While the new Paige "Six-16" was a New York Show, but, Paige officials believe, it is the best record yet made

AUTO INCREASES LAND VALUES

An angle of the automobile business which a great majority of the people of this country have failed to take into consideration is that of the increase in real estate values since the horse was relegated to the background by the motor car. There is no way of estimating this increase in dollars and cents, but it has been country-wide—from the congested city districts to the most remote farming territory.

In the cities the elimination of the horse has added millions of dollars to the value of downtown real estate. For years past we have seen desirable manufacturing enterprises driven away from areas where horses were housed. It has been out of the question to attempt to build residences anywhere near territories where there are a number of stables. With the substitution of the automobile garage for the horse-barn, real estate values have increased by leaps and bounds, the added worth in some cases being as much as 100 per cent.

PACKING FIRMS GUILTY

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 9.—The packing firms of Armour & Co., Swift & Co., St. Louis Dressed Beef & Provision Co., the Hammond Packing Co. and Morris & Co. were found guilty of violating the state anti-trust law by the Missouri supreme court today.

An order of ouster was issued but the companies are allowed to remain in the state on payment of fines.

Each company was fined $25,000. To stay in the state each company must pay its fine by March 1.

The ouster suit against the so-called beef trust was filed by Governor Major when he was attorney general.

Daniel Dillon of St. Louis was appointed commissioner to take testimony in the case, and he reported to the supreme court that the companies had violated the anti-trust law. The case was argued in the supreme court more than a year ago.

The supreme court ruled that the anti-trust law was violated by the acquisition by the National Packing Co. of the Hammond Packing Co. and the St. Louis Dressed Beef and Provision company. The National Packing Co. was organized by the Armour, Swift and Morris companies.

The opinion says the National company became a holding concern for and directed the five packing companies named thereby destroying competition and fixing the price for dressed meats.

MINISTERS ASSOCIATION

The North Middlesex Ministers association held its mid-winter meeting yesterday afternoon in the Unitarian vestry.

Rev. Oliver J. Fairbank of Middlesex preached the sermon, his subject being "German Ideals."

A paper on the "After the War," written by Dr. Dole of Jamaica Plain, was read by Rev. E. P. Daniels of Wilton, N. H., and Rev. J. R. Pennington of Westford read his paper on a similar topic, treating the subject of settlement between the nations from the humanitarian viewpoint.

The general discussion was of the ultimate settlement of war difficulties.

One of the members of the association present, Rev. Richmond Fisk, D. D., of Ayer, will be 80 years of age next May.

The North Middlesex Ministers association was founded in Lowell in May, 1831. It meets three times a year.

THE TRIPLE OTT CLUB

The Triple Ott club, composed of young men from the upper Gorbam street district held its quarterly meeting in its rooms in Gorbam street last night and after transacting considerable business elected the following officers: President, Victor Peterson; vice-president, Frank Hendricks; secretary, Patrick Healand; treasurer, Patrick Gill.

After the election of the club officers the members voted to hold a farmers' ball at North Billerica in May and the following officers were chosen to have charge of the affair: General manager, Victor Peterson; assistant general manager, Patrick Healand; floor director, Thomas Healand; assistant floor director, James Ilen-dricks; treasurer, Patrick Gill.

When the election was finished the members talked at length on the coming baseball season and appointed John McElhinney, the catcher of last season's team, to captain the nine this coming season. All hoped that the team would meet with as much success this year as it did last year when they won twelve out of fifteen games.

NONPAREIL CLUB

The annual election of officers of the Nonpareil club was held at their rooms this week, the following officers being chosen to serve this year: President, Andrew A. Goggin; vice-president, Linwood O. Knapp; treasurer, F. Peter Warren; recording secretary, Richard D. Rogers; financial secretary, Geo. F. Haggerty.

The report of the treasurer showed the club to be in excellent financial condition and it was voted to make several improvements at "Tak-It-Easy" their spacious camp at Nabuasset. Preliminary arrangements were made for a grand minstrel—overture and dance to be held in the near future. Richard Donoghue being chosen as general manager of the affair.

POSITIVELY PAINLESS DENTISTRY

WITH

NAP-A-MINIT

USED BY DR. GAGNON

A broad statement, but a true one, and one which I am prepared to prove.

The average person is rather skeptical in regard to painless dentistry, as experience has taught him that in most cases the work done in a painless manner simply meant that the teeth were not prepared properly and the result was that trouble arrived sooner or later.

With Nap-a-Minit you can have teeth and roots extracted, nerves removed, cavities thoroughly prepared for filling, bridge work inserted, pyorrhea treated, in fact every branch of dental work done absolutely without pain.

Do not confound Nap-a-Minit with the ordinary anesthetics, as ether, gas, or any of the anesthetics. It is a combination of nitrous-oxid producing the state of analgesia in which you can talk, hear, watch the dentist at work, every faculty unimpaired, save that you can not feel pain.

Don't let fear keep you from your rightful inheritance—good teeth—but come to either of my offices and let me explain in detail the wonderful merits of that great boon to teeth-suffering humanity—Nap-a-Minit.

Examinations and consultations free.

FIRE ON GARNET STREET

A small boy playing with matches on the second floor of a three-story tenement house at 12 Garnet street started a fire about 10:45 o'clock this morning which gutted the bathroom and damaged considerable clothing that was hanging on the walls and packed in a trunk. The building is owned by Albert Hamel, Esq., and the tenement occupied by the family of Molle Marcel.

The boy, who is about four years old, had a narrow escape from being suffocated or burned to death. While his mother was busily engaged in the kitchen he went into the bath room to play and locked the door. It is believed that he secured matches from a shelf and lit the clothing.

The smoke pouring through the cracks of the door attracted the attention of Mrs. Marcel and she ordered the boy to come out. The room was then filled with thick smoke and the walls and floor of the bath room were ablaze. An alarm from box 24 was sounded and the prompt response of the fire apparatus prevented the flames from spreading to adjoining rooms. The contents of the tenement were not insured.

COMERY SENTENCED TO BE HANGED FOR MURDER

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 10.—Os-ear J. Comery was last night sentenced to be hanged in the state prison at Concord on Feb. 18, 1916, for the murder of his wife.

The jury was out just an hour. On the court being informed that a verdict had been reached, the prisoner was sent for. He made his appearance, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff George H. Phinney, superintendent of the county jail, and was extremely pale. The jury filed in and the members were asked if they had reached a verdict. Foreman George S. S. Hall answered in the affirmative.

"What is your verdict, death or imprisonment for life?" asked the clerk. "Death," was the answer.

County Solicitor P. H. Sullivan moved that sentence be imposed.

Attorney L. Ashton Thorpe, appearing for the respondent, addressed the court and stated that it was the desire of the counsel for the prisoner to take the case to the supreme court on exceptions.

The court replied that it would impose sentence at this time and in doing so, would not in any way jeopardize the rights of the prisoner, but would aid in every way in the preparation of the exceptions. It felt that by imposing sentence at this time matters might be expedited.

The court asked, the prisoner—if he desired to say anything and give any reason why sentence of death should not be pronounced on him.

Comery arose and said in a clear, low tone, but without a tremor: "I only wish to say that I desire the case taken to the supreme court."

"This right will not be denied you," said Judge Branch, who was associated with Judge Kivel on the bench.

The court then imposed sentence and dismissed the jury.

Attorney Thorpe said that he rested his appeal to the supreme court on the ground that the prisoner, having pleaded guilty and asked for sentence and the court having accepted the plea, should have imposed sentence and not impaneled a jury and forced a trial. The point is one that has never before been raised in New Hampshire.

The final arguments to the jury were made by Atty. Gen. James P. Tuttle and by Attorney Thorpe.

Comery's sentence is the first time the death penalty has been imposed in New Hampshire in nearly a quarter of a century.

The last execution in this state was that of Frank Almy on May 16, 1893, for the murder of Christie Warden of Hanover.

It was charged that Comery poisoned his wife because of his alleged relations with a schoolgirl.

During the day the jury listened to the testimony of the mother of the girl, the physician who attended Mrs. Comery, Amanda Allard, a neighbor who was present when she died; the police and medical authorities.

Why "No Coffee" For Children?

Many parents who drink coffee would not allow their children to touch it.

The 2½ grains of the drug, caffeine, in the average cup of coffee is far more injurious to the susceptible nature of a child than to an adult, but just as constant dripping will wear away stone, so will the repeated doses of caffeine undermine the strongest constitution.

Parents who would protect their own health as they do that of their children, will see the reason for quitting coffee and using

SOME OF KITCHENER'S MILLION IN FRANCE; ENGLAND RUSHING TROOPS ACROSS CHANNEL

ENGLISH TROOPS ON THE MARCH AND IN CAMP IN NORTHWESTERN FRANCE

England is said to be gradually sending Kitchener's million to France. It is reported that by the end of March England will have an army of 700,000 in the field, and this will be well to 1,000,000 by the end of April. When spring comes it is taken for granted in official circles in England that the Germans will try desperately to reach Dunkirk and Calais. It is to frustrate this drive that the men are now being rushed to the front. The pictures show some of the new British troops in the war zone.

SEC. TUMULTY WITNESS IN THE SULLIVAN CASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, and Rep. James A. Hamill of New Jersey were witnesses yesterday at the investigation into charges against James M. Sullivan, minister to the Dominican republic. Hearings here were concluded last night, but Special Commissioner Phelan will later examine the witnesses in the Dominican republic.

Tumulty testified that Hamill introduced Sullivan to a medium, that he "simply acted as a medium for transmitting the indorsements of Sullivan to the secretary of state." He said he knew of no "bond of debts" which were presented as an argument against appointing Sullivan. He had heard of personal debts which it was claimed Sullivan owed, but asserted that it is a usual thing in candidates for office.

The only real argument presented against Sullivan, Tumulty said, was his connection with the Becker trial as counsel for Jack Rose, and a letter from the then Dist. Atty. Whitman disapproved that.

Tumulty declared that he never knew of any connection between Sullivan prior to his appointment and the Jarvis interests in New York. W. C. Beer, John G. Gray or the Banco Nacional of the Dominican republic.

The White House is a great clearing house for rumors," said Tumulty, "and when these charges began to come in about Mr. Sullivan, I heard about the Jarvis interests and the Banco Nacional. I asked Mr. Vick (former receiver general of Dominican customs) to watch Mr. Sullivan closely and keep the White House advised. I also told him to warn Mr. Sullivan that the president would be displeased if he heard of Sullivan growing too close to any interests and would take such action as became necessary."

Tumulty denied that the White House had ever exonerated or "washed" Sullivan. He said that Franklin Fort, who had headed a commission to settle a Dominican revolution, had told the president that Sullivan was a "big-hearted Irishman" and that there "was nothing against him."

He declined to express any opinion as to Sullivan's fitness for office, but criticized Hamill as a "boresome" man. Hamill told the commissioner he had never discussed Sullivan's candidacy for the Dominican post with W. C. Beer, John G. Gray or any other representative of the Jarvis interests. He had been an intimate friend of Sullivan and gave him his support as a friend.

Hamill told of a debt of $500 or $600 which Sullivan paid to Bishop Broderick in Pittsfield, Mass., while his nomination was pending before the state committee. Bishop Broderick, he explained, withdrew a protest against Sullivan's nomination after the debt was paid.

HOW TO GAIN WEIGHT A POUND A DAY

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol for their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first four weeks by following in this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but by mixing with your food, it makes the fat, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing, nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment goes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and painlessly. By reducing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. All leading druggists in Lowell and vicinity sell it in large boxes—each tablet in a package on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

GERMANS CHARGED 22 TIMES IN SINGLE DAY

Battle in Galicia Described as Without Precedent in History—Tens of Thousands Killed

A battle which the Russian war office describes as without precedent in history has occurred in Galicia in the course of the campaign for mastery of the mountain region which screens northern Hungary from Russia. In a single day the German troops charged 22 times on a Russian position. They made their charges up a hill in the face of artillery fire. Twice they gained possession of the heights but, according to the Russian statement they were finally driven out with bayonets. The German losses are described as "excessively heavy." There is no information on this phase of the situation from German or Austrian sources.

Thousands Killed

In the recent attack of the Germans on the Warsaw front, the Russians statement says their losses amounted to tens of thousands.

Russian Victory in Poland

Another Russian victory is said to have been gained in Poland, where the Germans attacked the Russian forces. The Petrograd war office asserts that the Germans were driven back and that one of their battalions was almost annihilated.

The official statements of today from Berlin and Paris say that there was no important fighting yesterday in France.

Fighting in Carpathians

The battle of the Carpathians, which is to decide whether the Russians will be able to force a way over the mountains and into Hungary, will be driven to the northward apparently in as far from a decision as at any time since the Austrians with their reinforcements of Germans launched the attack. The correspondent of a Berlin newspaper states that no speedy successes must be expected as movements are slow on account of heavy snow in which the operations are being carried out and the most that can be looked for by Germany is the forcing back of the Russians step by step.

No Change at Warsaw

Although the Russian forces along the Warsaw front have undertaken an attack they apparently have been no more successful than were the Germans in their last onslaught. So far as has been reported there is no important change in positions. In Poland another important battle is under way with the issue undecided.

Russia to Continue War

The Russian duma adopted a resolution expressing the purpose of carrying on the war until the peace of Europe was assured on terms satisfactory to Russia.

Another Zeppelin Lost

It is reported from Geneva that another Zeppelin has been lost. It is said to have been wrecked in a storm during a flight over the North sea.

U. S. Flag on English Ship

Another instance of the use of the American flag by a British steamer was reported today by passengers on the Cunard Orduna when it arrived at New York from Liverpool. The Orduna is said to have flown the American flag for nearly 24 hours while crossing the Irish sea.

SANGUINARY FIGHTING IN CARPATHIANS—DEMAND FOR PEACE

LONDON, Feb. 10.—The eastern battlefront completely overshadows the western fighting line today as the center of interest in the military operations. The Teutonic allies evidently are making desperate efforts to advance especially in the region of Galicia to the south of Przemyśl and Lemberg, where attempts have been made to gain positions by sheer weight of numbers.

The general offensive movement of the Austro-German forces along the Carpathian mountains continues at the eastern end of the range, where the Russians are retreating into Bukovina but London military experts are of the opinion that the Austrians must force ahead a long way in this direction before they can hope to affect the general Russian position.

The vital point is Dukla pass, where a short advance by the Russians would compel the Austrians to look anxiously to their communications. At present the battle in that region has all the aspects of a draw.

Sanguinary Fighting

The most sanguinary fighting, according to Russian reports, took place in the Carpathian mountains where the Germans attempted to cross Lukhodka pass. The Teutons attacked in massed formation several ranks deep and gained several heights occupied by the Russians only to be forced back by desperate counter attacks. Both sides must have suffered terrible losses in this hand to hand battle.

A German report states that heavy artillery actions are in progress in the Carpathians and that an advance is being made in Bukovina where the important town of Wama has been recaptured by the Austro-German forces.

Steps to End War

Some whispers of a demand for peace come from Teutonic allies in the form of reports of a socialist speech in the Prussian diet declaring that the people want peace and a petition is said to have been sent to Baron Burián, the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs by some Hungarian deputies demanding that steps be taken to end the war.

RUSSIANS MARCHING INTO VALLEYS OF THE THAMES AND UNG RIVERS

GENEVA, Feb. 10.—The Russians are marching into Hungary by the valleys of the Theiss and Ung rivers, according to advices received here. Taking the offensive at Kozsmeno, they are said to have inflicted severe losses on the Austrians and advanced five miles in the direction of Borkut in the Lyutia valley. The Russians progressed southward as far as Turia, Remulj and Pereczyn on the railroad from Turli to Nagvar, capturing two batteries imbedded in the mud in the Polonia-Runa mountain.

FRENCH AND ENGLISH AIRMEN SURPRISE TURKS

Passengers on Cunard Line Steamer Orduna Say Vessel Flew U. S. Flag for Nearly 24 Hours

MITYLENE, Feb. 10.—Several English and French Zeppelins flew over Turkish Thrace yesterday, according to a despatch from Tenedos. Two of the machines went as far as Adrianople, dropping bombs on the forts. The Turks are said to have been unprepared for a bombardment as they did not expect allied aircraft to venture so far inland.

ANOTHER ENGLISH SHIP FLIES STARS AND STRIPES

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Passengers on the Cunard line steamer Orduna which arrived here today from England said that the steamer flew the American flag for nearly 24 hours on Jan. 31, while passing through the Irish sea. The Stars and Stripes, they declared, were hoisted on Sunday about an hour after the Orduna left Liverpool and floated over the English steamer until early Monday morning.

The Orduna was scheduled to sail from Liverpool on Saturday, Jan. 30, but did not depart until 10.30 o'clock the next morning. Passengers heard that the reason for the delay was that a German submarine was hovering in the vicinity. The American flag was raised, they said, shortly after the Orduna cleared the Mersey. The steamer touched at Queenstown the same day and was flying the Stars and Stripes when she entered and left the harbor, they said. The explanation which the passengers said, they received from some of the Orduna's under officers was that the American flag had been raised for the purpose of protecting the American citizens among the 240 passengers aboard.

H. T. Strong of this city and James

Ford of Lynn, Mass., were two of the passengers who said they would vouch for their names that the American flag was flown by the ship. They said it was not until she had cleared the Irish sea that it was hoisted down.

Capt. Thomas M. Taylor, commander of the Orduna, refused to discuss the matter, saying he was under orders from the British admiralty not to talk. The other officers also were silent.

21 LIVES LOST RECORD SESSION

Mine Flooded—Manager Foye Gives Life in Attempt to Save Men

NANAIMO, B. C., Feb. 10.—Joseph Foye, manager of the Pacific Coast Coal Co. mine, South Field, the flooding of which yesterday resulted in the loss of 21 lives, was crushed to death in an attempt to get all his men to safety before the waters rose. He was struck by a great time ago, for far below the surface and beaten to death by its force.

Efforts to recover Manager Foye's body and those of his 20 companions were begun here today. Big pumps by which it is hoped to clear the mine levels of water were to be installed. It was not expected, however, that any of the bodies will be reached for several weeks owing to the extensive workings of the mine.

VOICE FROM WAR ZONE

LOWELL MAN IN FRENCH ARMY WRITES OF SUFFERINGS FROM THE COLD

Emile Vandembulke of Tilden street, who left a wife and two children to join his regiment in the French infantry, has written an interesting letter to his wife, who is conducting a grocery store in Tilden street, telling of the misery existing among the soldiers. Mr. Vandembulke left Lowell several months ago, but did not go to the front until a short time ago, for he served on the guard line before being called to real service.

Mr. Vandembulke is now stationed at Verdun, France, and in his letter he states the thermometer registers several degrees below zero and inasmuch as the soldiers are not too well clothed they are suffering terribly on account of the cold weather. The writer says the Germans are close to the French camp and they do most of their fighting during the night. He states he believes the French army could easily outdo the enemy if the attacks were made in broad daylight.

Mr. Vandembulke further states he has not received word from his aged mother, who is a resident of France for a long time and he expresses fears as to her safety. The young man has a brother-in-law, Achille deCottigny, a former resident of this city, who has been captured by the Germans and he is not aware of the latter's fate. The letter is not very encouraging for Mr. Vandembulke's family, for the writer states it is the general opinion in France that the war will last a long time. Mr. Vandembulke is enjoying good health and says he has been fortunate in not being killed or wounded in the recent fierce battles.

Senators Continue to Discuss the Ship Purchase Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—All records for continuous sessions in the senate in the present generation at least were broken today by the prolongation of Monday's session devoted to the administration ship purchase bill over the morning hours. In 1913 the repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman law kept the senate in continuous session for 35 hours and 45 minutes a record for that period and one that was not surpassed until 245 a. m. today. Still the opponents of passage of the shipping bill fought on.

With their eyes badly swollen from the strain of the extraordinary work, the regular force of official reporters were compelled to give way and new stenographic reporters, for the first time in years, took their places on the floor.

Motion to Adjourn Lost

The period of calm early today came only after a bitter struggle for supremacy about midnight. The republicans and their supporters on the democratic side sought to end the session, but the motion to adjourn was lost by a vote of 44 to 34. On the other hand Senators Fletcher and Stone attempted to get a vote on the initial portions of the recommitment motion, namely, the length of the term for which the government ship might be leased. Republican senators clamored in excitement for the right to speak, but Senator Stone obtained the floor, cutting off Senator McCumber's speech, which had been planned to continue far into the morning hours. A parliamentary wrangle ensued and the democrats abandoned their efforts to force a vote. The encounter was marked by a verbal clash between Senators Stone and Penrose as a result of which Senator Penrose was taken to his hotel with a temperature of over 100 degrees.

Government Ownership

Only one attempt was made during the early morning hours of Senator Sherman's speech to take the floor from him. With Senator James in the chair for Mr. Marshall, Senator Hughes made the point of order that Mr. Sherman was not discussing the bill. Senator Sherman explained that his remarks regarding the operation of the parcels post system was in order because they dealt with government ownership. Senator Hughes finally withdrew his point. Senator Kern, however, serving notice that he might renew it later.

It was 3 o'clock this morning before the weary night watchers on the floor were relieved. Senators who had slept in the capital committee room were to be seen making down the corridors for the barber shop and later, one by one, took their places on the floor.

Not Tomorrow But Yesterday

"Is this tomorrow or the next day?" Inquired Senator Gallinger, as he made his early morning appearance.

"It is yesterday," responded Senator Lea, who had spent the night in the presiding officer's chair. "It soon will be next week," volunteered Senator Robinson, who at that time had succeeded Senator Lea of Maryland as the sole democrat on the floor.

At 5.10 o'clock Senator Sherman yielded to Senator Townsend, another republican. He had been on the floor for more than seven hours.

COUNCIL TO CONSULT FINANCIAL EXPERT

Man From State Board Coming to Lowell Tomorrow—Annual Audit of Davis Fund

Theodore Wardell, of the state board of labor and statistics, will come to Lowell tomorrow morning and talk matters over with the municipal council. Mr. Wardell is the board's expert on municipal finance and the council is in need of a little expert opinion. There are some notes coming due in August that the council is afraid the city will not be able to meet unless the collector of taxes be allowed to collect tax money enough in advance to meet the notes. This is one of several questions that the council will take up with Mr. Wardell. The municipal council resolved itself into a committee on accounts this forenoon and met in the mayor's private reception room. The long table was filled high with bills and the commissioners allowed that they had several hours' work before them. A few of the bills were productive of more or less discussion and two or three were laid aside for future reference.

John Davis Fund

The annual audit of the John Davis fund took place in the office of the city treasurer this forenoon. The proceeds of the Davis fund are devoted to the public library and the total valuation of the fund at the present time is $91,723.93. This is a net decrease of $372.19 as compared with last year and for which the shrinkage of stocks is responsible. Those participating in the audit this forenoon included, Fred A. Chase, librarian; Dr. A. E. Bertrand and Hugh J. Molloy, public library trustees.

Flood Shedd Park

John W. Kernan, superintendent of parks will ask permission of Commissioner Carmichael to flood the skating rink at Shedd park tomorrow morning. There isn't any skating at the park at present and Mr. Kernan says that to renew the skating it will be necessary to flood the rink. The superintendent says that the toboggan on the South common and at Fort Hill and Tyler parks are being well patronized and the sliding is great.

Water Department Report

The city engineer's office is busily engaged with the annual report of the water department, at least, on that portion of the report supplied by the engineer. Commissioner Morse says that work on the Tanner street sewer is going along by degrees, and while it is very slow work at present he expects to make better time after they have gone along a little way. The annual meeting of the Massachusetts highway commission will be held at the American house, Boston, tomorrow forenoon. Commissioner Morse will not be able to attend because of the estimates, but will be represented by City Engineer Kearney.

FOR PEACE IN EUROPE

Protest Against the Conditions Brought by War by Socialists of Prussian Diet

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—A protest against conditions brought about by the war was made today by socialist members of the Prussian diet which began a session yesterday. Herr Hirsch, a socialist delegate, read on behalf of his party, a declaration which in part is as follows:

"The socialist democratic party maintains its opposition, based on principle, to the former government policy, which policy has remained in all material things unchanged. The party, however, refrains in this critical time from introducing discussions of a polemical nature into a consideration of the budget on its first reading."

Herr Hirsch added that his party later would call attention to complaints concerning the provisions for soldiers and for dependents, the food supply for the nation and restrictions on the free expression of thought. He could not permit the occasion to pass, he continued, without giving expression to the demand of his party that the government in consequence of the situation brought about by the war should concede certain measures desired by the great masses of the people.

The speaker then declared that the police cease their battle against the labor movement in general and in particular against the social democrats and other socialist organizations. Herr Hirsch said that his party was opposed to political oppression but that the basis of all political reforms must be their equal application to all minorities as in the case of the Danes and Poles.

His party had hoped, Herr Hirsch continued, that the government would fulfill its duty by granting uniform suffrage with the secret direct ballot at the session of October 29 last. He mentioned the desire of the social democrats for an honorable peace and concluded:

"We know that this war is desired by the people in none of the belligerent lands; that its end is everywhere longed for by the people. We cherish the confidence that the voices demanding peace will grow more numerous in all belligerent lands, will make themselves heard in influential quarters and that under the influence of this desire for peace especially of the laboring classes of all lands an assured peace may come speedily to the well-being of the German people and of all humanity."

Herr Von Heydebrand replied to Herr Hirsch on behalf of the non-socialist democrats. He declared that the present moment was not a suitable one for advancing special wishes or complaints. The situation was one which demanded that the entire Prussian people show itself united, as its soldiers on the battlefield were united.

Herr Liebknecht interjected: "You have no right to speak in the name of the German people!"

This remark brought forth cries of protest.

Herr Heydebrand continued his reply with an exhortation to the delegates to work together and make any sacrifices necessary for victory.

After the first reading of the budget, the diet adjourned until Feb. 15.

SPIRITUALISTS' MEETING

INTERCITY CONFERENCE AT THE CHURCH ON MIDDLESEX STREET THIS AFTERNOON

With delegations present from many surrounding cities and towns, as well as a large local representation, the intercity mass meeting of the First Spiritualist church of this city opened at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon in the First church at the corner of Middlesex and Stevens streets. This program for the convention was carefully arranged by the local committee and considerable enthusiasm was shown as it was the first meeting of its kind held by Lowell Spiritualists in their new church.

Another service will be held at 7.30 o'clock this evening. Between the meetings a supper will be served by the ladies' auxiliary.

The principal speakers today are Rev. F. A. Wiggin, pastor of the Unitarian church of Boston and president of the State Association of Spiritualists; Rev. Emma B. Smith, pastor of the First church of Haverhill and secretary of the state association; and Rev. Frederick Nicholson of Worcester, besides a number of delegates, are in attendance. Solos were given this afternoon by Mr. Myers of Boston and Mr. Barstow of this city.

MR. KUGERMAN EXONERATED

The case of Sam Kugerman, a well known resident of this city, accused of having received stolen property, was tried in the district court of Central Middlesex, at Concord today. Before Judge Keweenaw, and resulted in the acquittal of the defendant. Mr. Kugerman was charged with having received six antique, brass candlesticks, supposed to have been stolen at Acorn. The candlesticks, which were the property of Francis H. Bacon had a peculiar value owing to their great age and rarity associated with the name of Goldman appeared for the defendant.

DAY OFF IN FIVE

Lowell Firemen Represented by Counsel at State House Hearing

A bill granting members of the fire departments of all cities one day off in five was given a hearing before the committee on cities at the state house yesterday. J. Joseph O'Connor, appeared for the Lowell firemen and City Solicitor J. Joseph Hennessy opposed the bill on the ground that the matter had been twice turned down by the voters of Lowell.

Lowell and Taunton were the only two cities in the state to reject the bill. The city collector, in his protest, stated that the measure would mean a big expense to Lowell and the people of Lowell, he said, had shown their opposition to it very emphatically. Mr. O'Connor declared that in spite of indications to the contrary, the people of Lowell are anxious to give the firemen one day off in five. "The firemen," he said, "have never been able to get a fair hearing because every time this bill comes up, the press of Lowell creates a bad atmosphere around it and the matter is not fairly presented to the voters."

The firemen have not the money nor the instruments to put their cause before the people. Other cities have seen the justice of the proposition and I believe Lowell should be forced to recognize the need of the firemen."

Asked if he would be willing to have the matter referred to the city government of Lowell, Mr. O'Connor said that such a procedure would not be at all satisfactory. The members of the city council, he said, would probably adopt the "safety first" policy and refuse to endorse a proposition that the voters have declared against. He said that the expense to the city in connection with the acceptance of the bill would be very trivial and would not affect the tax rate in the least. Mr. O'Connor allowed that the firemen would give much better service if they had proper days of rest.

"To attempt to pass this bill," said the city collector, "is an indictment against the intelligence of the city of Lowell. In 1912 our fire department cost us $184,000 and in 1915 the budget calls for an expenditure of $202,000 with an extra $16,000 for new equipment. The tax rate of Lowell jumped $2.50 last year. This bill, if passed, would cost the city of Lowell at least $3000 annually."

The committee took the matter under advisement.

"I wish I could make good coffee," complained Marjorie to Maria one morning.

"It is a difficult problem," agreed Maria, "but I'm sure you can master the art, if you will take my advice. Madame will allow no one but me to make her coffee so I think I should be able to qualify as an expert."

"Many persons do not know that coffee is only 'good' in more ways than one, when fresh made. Then its aroma is rich and fragrant, for there has been no time for any poisonous properties to steep out and it invigorates and stimulates and is a wholesome beverage. After it has stood an hour or less the grounds impart to it a flat, heavy, dead taste; it is then positively injurious."

"The percolators have solved the question of good coffee at all hours because with these the coffee is made and the used grounds can be thrown out; they do not stand in the liquor. If you have no percolator, put the coffee into a bag and after making lift this out and then there will be no stale taste to the coffee. If you must reheat it for a late-comer.

"If you use the percolator or a bag you can have your coffee pulverized instead of merely ground. This is a great saving; a pound of pulverized coffee will go almost twice as far as the coarser coffee."

"No egg is needed to settle coffee made so, for it cannot be muddy."

"The proper proportion for the average cup of good coffee is to allow one level tablespoon of coffee to each cup and one extra spoonful for the pot. Pour boiling water, boil gently five minutes, set back where it will keep hot five minutes, settle it with a dash of cold water and serve at once."

THE RABBIT'S FOOT

BY GWEN BEARS

WOMEN WHO DYE

Many a woman dyes her hair because she believes it will make her more beautiful. And everyone has noticed it because her complexion does not tone in to the line of the hair about her face, and her eyebrows seem meant for someone else.

If your hair is light naturally you want it to look as bright as possible, and if it is dark you want it to stay that way and not become streaked after the shampoo. There are certain harmless ingredients which may be added to the shampoo water, and these will help you to retain all the natural beauty that your hair possesses.

Brunettes may help the color of their hair by using an egg or a little soda beaten into California claret. This red wine takes its color from the skin of the black grapes of which it is made and that contains tannin, which is good for the scalp and hair roots. The yolks of eggs or subcar-bonate of potash or soda are excellent for very dark hair.

How fortunate you are if your hair is light, for the sun is always ready to shed its beneficial rays on your head and aid in the lightening process. The commonly accepted household bleaches—ammonia, borax and soda—will lighten and brighten the hair a little for a day or two after the shampoo but they must be used with great care for they have a very drying effect on the scalp. And, after they have procured a pretty coiffure for a few days, the hair may seem more lifeless and dead than ever before.

A harmless mixture for lightening the hair is one made of equal parts of honey and rhubarb stalks, which are steeped in three parts of white wine. Let this mixture stand 24 hours, strain it, and use as a lotion when the hair is wet. Massage it into the scalp and let it dry on the hair.

The meeting was opened with a prayer service. The first speaker was Robert H. Magwood, chairman of the Temperance and citizenship committee, Massachusetts C. E. Union. His topic was "How Christian Endeavor Can Help Secure a Saloonless Nation." He cited many instances in which Christian Endeavor protest against extension of the liquor traffic and against the acceptance of advertisements by religious newspapers had been made. He said that Christian Endeavorers should try to arouse people to a realization of the fact that it is their duty to go to the polls and vote down the liquor traffic.

Toland Wells Pollock, chairman of the Middlesex county temperance committee for the Christian Endeavor union, presented the program of realization of the fact that it is their duty to go to the polls and vote down the liquor traffic.

Rev. William A. Bartlett, D. D., spoke on "The Young People and the Church."

Among other things he said:

A WINTER TONIC

Why is it that some people keep well all winter while others, less exposed to cold and damp, suffer with colds, grip, pleurisy, pneumonia and all the ills of the season?

Thin blood and debility are the causes of much sickness in winter. When the blood is thin and there is oxygen starvation in the tissues of the body, poisons are retained that should be eliminated and there is a lowered resistance to disease.

Rheumatism disappears when the blood is built up and does not return if the blood is kept rich.

The after-effects of grip are never cured until the blood is built up.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood and enable it to carry more oxygen, to nourish the starved tissues in debility, to soothe the inflamed membranes in rheumatism, to quiet the nerves in neurasthenia and sciatitis and to expel the lingering germs after the fever and influenza of grip have passed. All winter Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be in every house, ready for use. You can get them now at the nearest drug store.

The third edition of the popular little book, "Building Up the Blood," has just been published. Write today to the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for a free copy.

"If a young man asks for the privilege of escorting me home, what should I say if I wish to accept?" asked Louise.

"If you wish his company you may say, 'Yes, thank you. I shall be glad to have your company,'" answered her mother.

"When a new neighbor moves into a neighborhood where she is not known is the new neighbor supposed to call on the old resident?" asked Mrs. Puzled.

"It is the duty of those residing in the neighborhood to call on the newcomer after she has had sufficient time to get settled," answered her friend.

"Should a girl write a note of thanks to her escort for flowers which he sent her to wear to a party or will verbal thanks be sufficient?" inquired Lucy.

"Thank your escort verbally for the flowers which will be quite sufficient," was her aunt's reply.

"I want to invite my sister and her fiancé to lunch some evening. Shall I ask them both or should she ask him?" was Maude's problem.

"Since you are to be the hostess you should ask both the young man and your sister to lunch," advised her sister.

"After one has called on neighbors and the call is not returned, should one call again?" queried Janet.

"Unless you have some reason to believe that your neighbor does not wish to be friendly with you, do not stand on ceremony, but call again when you have the time and inclination."

"A person with whom I am acquainted sent a friend of his to me with a note of introduction. Should I write to the first person to acknowledge receipt of the note?" asked Bert.

"The courteous thing to do is to write a note of acknowledgment and thanks to the person who made the presentation," said his father.

WITH THE PADDED MITTS

Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion, will meet Eddie Morgan in a return engagement at the National Sporting club of Philadelphia next Saturday night. They met about a month ago at the same club and boxing critics called the affair a draw.

Next Sunday the fight fans of New Orleans will see Joe Mandot and Johnny Dundee clash in a twenty-round contest. Dundee has been fighting at a great clip during the past year and his friends expect him to outpoint the clever southern champion when they meet.

Lemon Kegg, the Johnston, Pa. boxer, has a record of 25 knockouts in 46 fights which shows he has a wallow concealed in both hands. He recently cleaned up all the featherweights of southern California and is looked upon as a comer by critics around Pennsylvania.

Willie Lewis and Young Ahearn will exchange courtesies in Havana on Feb. 12. All the other "middle" passed Ahearn as being too tough and it looks as if he fell into something easy when he was matched to clash with Lewis, who has not been in more than a year and has shot his bolt. Lewis will receive $2000 for his troubles.

Al Jordan, an English boxer, has the contract of stopping Al Shubert's punches at Danbury, Conn., Feb. 15. Shubert boxes Young Labore at Manchester on Feb. 12. From the way we size it up, Shubert could fight every night with opponents such as these two and not feel any ill effects.

The Olympia A. C. of Philadelphia offers Johnny Kilbane $5000 for a bout with Ed Williams. Kilbane demanded this sum and the promoters have agreed to give him such a purse. Kilbane wants the weight to be 122 pounds at eight o'clock while Williams insists on 122 ring-side.

Bill McKinnon, who showed his ability in this city several times will meet Bob LeFavor at No. Abington, Feb. 18. Both can hit, but McKinnon's ring generalship should make him a favorite.

An all-star show will be put on at the Unity club of Lawrence, Thursday. Young Stone of Lowell, will meet Pat North, a rugged Providence boxer, in one bout. Tommy Larson will resume hostilities with Howard MacRae in another ten rounder. These boys fought a slashing draw a few weeks ago and each is anxious to prove that he is the better man. Mgr. Crilly has selected for his third team Joe Boudreau and Al Limerick.

Joe Carroll, the Lawrence boxer, showed a fine brand of ring goods last week in the semi-final to the Mack-Butler bout. Joe had his man at his mercy at all times but lacked the steam to win in a decisive manner.

Eddie Murphy of South Boston won his first battle in the south when he defeated Will Schort at New Orleans, last Saturday. Eddie will probably get a chance to appear against the winner of the Dundee-Mandot contest.

Larry Burns will meet Tommy Moore of Providence at Manchester, Feb. 19. Moore will outweight Burns by several pounds, but he will have to stop his fastest if he expects to beat the former Lawrence boxer.

It is expected that Fred Yelle will appear at the Lawrence club in the near future as Eddie Moore, his mentor, is dickering with Jim Crilly to stage his charge at the Unity against the best lightweight available. Yelle is a good card anywhere.

Can he come back? Steve Kennedy who a few years ago was one of the best lightweights in the east has signified his intention of re-entering the roped arena and when he does, through the ropes last Thursday to challenge the winner a howl of appreciation went up. Kennedy always gave a good account of himself when performing. Steve has not boxed since Christmas, 1913, when he lost the verdict to Eddie Murphy of South Boston in a twelve round battle.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

We notice that Steve Kennedy is training for a comeback stunt. He is expected to appear Thursday night as a challenger for the winner of the night's battle.

Kennedy was one great lightweight. In his condition, the Lowell fans have not forgotten his game battle against Joe Egan when the two boys boxed 12 furious rounds at Spaulding park on July 4th, 1914. Kennedy was handicapped by weight and in ill health at the time, Kennedy forced the going all the way.

If Kennedy can really get back into shape it will be a boon to New England fight fans. The Lawrence boxer has always been popular wherever he put up his hands. He is just the sort of fighter that the followers of the sport like to see on the bill.

Eddie Collins is expected to boost the Chicago White Sox into fame this season. The former Athletics is looked to for a wonderful change in Connie's ball club.

How Collins and the new manager of the White Sox will pull together will be interesting to observe. If they do not agree there is certain to be a bad break in the club.

Big leaguers as a rule look upon a minor league manager as an inferior being, especially if he applies to them something about the game. If this should prove to be the case, with Connie's club the team won't climb very high in the American league scramble.

The Federal league invasion of New England baseball presses home its point. In no city along the circuit has a "flash" been spotted.

The Fed invasion looks like a false alarm. From the way it has never assumed anything like a threatening attitude and at present we haven't any assets except a few good press agents and those are highly the victims of circumstances for sporting news has been very meagre of late.

According to rumor, the Fed. or "Angels" will lose the league something like $25,000 in the Colonial league deal last season and did not realize a player worthy big league notice in exchange. No wonder the outlaws pause and consider on another minor league proposition.

It will not be long now before the big league clubs will be departing for the south on their spring training trips. A month from now will find several of the clubs trying out their youngsters and getting the veterans into condition for another strenuous season.

The consensus of opinion among managers of the northern major league clubs is that a shorter stay in the south would be more profitable. The reason for this is the decided change in the climate on the homeward trip. From the sunny south to a cold early spring day in New York, for instance, has been found to do the players considerable harm. Therefore, they intend to stay only long enough to get in shape and not linger south of the Mason and Dixon line a sufficient time to have the players become acclimated.

Louis Placer, former Lawrence manager and now at the helm of Lynn baseball, is "in right" with the sporting writers of his town. For once they have a manager in the Shout town whom they approve of. Good for you, Louis.

If the negotiations which are now pending between the Fed. and Kennedy of the local baseball club and the owners of Washington park come to a satisfactory conclusion the Lowell team will once more move to that location.

It is expected that something definite will be known before the week is out. The two baseball men are enthusiastic about Spaulding park. Unless there is positively no other alternative they will not open another season out near the Tewksbury boundary.

Arthur Irwin, former business manager of the New York Yankees, is one of the best known figures in baseball circles, may manage the local team next spring.

Mr. Irwin was at the New England league session in Boston last week, but would say nothing relative to the rumored job in Lowell. He simply smiled and said that there was lots of time to talk later. He has always borne the reputation of being close-mouthed when it came to business discussions, although noted as a social entertainer.

The former New Yorker would be a valuable man for the Lowell club. He has been associated with baseball all his life and knows managers and owners alike in the big show. His ability to procure players in times of emergency would be a great asset to any ball club.

Nobody knows whether or not he would take the job. He has stepped the down minor league baseball for the season. "The big leagues are bound to lose money," said Mr. Irwin to the Sun writer. "The Federal league tangle is bound to be productive of big losses and to me it is a vacation from active participation in the sport is not a bad idea just at this time."

That all we can say now is that Arthur Irwin is on a vacation from big league baseball and that he would make a mighty good manager for the Lowell club.

Carr's Team in Slashing Game—Mercantile and Baraca Leagues

Carr's team turned in the high team total last night when the City league bowlers got together. The White Ways, Crescents and Kittredges teams were the other winners in this league. Carr's five rolled 1555 with four men over 300. Martel, of the White Way team, was high man with 353.

In the Baraca league the Immanuel Baptists proved too fast for the Highland St. E. bowlers and the Gorman Bowling League by a fair margin. McQuade is at the top of the individual bowlers with an average of 88.3. Brown and Smith are second and third respectively. The figures follow:

Averages over 300—McQuade 88.3, Brown 86.3, Smith 84.6, Durr 83.6, Dwyer 83.1, McNeill 82.3, Harley 82.7, Kimball 82.4, Crawford 82.3, Ramsden 82.1, Shattley 82.4, Moynihan 82.5, Mahoney 82.4.

WOODBINES WON

Defeated C.Y.M.L. Second Team in Fast and Exciting Contest 13-11

The C. Y. M. L. second team went down to defeat last night for the first time in two seasons when it tackled the husky Woodbine club basketball quintet. The contest was very close and exciting all the way through and the several hundred fans in attendance were kept "on their toes" throughout. It was a great game of basketball. The final score, 13-11.

Foley and Lepper were the players who did the greatest damage to their opponents. Both players, although opposed to each other, scored three baskets from the floor. The other points were scored by Flynn, Kennedy, Lane, Randall and Shanahan. The score and summary:

WOODBINES C. Y. M. L. SECOND

SHANAHAN	1b	Randall	1b
KENNEDY	1b	Flynn	1b
LANE	1b	McNeill	1b
FOLEY	1b	McNeill	1b
LEPPER	1b	McNeill	1b

7 Other Reels

Nearly 53 years ago the Company was chartered by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

It has seen over half a century of useful service, and this is its 52d annual statement.

Its mission has been and is to furnish life insurance to the public upon the best terms.

Though it is in the form of a corporation, it has no stock, and is conducted wholly for the benefit of the policyholders.

It has become one of the strong institutions of the land—7th in point of insurance in force, 8th in point of income, and 10th in point of assets, among the 270 legal reserve life companies operating in the United States.

The gross assets of the company on December 31st, 1914, were	$116,305,468.82
The reserve for policies and for sundry minor liabilities aggregated	$109,062,538.01
The unassigned or safety funds, measured upon the Massachusetts standard, were	$7,242,930.81
The Company paid to policyholders for death claims in 1914	$7,987,287.28
The Company paid in 1914 for matured endowments	$550,152.00
The Company paid in 1914 for surrendered policies and for dividends or abatement of cost to policyholders	$5,220,087.48
There was added to the policyholders' reserves in 1914	$8,819,672.00
The total payments to policyholders, together with the reserve addition, equalled	$22,577,198.76
The death claim, endowment and other policy payments made during 1914 averaged for each working day	$45,858.42

The Directors report that the volume of new insurance added during 1914 was ample and of good quality; that the expenses of conducting the business continued to be reduced; that the reduction in expense effected during the last seven years represents a saving of over six and one-half million dollars; that the scale of surplus return or abatement of cost to the policyholders for 1915 will be continued as in 1914; that the plan of paying all weekly premium death claims on the present high scale of benefits, which in 1914 resulted in the payment of $429,286.00 more than was called for by the policies concerned, will also be continued in 1915; and that with the intention of making such a condition ultimately permanent there has been laid aside out of the resources of the Industrial Branch this year the sum of $2,900,000.

The Directors further report that their Committee has examined the cash and the bonds held December 31st, and has found the account correct; that the securities of the Company are in good condition; that the Company holds no foreclosed real estate; that it is their continued belief that the investments of the Company are upon the very highest possible plane; and that it is a satisfaction to be able to record the conclusions of the examiner of the Massachusetts Insurance Department in his report upon the triennial examination of the Company, finished in the early part of 1914, when he said: "the company is thoroughly organized, and honestly and efficiently administered."

THE MAN IN THE MOON

I recently re-visited a small New Hampshire town where once I spent several years of my young life. Much to my satisfaction the townspeople were to have a social gathering in the town hall and I extended my stay for a night in order to see how much they resembled the social times of 40 years ago. There was a general good time for everybody, young, middle-aged and old. I met many old time friends of my youth many of whom had grown-up children taking part in the evening's pleasures. There was music, declamations, and a son of the town at home for a visit, whose name was I to mention it would be recognized by everybody, got up and made a beautiful talk to his old townsmen. He began by quoting the lines: and put everybody in good humor. He didn't talk politics or shop. He was right down among the old folks at home who knew him and whom he knew. Really, I don't believe this eminent man ever in his career made such a gem of a speech—if it could be termed such—as he did this night up among the neighbors of his old mountain home.

"You would scarce expect one of my age
To speak in public on the stage,"

At a fairly early hour the old folks departed for home leaving the young people to themselves. Being still somewhat of a youth I stayed with the young folks and took part in everything as well as I was able. I was a boy all right "just for tonight." For a time all the old country games held forth, and then somebody produced an old fiddle and until midnight there was nothing doing but quacking and Virginia reels. Then home over the snow under the bright stars,—home to the old house on the hill, a midnight lunch and something hot, thence to bed, warmed by his old soap stones—a good sleep, and up in the morning eating breakfast before light in order to catch the train. I was glad I had stayed over a night and concluded there wasn't much difference between the new and the old time country jollifications.

Tribute to Hattie Chase

Even after many years there are many men and women in Lowell, Dracut and Pelham who will learn with regret that Mrs. Joseph Clayton, better known to them doubtless by her name before her marriage, Hattie Chase, died at her home in Jacksonville, Fla., last Thursday. They will recall with pleasant memories that 40 and more years ago she was their teacher in the schools of Pelham and Dracut. For many years she taught in the Navy Yard district in the school house then situated on Pleasant street and so indispensable was she among the people of that locality the thought that any other teacher should teach in her room was never considered for a moment. For many years her fellow teacher in the Navy Yard school was Miss Ellen M. Holden, who has long been a valued teacher in our Lowell schools and who is still teaching in the Colburn school. Even after Miss Chase's marriage to Mr. Clayton she continued to teach for a time—such was the demand for her services by the Navy Yard folks; and truth to tell, it was likely she found it hard to give up the vocation which she loved. Mrs. Clayton had been a district school teacher of the old school; but she was an excellent type of

one. She was energetic, painstaking and thorough in her methods. Kind and sympathetic, she yet maintained discipline without severity. Her affectionate interest in her scholars had the natural effect of binding pupils to her in bonds of affection; and I have never found among her old scholars one to say aught but in her praise. Sometimes the going back through 40 years' wilderness of days, weeks and months, with their storms and sunshine, their joys and sorrows, their interminable offerings of sweets and bitterness, their tangled webs, their gifts of hope and their cups of disappointment, their grotesque mingling of good and evil, is like a dream that comes and goes in a night—it's about as intangible and mystical. If memory mercifully closes the book to much of our past, she opens it, too. At the top of those 40 years stands the old school house and the teacher within at her desk, bright-eyed and alert. It is she who now lies dead in Illinois. The school house has long since gone,—the teacher but yesterday! This page in the book of memory shall always be open and luminous with the light of other days—the old school days so dear to us. Those of us who survive and whose memory lives, will pause beside the life of our old teacher, who knew us better than we know ourselves, who labored for our good and whose influence upon our lives may have been potent for good,—and pay a tribute to her worth.

The Orchestral Society

The audience that completely filled Colonial hall Sunday afternoon to listen to the concert given by the local Orchestral society was not only encouraging but showed that the society has many friends. It was evident, too, that Madame Sapin, the soloist, had many friends. The work of the orchestra was quite satisfactory, showing evidence of painstaking training and conscientious interest. There should be no deprecating of an object on the part of a body of musicians to produce music of high character and the program given Sunday was such. Even though it fell short in actual performance, the standard set should be endorsed by all true lovers of the best in music; and in this relation it might well be said that it may be better to play high-class compositions indifferently well, than to play low-class productions with facility. So taken all in all, I hope that Mr. Schiller will continue to keep his standards high and train his orchestra as heretofore. I thought the best work of the orchestra was shown in the Madam Butterfly music. The themes were admirably worked out, while the sustaining parts did themselves credit. That Madame Sapin scored a distinct triumph, goes without saying. From her opening number, Meyerbeer's "O Sweetest Than the Breath of Morning," until her final encore she held her audience as none but a great singer and consummate artist can. Now Madame may not be particularly beautiful, yet she is attractive and possesses a charming stage presence. But, bless you, how she can sing! What range, what power, what delicacy, what piety, what art! May we hear Madame Sapin in Lowell frequently.

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair.

ly, giving the liveliest exhibition by way of an old-fashioned blizzard, subsided soon into the same mild manners of her sister January, and has thus departed herself up to the present hour. Each day like this is tolerable enough in more ways than one. Each completed day and we are nearer by so much to the day when spring of itself arrives—now but about six weeks away; and she cannot come too soon for me.

Yet aside from this and the tokens we may yet receive from this awful month, she is interesting in many ways. She is even distinguished in being the birth-month of our two biggest and best men; and if you are up on dates it will occur to you that quite a respectable company of illustrious men and women first saw the light in this month. A friend informed me the other day that Abraham Lincoln and Charles Darwin were born on the same day, same year—an interesting fact certainly.

Outlook for Ball Team

Now that it seems assured that we are to have a ball team, let us breathe easier and feel content to feel that not yet is it written that the little old New England league is to give up the ghost. Fortunate in the selection of the right man to manage the Lowell club owners will go far towards making a creditable and, let us hope, profitable season. It is high time there should be a little profit in the business for the gentlemen who have $15,000 or $20,000 invested. It's all very well to pose as baseball magnates, but so far as Lowell is concerned there are no gold mines located at Atherton. Yet, after all, if Lowell wants league ball, it's up to the baseball public to say. If it does want it then let it patronize the home team.

The Lowell Art Society

The following communication is received and will be commented upon in a subsequent issue:

Will "The Man in the Moon" grant me a little space to consider some of his recent criticisms of the Lowell Art Association? His complaint, which in a measure was perfectly justified, was that the association did not realize its full opportunities, in that it had failed thus far to make of the Whistler House an "art centre" in the larger sense, but seemed to be content with having a few exhibitions—insufficiently advertised—and an occasional social function.

Now that is so far true that no officer of the Art Association would deny it. On the contrary it is probable that every officer of the association would acknowledge the impeachment and concur heartily in the wish for broadening the scope of the work. The "Man in the Moon" states as the proper ideal for such an organization the very one which the society itself already has, but one which thus far it has been unable to carry out—chiefly because of deplorably insufficient public backing.

Protest ought to be made, however, against any imputation, such as the "Man in the Moon" appeared to make in his recent article, that the failure of the association to achieve its full object was due to any spirit of "exclusiveness." It seems impossible that an association which has no limitation as to membership and asks no more than one dollar a year in dues should be "exclusive." No record exists, if memory serves, of any refusal of admission to any applicant. On the contrary the society deprecates the fact that, with its dues so pitifully low and the doors open to any who care to come, the membership should be so small. It is at present rather less than 500, when it ought to be treble that number, and would be if the Lowell public took the required degree of interest.

With what revenues it now has from membership and occasionally letting the rooms, the association maintains a very precarious existence. It has nearly paid for the house; it manages to heat it, light it, provide a caretaker and telephone, make minor repairs, give a few exhibitions every winter (in itself an expensive thing by the way) and secure, largely through charitable speakers who talk for love alone, a series of lectures. To such entertainments all members who have paid their dollar are welcome, free of further payment; and any one of the general public may visit the house at any such time, at exhibitions, entertainments and all, on payment of the nominal fee of a quarter. But unless many hundreds more people take insufficient interest to join and thus increase the amount the society has "to do with," the present activities of the association are all that can be afforded. The lack is both of members and money. "Exclusiveness," however, is not among the association's sins.

We speak as an officer of the society from its beginning; are most anxious to do the things the "Man in the Moon" wants us to do. We want to have the society stimulate a love for artistic things, and afford instruction in artistic works, for the public of the city. We simply cannot do it, however, when people stand aloof and refer to our unlimited membership and its pathetically small annual dues as an example of "exclusiveness." Many of us have gone deeper into our pockets than we like to think to give the society even such possessions and activities as it now enjoys—and the slow appreciation of the possibilities, on the part of others, has often been a source of genuine discouragement. We use what little money we have to do what little we can; and by great parsimony are usually able to make both ends nearly meet.

Our need is of cordial cooperation, wider interest, new blood, encouragement to do the very things you so truly say we ought to do. At present, when we do open a new exhibition, we can scarcely afford to advertise it publicly. Lessons in drawing and painting are far beyond our financial power. The accumulation of works of art for a small local museum is farther still beyond our reach. Yet

The surest way to stop a cold is to loosen the liver and cleanse the bowels, and the nicest cathartic to do this is a 10-cent box of Cascarets. Take one or two. Cascarets tonight and your cold may be gone by morning.

all these things might be added unto us if only the Lowell people would cordially join hands with us and help, laying aside any fear of exclusiveness. To permit any such movement to lapse into a mere pink-tea affair would be, indeed, a pity—and nothing is farther from our wish, who have sought to create and keep alive this institution.

Lincoln Day

I met my friend, the poet, who appeared to have something on his mind he wished to unload, yet did not know how to begin doing it. Thinking that perhaps he needed only a little encouragement, I proceeded to draw him out until at last he poured out the news that he had thrown together a few lines in commemoration of Lincoln and wondered whether it would be a sacrifice to have them printed. The responsibility was too much for me, and so I shifted it to the shoulders of the gentle editor of The Sun who, if he prints the lines, I know they must be all right.

LINCOLN

He sought amid these lowly scenes
To rise, and felt within his soul

How much that knowledge paved the way
To fields of larger usefulness
O golden youth to the war-torn
O strong boy of the Sangamon
To barter it for pleasure's sake
And idle hours and vapid dreams!
How wide the varied store that came
From simple sources and haphazard means!
But God led on as though 't was then
He'd found within the wilderness
A heart of gold, strong, undecayed
Fit to atone a nation's crime
And strike the chains of Slavery!

Lowell Coke is the Satisfactory Fuel

Lowell Coke is good coke.

The quality of coke depends on the making—and Lowell Coke is made by the most modern processes.

The coal we use costs 15 per cent. more than the coal used by the makers of ordinary coke—our gas making plant demands it.

Our improved equipment takes out all impurities and leaves coke with a higher percentage of carbon than any other.

Lowell Coke is practically 90 per cent. pure carbon—only 2 per cent. volatile matter necessary for kindling.

The Lowell Gas Light Company employs three chemists to see that Lowell Coke is kept up to a certain standard.

Let us send our coke specialist to show you how to use Lowell Coke. You will understand then why all your neighbors are using it.

It will keep a hot even fire for over 12 hours and you will save at least 25 cents on every dollar of your fuel bill.

Little bother—few ashes; dust-clinkers, none.

A ton for $5.90 from any coal dealer or

December 18, 1914.

Lowell Gas Light Co., Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen: Being somewhat doubtful that Lowell Coke would really save so much as some claim, I have kept close account of what it cost me and find I get the same heat for nearly one-fourth less money.

Am free to recommend it to all. Have no trouble in keeping fire every night and it doesn't harm the grate in the slightest.

BOARD OF TRADE ANNIVERSARY

Very timely and very inspiring were the three messages delivered to the Lowell public through the instrumentality of the local board of trade on the occasion of its twenty-fifth anniversary. Different in their subject matter and different too in their treatment, all the addresses dealt with problems which are agitating the public life of this country at the present time and all three aimed at bringing about such a settlement of world-wide or domestic difficulties as will help our great country to become what it is in a position to become in the near future—the greatest moral as well as the greatest commercial power in the congress of nations. In none of the speeches was there a display of political pettiness or personal bitterness against any interest or party; all the speakers ignored superficial things and got down to the basic principles underlying the right and the wrong of the subject dealt with. In this we might imitate them with profit at this time which calls for the earnest and unbiased co-operation of all our people.

In dealing with the subject of "International Affairs and the European War," Mr. Hamilton Holt of New York showed in the masterly fashion of the expert, the eloquent manner of the enthusiast and the earnest manner of the idealist the terrible fallacy of war as a means of settling international disputes. He touched a deep human chord in his reiteration of the commandment: "Thou shalt not kill" as the first argument against it, but he afterwards arrayed his economic arguments in such solid and convincing ranks that the folly of the shocking sacrifice was brought home to the five hundred present. Terrible was the picture he drew of slaughtered millions, of crushed women and children, of ruined industries, of the janitorial disregard for human life and property in this war which, in money alone, will cost at least ten thousand millions and may cost one hundred thousand millions. Terrible too was the picture he drew of the sequel with the bruised nations striving to regain what they all had lost—for he showed well that even the winners must lose far more than they can hope to gain.

Mr. Holt made a timely application of the principles of peace to this country by attacking the contentions of those who would seize upon the present conflict as a pretext for imposing militarist burdens on the American public and he showed how the success of such an agitation would put back the great peace movement which he is helping to advance. He also showed how, even in the midst of the present war, the cause of universal peace has become strong and how there is hope that following the struggle the nations may seek some great federation ideal, founded on a universal law, for the settlement of their future differences. That the peace ideal is not the dream of a visionary but a sensible growth of modern thought became impressed on all who were fortunate in hearing the great peace address of our distinguished visitor.

Filled with optimism and inspiration, too, were the respective addresses of Mr. A. W. Douglas of St. Louis and Hon. John N. Cole, former speaker of the Massachusetts legislature. Mr. Douglas spoke as one who had personal knowledge of his subject and he wisely told how those who look to the dark side of the picture injure their own best interests. His outlook on most of the great industries of the country was most encouraging and his sketch of the great government and private enterprises to boom prosperity was a prediction of good things ahead. In his predictions for the south and west he intimated that New England will have to give more attention to business than to politics if it would keep the supremacy it has gained with such labor.

Dealing with the transportation and taxation problems, Mr. Cole showed the business men of Lowell in what they might start intelligent agitations to help Massachusetts business. He proves in his present activities that we are in a constructive as well as a productive era and that America is getting ready for the dawn of unprecedented prosperity. If with American prosperity comes lasting peace all over the world we who see it may feel sure that we have lived in the most blessed age in the history of this weary old earth.

OUR FLAG IN WAR

Developments following each other in rapid succession have created a situation which this country cannot longer ignore, with regard to the rights of the American flag as the flag of the greatest neutral power during the war. This situation the government recognizes and has indicated its intention of settling by prompt appeals to both the German and English governments. In the potential results of recent proclamations and incidents for which both England and Germany are responsible, our flag would be menaced and all that it stands for might be ignored and humiliated. Putting aside emotion and jingoism and approaching the subject in a sane and dispassionate spirit, there are a few points that call for immediate correction, if we are not to run grave risks in the next few weeks or months.

In the first place, America will not and cannot submit to the insinuation that Germany may not respect the rights of neutral powers, for any deliberate disregard of our unquestionable trade rights would be followed by a great uprising of American public opinion. While the Stars and Stripes stands for America and while it is a symbol of this country on merchant vessels, the German nation or at least the German government must answer to America for any insult or injury. It will not do for Germany to shoot first and investigate afterwards, unless England should make the protection of our flag negative by a misuse of it.

This brings us naturally to the second point. In the past belligerent nations freely used the flags of neutrals as a method of deception of the enemy, and England permitted a like use of her own flag. That, however, was before the days of submarine blockades which impose altogether new conditions on all vessels. A submarine cannot determine the real character of a vessel in trade waters and must be guided almost wholly by the flag. Under these circumstances, precedent seems useless and the plain obligation remains for England to use only her own flags. Surely our government cannot permit a misuse of the American flag which might easily lead us into war. There is one way out of this difficulty so far as this country is concerned and that is that whenever during the war, the Stars and Stripes is seen on the seas, it shall honestly stand for the United States of America. There is no time to delay parleys for an international agreement on this most important matter. The Lusitania incident following so closely on the German proclamation of a war zone gives this government two phases of danger to American shipping that call for immediate settlement. While respecting the rights of the warring nations, we must not sacrifice rights of our own which are very manifestly threatened. The Lusitania incident puts England in such a bad light that it is difficult to believe that the admiralty authorized the use of the American flag as alleged. What the admiralty might be expected to do under such circumstances would be to provide an escort of cruisers or battleships for the ocean liner. That is what the fleet has been doing since the opening of the war and surely there were enough cruisers available for the purpose. The British admiralty cannot afford to be represented as resorting to any feeble subterfuge for the protection of British shipping.

CAUSE OF HUMANITY

Awful and horrible as are many pictures of the war, there are sides which are by no means sordid. Nay, there are aspects of the conflict which reflect more grandeur and more noble nobility than all the glamor of ages of olden romance. Foremost among these is the spirit of absolute sacrifice with which so many splendid thousands of all nations go out smilingly to give their lives for their country. Where in all history is there a grander picture than that of the thousands of England's best youths, many of them of noble blood, going out bravely, smilingly, unquestionably to almost certain slaughter? Or when was there a more inspiring tale than that of the German sailors in the Pacific who refused to be saved and sent out cheer after cheer as the waves closed in on their gallant and doomed band? So, too, of France, of Austria, of Russia—of them all. At the call of their country men are not afraid to die. Still, the greater love of all—the laying down of life for a friend—is in full bloom in an age of wonders.

It has been often asserted in recent times that war must fall owing to the deadly perfection of modern invention—the Zeppelin, the submarine, the guns below which forts crumble like a castle of cards. War may fall, may God that it will—but not from this. Death may come silently from under the sea or it may fall in fiery rain from the clouds but soldiers go out to meet it. Shrapnel may devastate the soldier-filled battlefield, pouring like water from a hose, but for every hundred who fall in huddled heaps, a hundred more will rush out cheering to join their comrades. Could only some appeal of peace draw forth this spirit how would the world gain! Could only some blessed federation spare these noble millions to their countries, their families, their homes! It is a wonderful and a thrilling thing to see the laughing soldiers going down to a cruel death while the women of England, of France, or Germany and of Russia sit at home and weep.

It is all wrong this sacrifice of humanity to advance the lust for empire on the part of any ruler. The people should have something to say about the declaration of war as it is they who have to fight the battles. Who can tell but that the present terrible war is the price the world must pay for the establishment of government by the people the world over. It is time the great rulers realized that humanity is bigger than any nation and that in every nation the sovereign power should rest not in a despot or an ambitious ruler but in the majority of the people.

GRADE CROSSINGS

A bill now before the New Hampshire legislature would require all drivers of automobiles to stop at grade crossings and "look and listen" before crossing. There is also a movement to have the proposed law apply to the drivers of horse-drawn vehicles. Whatever they may think of it in New Hampshire the idea is not attracting favorable attention in Massachusetts where the crossings are so many and the traffic heavy. It is apparent that any law which would impose so many obligations of the kind in a day's journey would be speedily disregarded and in the way of all disregarded or discarded laws would take the situation worse instead of better. As an agitation to create public sentiment in favor of more general caution the idea is to be commended; as a law, it would be futile. Still, no agitation, movement or law should blind the people to the fundamental necessity for the abolition of the crossings which are primitive, dangerous, and a waste of time.

HE HAD HIS REASON

Little Everett was a member of the Band of Mercy society and was proud of the membership. He wore his badge, a small star, as if it were a policeman's insignia, and was often heard reproving other boys and girls for cruel treatment of dogs and cats. One morning a woman of the neighborhood heard a commotion outside Everett's home, and going to the window was surprised to find Everett in the act of tormenting the cat.

"Why, Everett," she called, "what are you doing to that poor cat?"

"I did," replied the little boy, "but I lost my star."

"Please read me the poem you're reading, mother," begged the little boy sweetly.

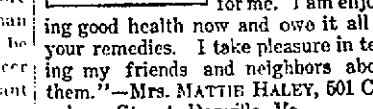

"But I'm afraid it's too old for you, dear," his mother answered. "I'm afraid you wouldn't be able to understand it."

"Oh, yes, I would," was the calm answer.

gerous, unlovely and altogether undesirable.

In Germany the government has taken over the control and distribution of all the wheat supply to prevent waste and hunger and also prevent the exploiting of the poor by the speculators. In this country the government has gone out of its way to help the farmers get rid of their prolific crop, but the results have been very different. Germany, which is at war and enduring its hardships, will have its wheat supply controlled equitably and economically. We are liable to have all manner of unjust hoarding of prices and nothing short of heartless extortion. What is the moral? Not that we need government ownership, but either more genuine justice and patriotism in business or more vigilance at Washington.

Republicans in the senate have decided that the best test of the shipping bill is physical endurance, and the American public is treated to a spectacle that no other country on earth would tolerate. Cannonism had its evils but who can find arguments in defence of the principle of the filibuster?

Interest in the question of whether Roumania will go into the war or not has been revived by the story that Germany and Austria have offered a large loan to Bulgaria. All eyes in the Balkan states have been on Bulgaria and her future action may influence Greece, Italy and Roumania.

Keep the Children Bright and Happy

Happy youngsters must be healthy. The digestive organs of children get out of order as readily as do those of their elders, and the result is equally distressing. When the bowels are clogged with an accumulation of refuse from the stomach the child naturally becomes cross and fretful from the discomfort, and is often punished for temper when medical attention is really what is needed.

The next time your child is cross and unhappy, without apparent reason, try giving it a mild laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild, pleasant-tasting combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and is especially recommended for children because of its freedom from all opiate or narcotic drugs and its gentle action. It is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

And crushes the roses wild and sweet, I feel his shoulders heave and swell And ever I shout as closer cling, Away in that hazardous balancing, Away with hazard and glory, too, I do the thing I would dare to do.

Hurray, hurray, hurray! I leave the yelling village behind like a mongrel-feathered pack They know not how my mustang flies Nor the slant of his slapping back, They never felt the breeze like the sea flaming through and through, And I laugh as they struggle out behind, hurray, hurray, hurray!

Hurray, hurray, hurray! I show my heels to you. For you must ride on a willow steed And ever I pack him like a lead. For it's far we ride and mad we ride And never was mustang closer clung Than you must cling to his perilous side. Away with hazard and glory, too, I do the thing I would dare to do, Hurray, hurray, hurray!

The wind has whistled the way to death and I have laughed to hear, When the wheeling prairie reels beneath, there is no time for fear; I have felt the clean sun on my cheek, on my eyes the evening dew, And I like my mustang with my toes, hurray, hurray, hurray!

Hurray, hurray, hurray! I show my heels to you. I hear the foam dash and hiss, His feathered arrow tipped with pain, I shout as I swing to my pin's pace, And mad he trembles to my embrace, We fly to the goal like the summer breeze, I ride for the hazard and glory, too, I do the thing that you dare not to. Hurray, hurray, hurray!

EDITORIAL COMMENT

NO PARTISANSHIP

It is surprising indeed to read that the department of justice at Washington has decided that the proceedings are not warranted by the evidence of vote-buying, use of repeaters, padding of registration lists, and like crime against elections, in the "Canebrake" district. At least the prosecutions for a part of the same operations across the river in Indiana show that partisanship is not controlling the department—Worcester Post.

SERVIA'S HARD FATE

Austria and Germany are said to be massing 100,000 men for the invasion of Servia. It must be a very discouraging to be a Servian. First he has to lick a fellow two or three times his size and get himself much reduced in the process. Then he has to confront his defeated opponent coming back twice as big as before. And if he ever has a chance to catch his breath and look around he can see a big, charitable people concentrating their energies upon forgetting him while they care for the cleaner and more picturesque Belgians.—Harford Times.

COMPLEX CAUSES

The fundamental causes of high prices and the increased cost of living are as perplexing to the men of big affairs as they are to the man who works for a day's pay. If there is any doubt on this point let the skeptical read the opinions of the men who have testified before the congressional committee that is conducting an investigation. At least the men, however experienced agree in hardly any particular. Each has his pet theory or prejudice. The truth doubtless is that causes are so complex that it is impossible to separate them or lay a preponderance of blame on any one thing.—Bristol Press.

POOR HORN

Van Horn, the bridge dynamiter, it might be supposed, would feel somewhat disappointed and chagrined over the lack of interest the German official authorities either at Berlin or at the embassy at Washington are apparently taking in him. So far as anything has yet developed, they have manifested no desire to concern themselves about him or to compromise themselves with his exploit, in which event his bid for notoriety is likely to prove very profitable to him.—Fall River Globe.

OSTRICH LIKE PERFORMANCE

We should say that this time the Germans can chuckle for they have the picture of a scared English merchant marine. They have also proved their case that the English merchantmen are ready to use a neutral flag. It is pretty well known that the Germans have used neutral flags, even the Stars and Stripes for their ships, laying mines or carrying supplies for submarines. But they have not been caught in such an astonishing performance as floating old Glory over one of the most beautiful ships in existence. The English admiralty will later explain why it counselled such an act on the part of Capt. Dow.—Holyoke Transcript.

SENATOR LAWRENCE Y. SHERMAN

Republicans in Illinois already are talking of United States Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, of whom this is a new picture, for the republican nomination for president in 1916. Senator Sherman is fifty-six years old. He had been a member of the Illinois state house of representatives, speaker of that body and lieutenant-governor when he was elected in 1913 to complete the Lorimer term. Last fall he defeated Roger Sullivan, and he is in the national senate until March 4, 1921.

ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD

Rev. Joseph A. Malone a Former Resident of Lowell Ordained at Mt. St. Mary's College

At the chapel of Mt. St. Mary's college, at Emmitsburg, Md., this morning, in the presence of a large gathering of distinguished clergymen, the college students and seminarians, and friends, Rev. Joseph A. Malone, formerly of this city was ordained to the priesthood by Right Rev. Edward P. Allen, D. D., bishop of Mobile, Ala.

REV. JOSEPH A. MALONE

and after a visit to this city he will take up his clerical duties in the Mobile diocese.

Fr. Malone has had an unusual career and is one of the very few priests of the Catholic church who have received the sacrament of matrimony prior to that of holy orders. Fr. Malone is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and after attending the elementary schools of that city entered Mt. St. Mary's college where he pursued the classical course, graduating with honors in the class of 1913. At that time Bishop Allen was president of Mt. St. Mary's college, and Fr. Malone is a cousin of the bishop. After leaving college Fr. Malone came to Lowell and for a time was employed as a bookkeeper by the late Richard H. Allen, of this city, a brother of Bishop Allen. After acquiring a legal residence in this city he passed the civil service examinations and received an appointment as a temporary clerk in the assessors' office at city hall, a position which in those days lasted for several months each year. He was also employed as a reporter on The Sun staff. After the elevation of Bishop Allen to the see of Mobile, Alabama, Fr. Malone went to Mobile and became a teacher in the McGill preparatory school of that city, a position which he filled with credit up to the time of entering the seminary. Several years ago, after his departure from Lowell, he married, his wife being a member of a prominent Catholic family of St. Louis. After a brief but happy married life his wife died. He continued as a teacher in Mobile until four years ago when he entered the seminary at Mt. St. Mary's to pursue his theological studies. He received minor orders last September, was made deacon a few months ago and his ordination took place this morning. Assisting at the ordination was his younger brother, Rev. Aloysius S. Malone, of Newton, Mass. Among those present at today's ceremony were Miss Lizzie Allen and Mr. Henry J. O'Brien, of this city. Fr. Malone has many relatives in this city, including the Allen family of Rogers street, Dr. William P. Lawler, and the family of the late James W. Cassidy. He will sing his first mass at Mt. St. Mary's tomorrow.

'A PERFECT MAN'

Karl Lemle, the Bohemian "Perfect Man," who will do battle with Eric Arvidson in one of the big events at the Crescent rink Friday night, is one of the new foreign wrestlers who have visited this country in recent years who has not depended upon extra weight to win his mat battles. Although usually referred to as being big, Lemle is between 210 and 215 at his best, but is so symmetrical in his development that he looks even heavier.

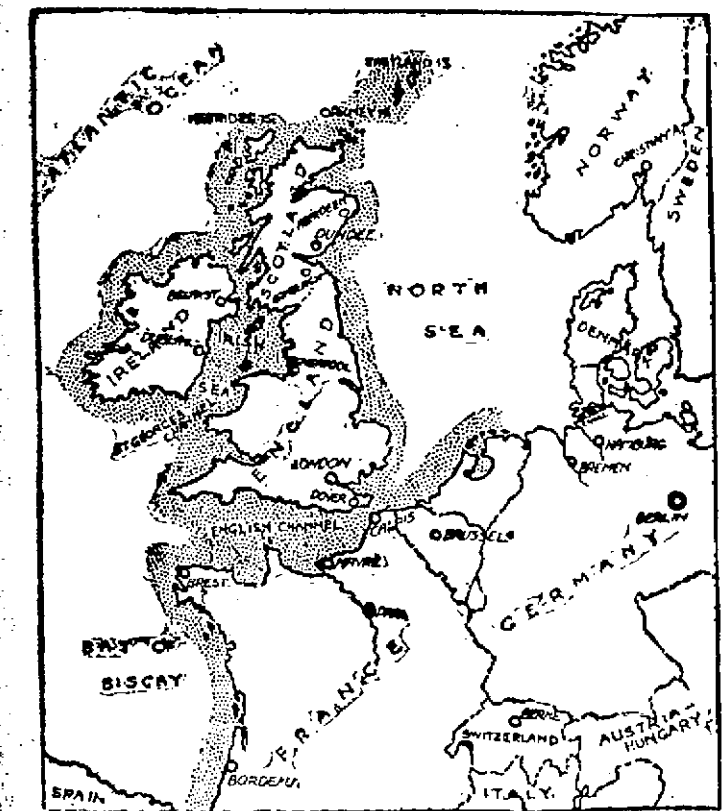

Lemle, although one of the most powerful men in the world in downright strength, declares that power alone is dangerous for a wrestler to depend on. He banks on his knowledge of the laws of leverage as used in wrestling and believes that if he can keep the other fellow even the slightest of a fraction of an inch off his center of gravity that the latter's power is minimized and thus placed in a position where he is in danger of being toppled over.

Few foreign wrestlers can tie up an opponent in the same manner as Lemle, who uses feet and hands with equal facility. Much of his success against American wrestlers he attributes to this fact.

MAP OF WAR ZONE DECLARED BY GERMANY AROUND ENGLAND

The shaded portion of the map shows the new naval war zone declared by Germany, beginning Feb. 18. Germany serves notice on the world that she will endeavor to enforce an effective blockade around England and along the French coast by mines and submarines and that neutral ships may be in danger. Neutral ships are warned to keep out of this zone or enter it at their own risk. The flying of neutral flags, particularly the American flag, by English ships to fool German submarines, places actual American ships in greater danger.

Fine Combination of Music and Comedy Enjoyed by Packed House—Old Timers Come Back

The Elks' minstrel show at Keith's theatre last evening proved to be one of the most successful events ever conducted by the lodge. It was the original intention of the lodge to run a charity ball but being unable to get a date before Lent it was decided to hold a minstrel show instead. The minstrel show was a happy thought for it netted the charity fund much more money than a charity ball would have produced, while it furnished a good time for the largest audience that ever attended the popular vaudeville house.

Many skeptical Elks said to their friends before the show: "There'll be a lot of fun anyway; you know they're only amateurs," really expecting that the show would be "runk" and they were mightily surprised to find a really clever amateur performance with some features that equal the best in the professional line.

To Warren Churchill, the patient and untiring musical director, should be handed the laurel for presenting so much performance out of such rough-hewn material. Every member who took part was an Elks, most of them busy business men, who'd promise to attend a rehearsal and then attend it, perhaps. Some of them could sing like so many Carusos when they were around but got tongue-tied when a rehearsal was held. As little Arthur Cull, the baby of Lowell lodge, remarked when at rehearsal Sunday, he discovered that he was singing his head off while Frank Maloney and Billy Mahan were "cheating." What is this one-man show? By coaxing the other two into the act, they got that chorus into shape and last night they gave a very creditable performance to the delight of a crowded house. It might be stated right here that as good luck would have it, the professional bill was one of the best seen at Keith's this season, so that there were three hours and a half of uninterrupted fun.

When the curtain went up the audience applauded the natty scene presented. There was the big semi-circle of white faced, dress-suited singers with a few "Webster" 100s, who made no introduction as an amateur actor and comedian in the center and six merry black faced end-men fear-

JACKSON, MISS. MAN

Tells How to Cure Chronic Cough Jackson, Miss.—"I am a carpenter, and the grippe left me with a chronic cough, run-down, worn out and weak. I took all kinds of cough syrups without help. I read about Vinol and decided to try it. Before I had taken a bottle I felt better and after taking two bottles my cough is entirely cured, and I have gained new vim and energy."—JOHN L. DENNIS.

Vinol is a delicious cod liver and iron tonic, guaranteed for coughs, colds and bronchitis and for all weak, run-down conditions.

SLEEPYTIME TALES

BY VIRGINIA VALE
FOR THE LITTLE READERS OF THE SUN

DANDY'S NEW TRICK

Once upon a time Frank thought he had taught his pony Dandy all the tricks possible and yet he wanted to teach him at least one more. "Father," said Frank, "what can I teach Dandy to do now?" "Well," said his father, "I wish you could teach him to get my mail from the box. I don't like to get it myself." He laughed as he said it, never imagining Frank would think he meant it.

"All right, Father, in a few days you will have a new mail carrier. I hope he will be satisfactory," was Frank's response.

All that day Frank kept leading Dandy to the mail box out by the roadway, showing him letters and papers and trying to teach him to lift up the lid and take them out but Dandy somehow didn't seem to understand. After several days of hard work with him Frank put a piece of an apple in the box and when Dandy went there he lifted up the lid, saw the apple and began to eat it but Frank was right there, took it away and put the letters and papers in his mouth.

At last Dandy seemed to understand and he went trotting up to the house with the mail in his mouth.

Frank's father was eating his breakfast when he heard a noise at the window and as he looked up, there stood the pony with the mail and Frank just behind him with a broad smile on his face.

"Well, well," said his father, "you did it after all, didn't you Dandy?" and he reached out and took the mail, at the same time giving the pony a lump of sugar.

Now Dandy brings the mail each morning but won't let go of it until he sees his piece of sugar in Frank's father's hand. Then he will let go of the mail and trot back to his stall in the barn.

Frank's father tells him that he thinks it is more work to get the sugar for Dandy than it is to get the mail himself, but he never forgets to have the sugar ready, and Frank says he thinks his father is just as proud of Dandy as he is himself and I think Frank is right.

HOW SHE ENDED
TEN YEARS OF SKIN TORTURE

Oct. 28, 1914.—"I had eczema on my face for ten years. Little red pimples formed in a small spot on my chin and then spread all over my face. They itched and burned me awfully. It was certainly embarrassing to me, and I would not go amongst people. I tried almost every remedy and treatment that could be used for this trouble, but nothing did me any good. I used Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and was relieved in a day or two. In one month I was cured. This was six months ago and the trouble has never returned."—(Signed) Mrs. C. C. Roberts, Weatherford, Okla.

Bill Introduced Would Make the Labor Laws
More Elastic

As a result of a conference between the governor and the advisory council of the state board of labor and industries a bill of vital importance to the textile industry and workers of Massachusetts has been introduced into the legislative committee on labor at the state house yesterday. The bill was heartily supported by the manufacturers and bitterly opposed by the labor interests.

At the time of the conference referred to, Gov. Walsh said it had been suggested to him that the labor laws are too inflexible and should be made more elastic to fit emergencies like the present one caused by the European war. Representatives of textile manufacturers said that Massachusetts is a textile state and that the labor laws prevent the women employees from working in the mills after 6 o'clock at night. The manufacturers said that the mills had been idle or running on part time for several weeks because of the law. They said the money and would be glad to get emergency work. They did not advocate working the women any longer hours, but employing two shifts, one to work until midnight.

The bill proposes to amend the law forbidding the employment of women in textile mills after 6 o'clock in the evening so as to read as follows: "No person, or no agent or officer of a person or corporation, shall employ a woman or minor in any capacity for the purpose of manufacturing or processing goods, or in any department of textile goods, shall employ a woman or a minor before 6 o'clock in the evening, except in case of extraordinary emergency when the board of labor and industries shall determine the case of extraordinary emergency within the meaning of this section, and no work shall be performed until a certificate shall be issued by said board certifying that such emergency exists and is authorized. A copy of such certificate shall be properly filed in the office of said board and shall be open to the inspection of any interested person, or the representatives of any person. Whoever violates the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty dollars, nor more than fifty dollars, for each offense."

ATTACKS UNITED STATES MAN IN BERLIN THEATRE BEGAN
LOUD TIRADE FOR PERMITTING
THE EXPORTATION OF ARMS

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—Wille Ambassador Gerard and a party from the American embassy were attending a theatre last night they were greatly annoyed by a man in the audience who protested because they were speaking English. When this man was informed that his remarks were directed against the American ambassador he began a loud tirade against the United States for permitting the exportation of arms.

COMERY SENTENCED TO BE HANGED FOR MURDER

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 10.—Joseph J. Comery was last night sentenced to be hanged in the state prison at Concord on Feb. 18, 1916, for the murder of his wife.

The jury was out just an hour.

On the count being informed that a verdict had been reached, the prisoner was sent for. He made his appearance, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff George H. Phinney, superintendent of the county jail, and was extremely pale.

The jury filed in and the members were asked if they had reached a verdict. Foreman George S. S. Hall answered in the affirmative.

"What is your verdict, death or imprisonment for life?" asked the clerk.

"Death," was the answer.

County Solicitor P. H. Sullivan moved that sentence be imposed.

Attorney Ashton Thorpe, appearing for the respondent, addressed the court and stated that it was the desire of the counsel for the prisoner to take the case to the supreme court on exceptions.

The court replied that it would impose sentence at this time and in doing so, would not in any way jeopardize the rights of the prisoner, but would aid in every way in the preparation of the sentence at this time matters might be expedited.

The court asked the prisoner if he desired to say anything and give any reason why sentence of death should not be pronounced on him.

Comery arose and said in a clear, low tone, but without a tremor: "I only wish to say that I desire the case taken to the supreme court."

"This right will not be denied you," said Judge Branch, who was associated with Judge Kivel on the bench.

The court then imposed sentence and dismissed the jury.

Attorney Thorpe said that he rested his appeal to the supreme court on the ground that the prisoner, having pleaded guilty and asked for sentence and the court having accepted the plea, should have imposed sentence and not impeached a jury and forced a trial. The point is one that has never before been raised in New Hampshire.

The final arguments to the jury were made by Atty. Gen. James P. Tuttle and by Attorney Thorpe.

Comery's sentence is the first time the death penalty has been imposed in New Hampshire in nearly a quarter of a century.

The last execution in this state was that of Frank Army on May 16, 1835, for the murder of Christie Warden of Hanover.

It was charged that Comery poisoned his wife because of his alleged relations with a schoolgirl.

During the day the jury listened to the testimony of the mother of the girl, the physician who attended Mrs. Comery, Amanda Allard, a neighbor who was present when she died, the police and medical authorities.

SOME OF KITCHENER'S MILLION IN FRANCE; ENGLAND RUSHING TROOPS ACROSS CHANNEL

ENGLISH TROOPS ON THE MARCH AND IN CAMP IN NORTHWESTERN FRANCE

England is said to be gradually sending Kitchener's million to France. It is reported that by the end of March England will have an army of 700,000 in the field, and this will be well to 1,000,000 by the end of April. When spring comes it is taken for granted in official circles in England that the Germans will try desperately to reach Dunkirk and Calais. It is to frustrate this drive that the men are now being rushed to the front. The pictures show some of the new British troops in the war zone.

SEC. TUMULTU WITNESS IN THE SULLIVAN CASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, and Rep. James A. Hamill of New Jersey were witnesses yesterday at the investigation into charges against James M. Sullivan, minister to the Dominican republic. Hearings here were concluded last night, but Special Commissioner Phelan will later examine witnesses in the Dominican republic.

Tumulty testified that Hamill introduced Sullivan to him and that he "simply acted as a medium for transmitting the endorsements of Sullivan to the secretary of state." He said he knew of no "cloud of debts" which were presented as an argument against appointing Sullivan. He had heard of personal debts which it was claimed Sullivan owed, but asserted "that it is a usual thing in candidates for office."

The only real argument presented against Sullivan, Tumulty said, was his connection with the Becker trial as counsel for Jack Rose, and a letter from the then Dist. Atty. Whitman disapproved that.

Tumulty declared that he never knew of any connection between Sullivan prior to his appointment and the Jarvis interests in New York. W. C. Beer, John G. Gray or any other representative of the Jarvis interests, he had been an intimate friend of Sullivan and gave him his support as a friend.

Hamill told the commissioner he had never discussed Sullivan's candidacy for the Dominican post with W. C. Beer, John G. Gray or any other representative of the Jarvis interests. He had been an intimate friend of Sullivan and gave him his support as a friend.

Hamill told of a debt of $500 or $600 which Sullivan paid to Bishop Broderick in Pittsfield, Mass., while his nomination was pending before the state committee. Bishop Broderick, he explained, withdrew a protest against Sullivan's nomination after the debt was paid.

EXECUTED BY GERMANS PISTOL SHOT WENT WILD

LIEUT. COL. MARITZ, HEAD OF REVOLUTION IN SO. AFRICA, HAS BEEN PUT TO DEATH

PRETORIA, S. A., Feb. 10.—Certain newspapers of Pretoria have published a report that Lieutenant Colonel S. G. Maritz, the Boer officer who has been at the head of the rebellious movement in South Africa, has been executed by the Germans for treachery.

Maritz's movement was supported by the Germans of German Southwest Africa. There is yet no official confirmation of this report.

THAT STATE OF LINCOLN

LONG, LA FOLLETTE MAY BE FIRST GOVERNOR OF NEW COMMONWEALTH

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM LA FOLLETTE

This is Congressman Wm. La Follette, cousin of Senator Robert M. La Follette, representing the section of the state of Washington which in time will be the principal part of the proposed state of Lincoln. It would compose most of eastern Washington, the Panhandle of northern Idaho and a part of western Montana, making a large area and a population of over 1,000,000 to start with. Mr. La Follette went west from Indiana nearly 40 years ago at the age of 18. He had to pawn his watch on the way. Today he is called "the fruit king of the inland empire." Will he be the first governor of the state of Lincoln?

Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst has become a member of the advisory council of the Congressional Suffrage union. It is figured out that $3.53 a week is the least amount that will maintain a self supporting woman in health and efficiency in Philadelphia.

WOMAN IN BELVIDERE HAD NARROW ESCAPE—BULLET FIRED BY GANG

While sitting in the dining room of her home at 189 Pleasant street about 8 o'clock Monday evening, Mrs. Patrick J. Clark, 40, three children and Mrs. George Houle, who resides downstairs were nearly thrown into hysterics by the sound of a rifle or pistol shot which seemed to be fired very near the house, and the crashing of glass in one of the windows of the house near which Mrs. Houle was sitting in a rocking chair. The bullet crashed through the glass about a foot over Mrs. Houle's head, and lost itself somewhere, but just where, nobody seems to know, not even the police who were detailed to the scene a short while after the shot was fired.

The shot was fired it is said by one of a gang of youths who congregate at the corner of Concord and Rogers streets nightly, and although several people who live in that vicinity and who heard the report have intimated that they knew who fired the revolver they refuse absolutely to divulge the youth's name.

It is believed that a can was placed on one of the pickets of a fence surrounding Cawley's pipe yard, to be used as a target by the youth with the pistol. The pipe yard is directly in the rear of the Clark residence.

Mr. Clark was in the house at the time and was working about the cellar when he heard the report. Rushing upstairs he found his wife, children and Mrs. Houle in a state of excitement and after ascertaining the cause, he immediately telephoned to the police station.

Chief of Police L. C. Connors were immediately detailed to the scene but after spending some time investigating about the premises and questioning several people in the vicinity, they were unable to obtain any clue as to who did the shooting.

Had the bullet struck but a foot lower it would have probably resulted fatally for Mrs. Houle, and she has not recovered from the effects of the shock as yet.

About 10 o'clock the same evening three more shots were heard by residents of the vicinity, and although the police were around about that time they were unable to find out who used the revolvers.

This gang has been a nuisance to the neighborhood for some time and the people in the vicinity object to it not only because of the noise and the obstruction of the sidewalk, but because it is a sort of school for freight jumpers.

CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The sundry civil appropriation bill was again before the house for consideration today. It was up for debate and included an appropriation of $3,000,000 for a physical valuation of the railroads of the country. It also included opposition to the proposed appropriation was responsible for an abrupt adjournment of the house last night.

DOUBLE MURDER LITTLE LOST BOY COUNT BONI LOST

Police Try to Solve Mystery of Murder of Pastor and Housekeeper

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 10.—With apparently little tangible to work on the police today continued their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the murder of Rev. Joseph Zebry, pastor of St. Andrew's, Lithuanian, Roman Catholic church, and his housekeeper, Miss Iva Gilmanitis. The bodies of the priest and his housekeeper were found in the rectory yesterday when neighbors investigated the non-appearance of the clergyman for mass and the preliminary inquiry by the coroner, has established the fact that the murders were committed Monday evening, probably between 7 and 11 o'clock.

The autopsy, begun by Dr. Philip De Buncie of Hartford last night under direction of Coroner Calhoun, was expected to be resumed today. So far as it has gone it shows that Father Zebry was shot four times in the body, two bullets entering over the heart, one in the side and one in the back. The housekeeper was strangled in her room in the attic apparently after a desperate struggle as indicated by the disorder of the room and her garments.

The police early today found a gold watch in a pocket of one of the coats of the slain priest. A gold-filled watch was also found in a cabinet and in another part of the house four gold-chased candlesticks and a valuable crucifix. The finding of these articles, the police think tends to show that while the house was ransacked, the search was not as thorough as appearances would indicate and lends strength to the theory that some other motive than robbery may have prompted the crimes.

IN POLICE COURT

Two delinquent husbands made their appearance before Judge Enright in police court this morning. In each case the wife went on to the witness stand and laid bare to the court the terrible existence led by a woman and family whose husband and father care more for liquor and barroom associates than for his home.

George E. Hanscom had very little to say in defense of his recent actions toward his wife and child. The woman related a sad tale to the court. Hanscom has not given his wife a penny toward the support of either herself or child for more than a year. During that time he has been a constant annoyance and lately has proved himself especially obnoxious.

The climax came the other day when he entered his wife's room, stole her gold watch, a much valued gift, and then took it to a pawn shop where he collected $1.50 on it.

The pawn ticket was restored to the wife this morning. Judge Enright sentenced Hanscom to a four months' term in the house of correction. As the prosecution was not ready to go on today the case was held over until next Wednesday.

Has Anybody in This City Lost a Pretty Laddie?

Supt. Welch received a letter today from the captain of the Philadelphia police, asking him for information leading to identification of a 4-year old calf.

Last September a little boy was found asleep on the steps of St. Patrick's cathedral in New York City. The child was turned over to one of the charitable institutions and since that time the authorities have been making vain efforts to locate its relatives.

Although the little fellow did not appear to know just who he was he said he thought his name either was McElroy or McLeary. Although dressed plainly when found the boy has every indication of having been very carefully brought up and it is the opinion of the police that he was kidnapped when quite young and then deserted by the kidnappers.

Sixth street seems to dwell in the burglar's brain as his home and the police are sending out circulars to every city in the country which has a Sixth street upon its map. Has anyone on Sixth street, Lowell, lost a four year old boy? If his picture was published perhaps there would be more than one claimant for he is just the sweetest little tot you ever saw.

Rota Tribunal Rejects Suit for Annulment of Marriage

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The Rota Tribunal has rejected Count Boni De Castellane's suit for the annulment of his marriage to Anna Gould, now the Duchess of Talland, according to a special despatch from Rome. Arguments in the third trial of the case were closed yesterday after which the court announced its decision.

Count De Castellane's appeal to the Vatican courts for the annulment of his marriage to Anna Gould has been pending since 1900. Under the ecclesiastical judicial system before a religious marriage is annulled the case must be heard three times by the Rota Tribunal, each time by three different judges, and two decisions must favor a contestant before the judgment is final. In the Castellane case the present Duchess of Talland has won two of these decisions.

If the court had been successful in obtaining annulment of the religious marriage he would have been enabled to marry again. Under the French law he would have obtained possession of their three children, who were given into the custody of their mother when she secured a divorce in the Paris courts in 1906.

De Castellane based his petition largely upon affidavits made by Prince Del Drago and Jean De Castellane, the count's brother, who declared the then Miss Gould invalid and the religious marriage void. De Castellane declared that after an hour before the ceremony was performed that she intended to divorce her husband. If ever he were proved unfaithful to her.

Anna Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould, was married to Count De Castellane in New York city on March 4, 1902. After her divorce from him she married Prince De Sagan on July 1, 1903, and became the Duchess of Talland when her husband succeeded to the title upon the death of his father in Paris, Feb. 21, 1910.

THE WARETTAS' DANCE

Lovers of dancing and music will be furnished a rare treat in Associate Hall next Friday night when the Waretas will hold their sixth annual dance. Miner's orchestra will furnish the music. The feature of the evening's entertainment will be "The Joke Dance," the tag of the south. It would be difficult to attempt to describe it. It really needs to be seen to be properly appreciated. See it at Associate hall next Friday evening.

TOBACCO HABIT EASILY CONQUERED

A New Yorker of wide experience, has written a book telling how the tobacco of snuff habit may be easily and completely banished in three days with delightful benefit. The author, Edward J. Woods, 1341 B. Station E, New York City, will mail his book free on request.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, mainly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported. Get rid of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigars, cigarette, snuff or chewing tobacco to pacify morbid desire.

LECTURES TO FARMERS

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT BILLERICA COURSE—HOW TO COOK CEREALS

With a larger attendance than on its opening day, the second day's sessions of the Agricultural Extension school were held yesterday in the town hall. The women's courses in the lower hall attracted the larger number though a good sized gathering of men were present at the afternoon session.

Following the lectures on the topics of the day many questions were asked the experts by different persons in the audience and all the speakers showed a good knowledge of farming and household necessities. At noon dinner was served.

"Feeding Dairy Cattle," was George P. Story's subject in the men's session yesterday. In the course of his lecture he said: "A cow requires 100 pounds of water each day. In the winter it is a good investment to heat the water as cattle do not like ice cold water. When the water is cold, they will not drink as much as they should and the milk yield will show it."

If farmers could grow alfalfa it would be an easier matter to cut down the grain bills. Cottonseed has become so cheap this winter that it is now profitable as a feed. Prices vary so that it is not possible to take any charted ration as a standard. What will be profitable one year may be quite unsatisfactory the next.

Lecture on "Soil Fertility" by Frank T. Haynes was very interesting. Miss Laura Comstock and Miss Harriet Hopkins were the speakers in the women's course while Mr. Story spoke on "Dairying From a Home Maker's Standpoint."

MOVING IN DIRECTION OF NEVO LAREDO, MEXICO, FROM THE SOUTH

LAREDO, Texas, Feb. 10.—Reports from Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, into last night say a large force of Villa troops is moving in the direction of that town from the south.

In response to a call for reinforcements sent from Nuevo Laredo on Jan. 3 four hundred Carranza soldiers are reported to have moved to Nuevo Laredo from Matamoros. The Villa troops are said to outnumber nearly two to one the Carranza forces in that vicinity.

GERMANS CHARGED 22 TIMES IN SINGLE DAY

Battle in Galicia Described as Without Precedent in History—
Tens of Thousands Killed

A battle which the Russian war office describes as without precedent in history has occurred in Galicia in the course of the campaign for mastery of the mountain region which screens northern Hungary from Russia. In a single day the German troops charged 22 times on a Russian position. They made their charges up a hill in the face of artillery fire. Twice they gained possession of the heights but, according to the Russian statement they were finally driven out with bayonets. The German losses are described as "extremely heavy." There is no information on this phase of the situation from German or Austrian sources.

Thousands Killed
In the recent attack of the Germans on the Warsaw front, the Russians' statement says their losses amounted to tens of thousands.

Russian Victory in Poland
Another Russian victory is said to have been gained in Poland, where the Germans attacked the Russian forces. The Petrograd war office asserts that the Petrograd war office asserts that

SPIRITUALISTS' MEETING MORE NEW MEMBERS

INTERCITY CONFERENCE AT THE CHURCH ON MIDDLESEX STREET
THIS AFTERNOON

With delegations present from many surrounding cities and towns, as well as a large local representation, the Inter-city mass meeting of the First Spiritualist church of this city opened at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the First church at the corner of Middlesex and Stevens streets. The program for the convention was carefully arranged by the local committee and considerable enthusiasm was shown as it was the first meeting of its kind held by Lowell Spiritualists in their new church.

Another service will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening. Between the meetings a supper will be served by the ladies' auxiliary.

The principal speakers today are Rev. F. A. Wiggin, pastor of the Unitarian church of Boston and president of the State Association of Spiritualists; Rev. Emma B. Smith, pastor of the First church of Haverhill and secretary of the state association; and Rev. Frederick Nicholson of Worcester. Besides a number of delegates, are in attendance.

In his address this afternoon Rev. Mr. Wiggin said he came to Lowell to stimulate the interest in spiritualism here. He said there are a whole lot of mediums in this city and intimated that they would soon be calling street corner meetings. "Mediumship was not developed for commercial purposes," he said. "Many women are doing mediumship because it is an easier way to earn a living than doing washings. It is much more honorable for women to take in washings than to attempt to fool people as mediums."

In closing, Mr. Wiggin scored the mediums who held Sunday evening parlor meetings in their homes, keeping the people away from their church. He also urged the local mediums to join the state association and also asked the members of the First church to call a meeting in the near future and take action on the question of becoming affiliated with the state organization.

Speaking of Billy Sunday, Mr. Wiggin said: "Over in Philadelphia there is a man telling the people what sinners they are. They sit and listen to him in thousands and when he is through they applaud him for calling them downcasts."

"There are people in Boston and vicinity foolish enough to want Sunday to come here and I believe that he will come in 1915. If he does, there will not be a hall in the city large enough to hold the thousands of curious people who will want to hear him tell them their faults and call them miserable."

Among the other speakers this afternoon was Miss Annie L. Jones of this city.

MATRIMONIAL

George F. Sheeley and Miss Edith I. Wallace were married this afternoon, the ceremony being performed at 3 o'clock at St. Peter's rectory by the pastor, Rev. Dr. D. J. Kelcher. The bridesmaid was Miss Jessie N. Wallace and Frank A. Mahoney was best man.

ALLIES BOMBARD ADRIANOPOLE FORTS

Passengers on Cunard Line Steamer
Orduna Say Vessel Flew U. S. Flag for Nearly 24 Hours

MITYLENE, Feb. 10.—Several English and French Zeppelins flew over Turkish Thrace yesterday, according to a despatch from Tenedos. Two of the machines went as far as Adrianople, dropping bombs on the forts. The Turks are said to have been unprepared for a bombardment as they did not expect allied aircraft to venture so far inland.

ANOTHER ENGLISH SHIP FLIES STARS AND STRIPES

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Passengers on the Cunard line steamer Orduna which arrived here today from England said that the steamer flew the American flag for nearly 24 hours on Jan. 31, while passing through the Irish sea. The Stars and Stripes, they declared, were hoisted on Sunday about an hour after the Orduna left Liverpool and floated over the English steamer until early Monday morning.

The Orduna was scheduled to sail from Liverpool on Saturday, Jan. 30, but did not depart until 10:30 o'clock the next morning. Passengers heard that the reason for the delay was that a German submarine was hovering in the vicinity. The American flag was raised, they said, shortly after the Orduna cleared the Mersey. The steamer touched at Queenstown the same day and was flying the Stars and Stripes when she entered and left the harbor, they said.

The explanation which the passengers said, they received from some of the Orduna's under officers was that the American flag had been raised for the purpose of protecting the American citizens among the 240 passengers aboard.

H. T. Strong of this city and James

Ford of Lynn, Mass., were two of the passengers who said they would vouch over their names that the American flag was flown by the ship. They said it was not until she had cleared the Irish sea that it was hauled down.

Capt. Thomas M. Taylor, commander of the Orduna, refused to discuss the matter, saying he was under orders from the British admiralty not to talk. The other officers also were silent.

Summer Makes Denial
Charles P. Summer, general agent of the Cunard line in this city, denied today that the Orduna had flown the American flag except at her foremast, which he explained is customary on all ships to indicate the country to which they are bound. Both Ford and Strong as well as other passengers insisted, however, that the flag was flying aft, indicating the nationality of the vessel.

"At no time was the American flag raised at the stern of the Orduna," said Mr. Summer. "The American flag was raised to the foremast head upon leaving Liverpool to indicate that the Orduna was sailing for an American port with American passengers and American mail. The American flag remained at the foremast head until after the Orduna left Queenstown and all the way across the ocean until she arrived here."

COUNCIL TO CONSULT FINANCIAL EXPERT

Man From State Board Coming to Lowell Tomorrow—Annual Audit of Davis Fund

Theodore Wardell, of the state board of labor and statistics, will come to Lowell tomorrow morning and talk matters over with the municipal council. Mr. Wardell is the board's expert on municipal finance and the council is in need of a little expert opinion. There are some notes coming due in August that the council is afraid the city will not be able to meet unless the collector of taxes be allowed to collect tax money enough in advance to meet the notes. This is one of several questions that the council will take up with Mr. Wardell. The municipal council resolved itself into a committee on accounts this forenoon and met in the mayor's private reception room. The long table was piled high with bills and the commissioners allowed that they had several hours' work before them. A few of the bills were productive of more or less discussion and two or three were laid aside for future reference.

John Davis Fund
The annual audit of the John Davis fund took place in the office of the city treasurer, this forenoon. The proceeds of the Davis fund are devoted to the public library, which takes the valuation of the fund at the present time is $91,723.88. This is a net decrease of $272.79 as compared with last year and for which the shrinkage of stocks is responsible. Those partici-

The Sun man who looked into the Merrimack Square theatre on Monday evening saw what he assumed to be a political reform play in progress, and considering the object, a very legitimate one, he got the thread of the plot and came away. Thus he missed the suggestive portion which comes to the public library, which takes the valuation of the fund at the present time is $91,723.88. JAMES GOOKIN

Lowell Firemen Represented by Counsel at State House Hearing

A bill granting members of the fire departments of all cities one day off in five was given a hearing before the committee on cities at the state house yesterday. J. Joseph O'Connor appeared for the Lowell firemen and City Solicitor J. Joseph Hennessy opposed the bill on the ground that the matter had been twice turned down by the voters of Lowell.

Lowell and Taunton were the only two cities in the state to reject the bill. The city solicitor, in his protest, stated that the measure would mean a big expense to Lowell and the people of Lowell, he said, had shown their opposition to it very emphatically.

Mr. O'Connor declared that in spite of indications to the contrary, the people of Lowell are anxious to give the firemen one day off in five. "The firemen," he said, "have never been able to get a fair hearing because every time this bill comes up, the people of Lowell create a bad atmosphere around it and the matter is not fairly presented to the voters."

"The firemen have not the money nor the instruments to put their case before the people. Other cities have seen the justice of the proposition and believe Lowell should be forced to recognize the need of the firemen."

Asked if he would be willing to have the matter referred to the city government of Lowell, Mr. O'Connor said that such a procedure would not be at all satisfactory. The members of the city council, he said, could probably adopt the "safety first" policy and refuse to endorse a proposition that the voters have declared against. He said that the expense to the voters in connection with the acceptance of the bill would be very trivial and would not affect the tax rate in the least.

O'Connor stated that the firemen would give much better service if they had proper days of rest.

"To attempt to pass this bill," said the city solicitor, "is an indictment against the intelligence of the city of Lowell. In 1912 our fire department cost us $14,000 and in 1913 the budget calls for an expenditure of $202,000 with an extra $16,000 for new equipment. The tax rate of Lowell jumped $2.50 last year. This bill, if passed, would cost the city of Lowell at least $5000 annually."

The committee took the matter under advisement.

In the rural districts of New Jersey there are only 53,522 females as against 56,273 males.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORS

Big Union Rally by Lowell C. E. Union—Nearly 500 at the First Baptist Church.

A union rally of the Lowell Christian Endeavor union, in connection with the observance of Christian Endeavor week, Feb. 7 to 14 inclusive, was held at the First Baptist church last night. The roll call showed a total attendance of nearly 500, representing the Christian Endeavor societies of the following churches: Congregational—First, Elliot, Pawtucket, Trinitarian, Dracut First, Dracut Centre, Highland, Central, Chelmsford Centre, Tewksbury and Tyngsboro; Baptist—First, Fifth Street, Worthen Street, Immanuel, Calvary, Chelmsford Street, Paige Street, South Chelmsford, Central, Chelmsford Centre.

WHAT THE FRENCH MAID SAID

HOW TO MAKE COFFEE

"I wish I could make good coffee," complained Marjorie to Marie one morning.

"It is a difficult problem," agreed Marie, "but I'm sure you can master the art, if you will take my advice. Madame will allow no one but me to make her coffee so I think I should be able to qualify as an expert."

"Many persons do not know that coffee is only 'good' in more ways than one, when fresh made. Then its aroma is rich and fragrant, for there has been no time for any poisonous properties to steep out and it invigorates and stimulates and is a wholesome beverage. After it has stood an hour or less the grounds impart to it a flat, heavy, dead taste; it is then positively injurious."

"The percolators have solved the question of good coffee at all hours because with these the coffee is made and the used grounds can be thrown out; they do not stand in the liquor. If you have no percolator, put the coffee into a bag and after making lift this out and then there will be no stale taste to the coffee if you must repeat it for a late-comer."

"If you use the percolator or a bag you can have your coffee pulverized instead of merely ground. This is a great saving; a pound of pulverized coffee will go almost twice as far as the coarser coffee."

"No egg is needed to settle coffee made so, for it cannot be muddy."

"The proper proportion for the average cup of good coffee is to allow one level tablespoon of coffee to each cup and one extra spoonful for the pot. Pour boiling water, boil gently five minutes, set back where it will keep hot five minutes, settle it with a dash of cold water and serve at once."

THE RABBIT'S FOOT

BY GWEN SEARS

WOMEN WHO DYE

Many a woman dyes her hair because she believes it will make her more beautiful. And everyone has noticed it because her complexion does not tone in to the line of the hair about her face, and her eyebrows seem meant for someone else.

If your hair is light naturally you want it to look as bright as possible, and if it is dark you want it to stay that way and not become streaked after the shampoo. There are certain harmless ingredients which may be added to the shampoo water, and these will help you to retain all the natural beauty that your hair possesses.

Brunettes may help the color of their hair by using an egg or a little soda beaten into California claret. This red wine takes its color from the skin of the black grapes of which it is made and that contains tannin, which is good for the scalp and hair roots. The yolks of eggs or subcarbonate of potash or soda are excellent for very dark hair.

How fortunate you are if your hair is light, for the sun is always ready to shed its beneficial rays on your head and aid in the lightening process. The commonly accepted household bleaches—ammonia, borax and soda—will lighten and brighten the hair a little for a day or two after the shampoo but they must be used with great caution for they have a very drying effect on the scalp. And, after they have procured a pretty coiffure for a few days, the hair may seem more lifeless and dead than ever before.

A harmless mixture for lightening the hair is one made of equal parts of honey and rhubarb stalks, which are steeped in three parts of white wine. Let this mixture stand 24 hours, strain it, and use as a lotion when the hair is wet. Massage it into the scalp and let it dry on the hair.

The faithful youth in the church will always have a vision. After many years of observation, I have come to the conclusion that the church always does more for us than we do for it. If you begin in your youth to serve God in your church, and let its services and opportunities for helping others lead you out, you will be more blessed than blessing. It is a surprising—yes, an astonishing—fact what God does for his faithful children.

I think tonight of that little Swedish girl getting a job and attending all the services of the church and taking part in the young people's meeting. Today she draws $600 salary. I know her development came in the church. She discovered herself there. I can think of the obscure German boy, who began coming to the Endeavor society, and trying to take part, much to his confusion, and the amusement of the young people. He had no education. But by his study of the bible he gradually became a most accomplished speaker, and today is the president of a large Endeavor union with hundreds of thousands on its rolls. He has been prospered in business, too. I can think of the young girl working for small wages, and largely supporting her family. She attended church from early childhood till the last afternoon of her life. She made no excuses about being over-weary on Sunday, although I know of no one with a better right. With no opportunity for education, she began night study of music, and now is organist in one of the leading Baptist churches of Chicago.

The following named are the officers of the Lowell Christian Endeavor union for 1915:

President, O. E. McGregor; vice presidents, Rev. E. A. Triles; Rev. A. Hesford; Miss Mildred M. McKnight; secretary, Miss Sara M. Dean; treasurer, Leonard P. Conley, Jr.; auditor, James A. Grant; counselors, Rev. H. A. Barker; junior superintendent, Miss Inah G. Lowell.

Committee Chairmen: Bible study and quiet hour, Miss Grace L. Collins; introduction, Mrs. H. E. Hayward; lookout, Burnett J. Sweet; missionary, Miss Edna M. Penn; prayer, Miss Grace Whitaker; press, Miss Josephine Dows; social, Miss Lillian Powers; temperance, Walter A. Chase.

A WINTER TONIC

Why is it that some people keep well all winter while others, less exposed to cold and damp, suffer with colds, grip, pleurisy, pneumonia and all the ills of the season?

Thin blood and debility are the causes of much sickness in winter. When the blood is thin and there is oxygen starvation in the tissues of the body, poisons are retained that should be eliminated and there is a lowered resistance to disease.

Rheumatism disappears when the blood is built up and does not return if the blood is kept rich.

The after-effects of grip are never cured until the blood is built up.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood and enable it to carry more oxygen, to nourish the starved tissues in debility, to soothe the inflamed membranes in rheumatism, to quiet the nerves in neuralgia and sciatica, and to expel the lingering germs after the fever and influenza of grip have passed. All winter Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be in every house, ready for use. You can get them now at the nearest drug store.

The third edition of the popular little book, "Building Up the Blood," has just been published. Write today to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for a free copy.

EVERY DAY ETIQUETTE

"If a young man asks for the privilege of escorting me home, what should I say if I wish to accept?" asked Louise.

"If you wish his company you may say, 'Yes, thank you. I shall be glad to have your company,'" answered her mother.

"When a new neighbor moves into a neighborhood where she is not known is the new neighbor supposed to call or the old resident?" asked Mrs. Puzzled.

"It is the duty of those residing in the neighborhood to call on the newcomer after she has had sufficient time to get settled," answered her friend.

"Should a girl write a note of thanks to her escort for flowers which he sent her to wear to a party or will verbal thanks be sufficient?" inquired Lucy.

"Thank your escort verbally for the flowers which will be quite sufficient," was her aunt's reply.

"I want to invite my sister and her fiance to lunch some evening. Shall I ask them both or should she ask him?" was Maude's problem.

"Since you are to be the hostess you should ask both the young man and your sister to lunch," advised her sister.

"After one has called on neighbors and the call is not returned, should one call again?" queried Janet.

"Unless you have some reason to believe that your neighbor does not wish to be friendly with you, do not stand on ceremony, but call again when you have the time and inclination."

AN ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

AUDIENCE AT FIRST TRINITARIAN CHURCH TOLD ABOUT BUTTE, MONT., AND ITS RESOURCES

An interesting lecture was given at the First Trinitarian church last evening by Rev. Lawrence Wilson of Butte, Mont., who took for his subject, "Redeeming the Utmost Town on Earth." The affair was largely attended and all present thoroughly enjoyed the address, which proved both interesting and instructive.

A collection of 110 finely colored, well chosen views were flashed on the screen, and these proved particularly interesting, inasmuch as they showed the various places of interest in Butte, Mont. The speaker said what the people of Butte need is the eastern capital to develop the latent mineral resources and also to build up their spiritual natures. He said in Butte there is no W. C. T. U. or Y. W. C. A., and no institutional church work, although the population is 70,000. He said the city needs church work and a parish house as a social centre, and to inaugurate these was the first effort of a Congregational church within 75 miles of Butte.

The speaker gave a vivid description of the city and its resources, and the lecture proved most entertaining and it is possible Rev. Mr. Wilson will return to Lowell shortly.

LOWELL SOCIAL LEAGUE

The Lowell Social League will hold a meeting tomorrow afternoon in Memorial hall to introduce the new general secretary, Miss Mary Alma Colter. Mr. Charles P. Hall of the Associated Charities of Pawtucket, R. I., will speak briefly of what such an organization can accomplish and of his own work in Pawtucket. Two representative citizens of Lowell will speak of Lowell's needs and Miss Colter will briefly how she hopes to make the league a benefit to the city.

CHILD'S LIFE SAVED

We have just received a letter from a charming mother of six children wherein she says: "When I was living up in the mountains of New Hampshire my baby was very sick and a friend of mine wanted me to use Dr. True's Worm Elixir, and now I have six children and have never been without it (Dr. True's Elixir) in my house more than a few weeks at a time, and I bought a bottle last week."

That is the way lot of children seem fearfully ill and their case is almost hopeless when the trouble is worms. THE MAN IN THE MOON

I recently re-visited a small New Hampshire town where once I spent several years of my young life. Much to my satisfaction the townspeople were to have a social gathering in the town hall and I extended my stay for a night in order to see how much they resembled the social times of 30 years ago. There was a general good time for everybody, young, middle-aged and old. I met many old time friends of my youth many of whom had grown-up children taking part in the evening's pleasures. There was music, declamations, and a son of the town at home for a visit, whose name were I to mention it would be recognized by everybody, got up and made a beautiful talk to his old townsmen. He began by quoting the lines: and put everybody in good humor. He didn't talk politics or shop. He was right down among the folks at home, who knew him and whom he knew. Really, I don't believe this content man ever in his career made such a gem of a speech as he did this night up among the neighbors of his old mountain home.

"You would scarce expect one of my age
To speak in public on the stage,"

At a fairly early hour the old folks departed for home leaving the young people to themselves. Being still somewhat of a youth I stayed with the young folks and took part in everything as well as I was able. I was a boy all right "just for tonight." For a time all the old country games held forth and then somebody proposed an old diddle and until midnight there was nothing doing but quadrilles and Virginia reels. Then home over the snow under the bright stars, home to the old home on the hill, a midnight luncheon and something hot, then to bed, warmed by big flat iron stoves—a good sleep, and up in the morning, entering breakfast with light in order to ride with the milk man to catch the first train down country. I was glad I had stayed over a night and concluded there wasn't much difference between the new and the old time country jollifications.

Tribute to Hattie Chase

Even after many years there are many men and women in Lowell, Dracut and Pelham who will learn with regret that Mrs. Joseph Clayton, better known to them doubtless by her name before her marriage, Hattie Chase, died at her home in Jacksonville, Ill. last Thursday. They will recall with pleasant memories that 40 and more years ago she was their teacher in the schools of Pelham and Dracut. For many years she taught in the Navy Yard district in the school house then situated on Pleasant street and so indispensable was she among the people of that locality the thought that any other teacher should teach in her room was never considered for a moment. For many years her fellow teacher in the Navy Yard school was Miss Ellen M. Holden, who has long been a valued teacher in our Lowell schools and who is still teaching in the Colburn school. Even after Miss Chase's marriage to Mr. Clayton she continued to teach for a time, such was the demand for her services by the Navy Yard folks; and truth to tell, it was likely she found it hard to give up the vocation which she loved. Mrs. Clayton had been a district school teacher of the old school; but she was an excellent type of

one. She was energetic, painstaking and thorough in her methods. Kind and sympathetic, she yet maintained discipline without severity. Her affectionate interest in her scholars had the natural effect of binding pupils to her in bonds of affection; and I have never found among her old scholars one to say aught but in her praise. Sometimes the going back through 40 years' wildernesses of days, weeks and months, with their storm and sunshine, their joys and sorrows, their innumerable offerings of sweets and bitterness, their tangled cups of disappointment, their grotesque mingling of good and evil, is like a dream that comes and goes in a night—it's about as intangible and mystical. If memory mercifully closes the book to much of our past, she opens it, too. At the top of those 40 years stands the old school house and the teacher within at her desk, bright-eyed and alert. It is she who now lies dead in Illinois. The school house has long since gone, the teacher but yesterday! This page in the book of memory shall always be open and luminous with the light of other days—the old school days so dear to us, those of us who survive and whose memory lives may well pause beside the bier of our old teacher, who knew us better than we knew ourselves, who labored for our good and whose influence upon our lives may have been potent for good, and pay a tribute to her worth.

The Orchestral Society

The audience that completely filled Colonial hall Sunday afternoon to listen to the concert given by the local Orchestral society was not only encouraging but showed that the society has many friends. It was evident, too, that Madame Sapin, the soloist, had many friends. The work of the orchestra was quite satisfactory, showing evidence of painstaking training and conscientious interest. There should be no depreciation of an object on the part of a body of musicians to produce music of high character and the program given Sunday was such. Even though it fell short in actual performance, the standard set should be endorsed by all true lovers of the best in music; and in this relation it might well be said that it may be better to play high-class compositions indifferently well than to play low-class productions with facility. So taken all in all, I hope that Mr. Schiller will continue to keep his standards high and train his orchestra as heretofore. I thought the best work of the orchestra was shown in the "Madam Butterfly" music. The themes were admirably worked out, while the sustaining parts did themselves credit.

That Madame Sapin scored a distinct triumph goes without saying. From her opening number, Meyerbeer's "O Sweetest Than the Breath of Morning," until her final encore she held her audience as none but a great singer and consummate artist can. Now Madame may not be particularly beautiful, yet she is attractive and possesses a charming stage presence. But, bless you, how she can sing! What range, what power, what delicacy, what pliancy, what art! May we hear Madame Sapin in Lowell frequently.

ly, giving the liveliest exhibition by way of an old-fashioned blizzard, subsided soon into the same mild manners of her sister January, and has thus departed herself up to the present hour. Each day like this is tolerable enough in more ways than one. Each completed day and we are nearer by so much to the day when spring officially arrives—now but about six weeks away; and she cannot come too soon for me.

Yet aside from this and the tokens we may yet receive from this artificial month, she is interesting in many ways. She is even distinguished in being the birth-month of our two biggest and best men; and if you are up on dates it will occur to you that quite a respectable company of illustrious men and women first saw the light in this month. A friend informed me the other day that Abraham Lincoln and Charles Darwin were born on the same day, same year—an interesting fact certainly.

Outlook for Ball Team

Now that it seems assured that we are to have a ball team, let us breathe easier and feel content to feel that not yet is it written that the Little New England league is to give up the ghost. Fortunate in the selection of the right man to manage the Lowell club owners will go far towards making a creditable and, let us hope, profitable season. It is high time there should be a little profit in the business for the gentlemen who have $15,000 or $20,000 invested. It's all very well to pose as baseball magnates, but so far as Lowell is concerned there are no gold mines located at Atherton. Yet, if it is all right if Lowell wants league ball, it's up to the baseball public to say. If it does want it then let it patronize the home team.

The Lowell Art Society

The following communication is received, and will be commented upon in a subsequent issue:

Will "The Man in the Moon" grant me a little space to consider some of his recent criticisms of the Lowell Art Association? His complaint, which in a measure was perfectly justified, was that the association did not realize its full opportunities, in that it had failed thus far to make of the Whistler House an "art centre" in the larger sense, but seemed to be content with having a few exhibitions—insufficiently advertised—and an occasional social function.

Now that is so far true that no officer of the Art Association would deny it. On the contrary it is probable that every officer of the association would acknowledge the impotence and concur heartily in the wish for broadening the scope of the work. The "Man in the Moon" states as the proper ideal for such an organization the very one which the society itself already has, but one which thus far it has been unable to carry out—chiefly because of deplorably insufficient public backing.

Protest ought to be made, however, against any imputation, such as the "Man in the Moon" appeared to make in his recent article, that the failure of the association to achieve its full object was due to any spirit of "exclusiveness." It seems impossible that an association which has no limitation as to membership and asks no more than one dollar a year in dues should be "exclusive." No record exists, if memory serves, of any refusal of admission to any applicant. On the contrary the society deprecates the fact that, with its dues so pitifully low and the doors open to any who care to come, the membership should be so small. It is at present rather less than 500, when it ought to be twice that number, and would be if the Lowell public took the required degree of interest.

With what revenues it now has from membership and occasionally letting the rooms, the association maintains a very precarious existence. It has nearly paid for the house; it manages to heat it, light it, provide a caretaker and telephone, make minor repairs, give a few exhibitions every winter (in itself an expensive thing, by the way) and secure, largely through charitable speakers who talk for love alone, a series of lectures. To such entertainments all members who have paid their dollar are welcome, free of further payment; and any one of the general public may visit the house at any such time, at exhibitions, entertainments and all, on payment of the nominal fee of a quarter. But unless many hundred more people take insufficient interest to join and thus increase the amount the society has "to do with," the present activities of the association are all that can be afforded. The lack is both of members and money. "Exclusiveness," however, is not among the association's sins.

We (I speak as an officer of the society from its beginning) are most anxious to do the things the "Man in the Moon" wants us to do. We want to have the society stimulate a love for artistic things, and afford instruction in artistic works, for the public of the city. We simply cannot do it, however, when people stand aloof and refer to our unlimited membership and its pathetically small annual dues as an example of "exclusiveness." Many of us have gone deeper into our pockets than we like to think to give the society even such possessions and activities as it now enjoys—and the slow appreciation of the possibilities, on the part of others, has often been a source of genuine discouragement. We use what little money we have to do what little we can; and by great parsimony are usually able to make both ends nearly meet.

Our need is of cordial cooperation, wider interest, new blood, encouragement to do the very things you so truly say we ought to do. At present, when we do open a new exhibition, we can scarcely afford to advertise it publicly. Lessons in drawing and painting are far beyond our financial power. The accumulation of works of art for a small local museum is farther still beyond our reach. Yet

The surest way to stop a cold is to liven the liver and cleanse the bowels, and the nicest and easiest to do this is a 10-cent box of Cascarets. Take one or two Cascarets tonight and your cold may be gone by morning.

all these things might be added unto us if only the Lowell people would cordially join hands with us and help, laying aside any fear of exclusiveness. To permit any such movement to lapse into a mere pink-tea affair would be, indeed, a pity—and nothing is farther from our wish, who have sought to create and keep alive this institution.

P. S. M.

Lincoln Day

I met my friend, the poet, who appeared to have something on his mind he wished to unload, yet did not know how to begin doing it. Thinking that perhaps he needed only a little encouragement, I proceeded to draw him out until at last he poured out the news that he had thrown together a few lines in commemoration of Lincoln and wondered whether it would be a surprise to have them printed. The responsibility was too much for me, and so I shifted it to the shoulders of the gentle editor of The Sun who, if he prints the lines, I know they must be all right.

Lowell Coke is the Satisfactory Fuel

Lowell Coke is good coke.

The quality of coke depends on the making—and Lowell Coke is made by the most modern processes.

The coal we use costs 15 per cent. more than the coal used by the makers of ordinary coke—our gas making plant demands it.

Our improved equipment takes out all impurities and leaves coke with a higher percentage of carbon than any other.

Lowell Coke is practically 90 per cent. pure carbon—only 2 per cent. volatile matter necessary for kindling.

The Lowell Gas Light Company employs three chemists to see that Lowell Coke is kept up to a certain standard.

Let us send our coke specialist to show you how to use Lowell Coke. You will understand then why all your neighbors are using it.

It will keep a hot even fire for over 12 hours and you will save at least 25 cents on every dollar of your fuel bill.

Little bother—few ashes; dust-clinkers, none.

A ton for $5.90 from any coal dealer or

A Letter from a well-known letter carrier about Lowell Coke:

December 18, 1914.

Lowell Gas Light Co., Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen: Being somewhat doubtful that Lowell Coke would really save so much as some claim, I have kept close account of what it cost me and find I get the same heat for nearly one-fourth less money.

Am free to recommend it to all. Have no trouble in keeping fire every night and it doesn't harm the grate in the slightest.

Yours truly,

DAVID P. MARTIN,

BOARD OF TRADE ANNIVERSARY

Very timely and very inspiring were the three messages delivered to the Lowell public through the instrumentality of the local board of trade on the occasion of its twenty-fifth anniversary. Different in their subject matter and different too in their treatment, all the addresses dealt with problems which are agitating the public life of this country at the present time and all three aimed at bringing about such a settlement of world-wide or domestic difficulties as will help our great country to become what it is in a position to become in the near future—the greatest moral as well as the greatest commercial power in the congress of nations. In none of the speeches was there a display of political pettiness or personal bitterness against any interest or party; all the speakers ignored superficial things and got down to the basic principles underlying the right and the wrong of the subject dealt with. In this we might imitate them with profit at this time which calls for the earnest and unbiased co-operation of all our people.

In dealing with the subject of "International Affairs and the European War," Mr. Hamilton Holt of New York showed in the masterly fashion of the expert, the eloquent manner of the enthusiast and the earnest manner of the idealist the terrible fallacy of war as a means of settling international disputes. He touched a deep human chord in his reiteration of the commandment: "Thou shalt not kill" as the first argument, against it; but he afterwards arrayed his economic arguments in such solid and convincing ranks that the folly of the shocking sacrifice was brought home to the five hundred present. Terrible was the picture he drew of slaughtered millions, of crushed women and children, of ruined industries, of the fanatical disregard for human life and property in this war which, in money alone, will cost at least ten thousand millions and may cost one hundred thousand millions. Terrible too was the picture he drew of the sequel with the bruised nations striving to regain what they all had lost—for he showed well that even the winners must lose far more than they can hope to gain.

Mr. Holt made a timely application of the principles of peace to this country by attacking the contentions of those who would seize upon the present conflict as a pretext for imposing militarist burdens on the American public and he showed how the success of such an agitation would put back the great peace movement which he is helping to advance. He also showed how, even in the midst of the present war, the cause of universal peace has become strong and how there is hope that following the struggle the nations may seek some great federation ideal, founded on a universal law, for the settlement of their future differences. That the peace ideal is not the dream of a visionary but a sensible growth of modern thought became impressed on all who were fortunate in hearing the great peace address of our distinguished visitor.

Filled with optimism and inspiration, too, were the respective addresses of Mr. A. W. Douglas of St. Louis and Hon. John N. Cole, former speaker of the Massachusetts legislature. Mr. Douglas spoke as one who had personal knowledge of his subject and he wisely told how those who look to the dark side of the picture injure their own best interests. His outlook on most of the great industries of the country was most encouraging and his sketch of the great government and private enterprises to boom prosperity was a prediction of good things ahead. In his predictions for the south and west he intimated that New England will have to give more attention to business than to politics if it would keep the supremacy it has gained with such labor.

Dealing with the transportation and taxation problems, Mr. Cole showed the business men of Lowell in what they might start intelligent agitations to help Massachusetts business. He proves in his present activities that we are in a constructive as well as a productive era and that America is getting ready for the dawn of unprecedented prosperity. If with American prosperity comes lasting peace all over the world we who see it may feel sure that we have lived in the most blessed age in the history of this weary old earth.

OUR FLAG IN WAR

Developments following each other in rapid succession have created a situation which this country cannot longer ignore, with regard to the rights of the American flag as the flag of the greatest neutral power during the war. This situation the government recognizes and has indicated its intention of settling by prompt appeals to both the German and English governments. In the potential results of recent proclamations and incidents for which both England and Germany are responsible, our flag would be menaced and all that it stands for might be ignored and humiliated. Putting aside emotion and jingoism and approaching the subject in a sane and dispassionate spirit, there are a few points that call for immediate correction, if we are not to run grave risks in the next few weeks or months.

In the first place, America will not and cannot submit to the insinuation that Germany may not respect the rights of neutral powers, for any deliberate disregard of our unquestionable rights would be followed by a great uprising of American public opinion. While the Stars and Stripes stands for America and while it is a symbol of this country on merchant vessels, the German nation or at least the German government must answer to America for any insult or injury. It will not do for Germany to shoot first and investigate afterwards, unless England should make the protection of our flag negative by a misuse of it.

This brings us naturally to the second point. In the past belligerent nations freely used the flags of neutrals as a method of deception of the enemy, and England permitted a like use of her own flag. That, however, was before the days of submarine blockades which impose altogether new conditions on all vessels. A submarine cannot determine the real character of a vessel in trade waters and must be guided almost wholly by the flag. Under these circumstances, precedent seems useless and the plain obligation remains for England to use only her own flag. Surely our government cannot permit a misuse of the American flag which might easily lead us into war. There is one way out of this difficulty so far as this country is concerned and that is that whenever during the war the Stars and Stripes is seen on the seas, it shall honestly stand for the United States of America. There is no time to delay parleys for an international agreement on this most important matter. The Lusitania incident following so closely on the German proclamation of a war zone some blessed federation spare these noble millions to their countries, their families, their homes! It is a wonderful and a thrilling thing to see the laughing soldiers going down to a cruel death while the women of England, of France, or Germany and of Russia sit at home and weep.

It is all wrong this sacrifice of humanity to advance the last for empire on the part of any ruler. The people should have something to say about the declaration of war as it is they who have to fight the battles. Who can tell but that the present terrible war is the price the world must pay for the establishment of government by the people the world over. It is time the great rulers realized that humanity is bigger than any nation and that in every nation the sovereign power should rest not in a despot or an ambitious ruler but in the majority of the people.

GRADE CROSSINGS

A bill now before the New Hampshire legislature would require all drivers of automobiles to stop at grade crossings and "look and listen" before crossing. There is also a movement to have the proposed law apply to the drivers of horse-drawn vehicles. Whatever they may think of it in New Hampshire the idea is not attracting favorable attention in Massachusetts where the crossings are so many and the traffic heavy. It is apparent that any law which would impose so many obligations of the kind in a day's journey would be speedily disregarded and in the way of all disregarded or discarded laws would take the situation worse instead of better. As an agitation to create public sentiment in favor of more general caution the idea is to be commended; as a law, it would be futile. Still, no agitation, movement or law should blind the people to the fundamental necessity for the abolition of the crossings which are primitive, dangerous, unlovely and altogether undesirable.

Interest in the question of whether Roumania will go into the war or not has been revived by the story that Germany and Austria have offered a large loan to Bulgaria. All eyes in the Balkan states have been on Bulgaria and her future action may influence Greece, Italy and Roumania.

Cannot blame the members of the Dacia's crew who got cold feet and yet what a fine chance for some excitement.

The echoes of that Horn blast in Canada are almost silent.

Good combination: Peace and prosperity.

CAUSE OF HUMANITY

Awful and horrible as are many pictures of the war, there are sides which are by no means sordid. Nay, there are aspects of the conflict which reflect more grandeur and more real nobility than all the glories of ages of olden romance. Foremost among these is the spirit of absolute sacrifice with which so many splendid thousands of all nations go out smilingly to give their lives for their country. Where in all history is there a grander picture than that of the thousands of England's best youths, many of them of noble blood, going out bravely, smilingly, unquestionably to almost certain slaughter? Or when was there a more inspiring tale than that of the German sailors in the Pacific who refused to be saved and sent out cheer after cheer as the waves closed in on their gallant and doomed band? So, too, of France, of Austria, of Russia, of them all. At the call of their country men are afraid to die. Still, the greater loss of all—the laying down of life for a friend—is in full bloom in an age of wonders.

Keep the Children Bright and Happy

Happy youngsters must be healthy. The digestive organs of children get out of order as readily as do those of their elders, and the result is equally distressing. When the bowels are clogged with an accumulation of refuse from the stomach the child naturally becomes cross and fretful from the discomfort, and is often punished for temper when medical attention is really what is needed.

The next time your child is cross and unhappy, without apparent reason, try giving it a mild laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild, pleasant-tasting combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and is especially recommended for children because of its freedom from all opiate or narcotic drugs and its gentle action. It is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

And crushes the roses wild and sweet, I feel his shoulders heave and swing And ever I shout as closer cling And away in that hazardous balancing, away with hazard and glory, too, I do the thing I would dare to do.

Hurray, hullah, hullo! I leave the yellow village behind like a mongrel-feathered pack They know not how my mustang flies Nor the slant of his sloping back. They never felt the wind as he flamed through and through. And I laugh as they straggle out behind, hurray, hullah, hullo!

Hurray, hullah, hullo! I show my heels to you. For you must ride on a wilder steed than ever a pack like you has had. For the road we ride on is hard And never was mustang closer thighed Than you must cling to his perilous side.

Away with hazard and glory, too, I do the thing I would dare to do, Hurray, hullah, hullo! The wind has whistled the way to death and I have laughed to hear: When the wheeling prairie reels beneath, there I stand firm and tall; I have felt the clean sun on my cheek, on my eyes the evening dew, And I tickle my mustang with my toes, hurray, hullah, hullo!

Hurray, hullah, hullo! I show my heels to you. I lie my mustang down in the grass, his feathered arrow tipped with pain, I should as I swing to my pinto's pace. And mad he trembles to my embrace. We fling the sod in the swampy face. I ride for the hazard and glory, too, I do the thing that you dare not to. Hurray, hullah, hullo! Hurray, hullah, hullo!

—Willard A. Wattles, in Springfield Republican.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

NO PARTISANSHIP

It is surprising indeed to read that the department of justice at Washington has decided that further proceedings are not warranted by the evidence of vote-buying, use of repeaters, padding of registration lists, and like crime against elections, in the Carsonville district. At least the prosecutions for a part of the same operations across the river in Indiana show that partisanship is not controlling the department. Worcester Post.

SERVIA'S HARD FATE

Austria and Germany are said to be massing 400,000 men for the invasion of Servia. It must be a fearful discouraging to a Servian. First he has to lick a fellow two or three times his size and get himself much reduced in the process. Then he has to confront his defeated opponent, coming back twice as big as before. And if he ever has a chance to catch his breath and look around he can see all the charitable people concentrating their energies upon forgetting him while they care for the cleaner and more picturesque Belgians.

COMPLEX CAUSES

The fundamental causes of high prices and the increased cost of living are as perplexing to the men of big affairs as they are to the man who works for a day's pay. If there is any doubt on this point, let the statistical read the opinions of the men who have testified before the congressional committee that is conducting an investigation. No two men have, however, experienced agree in hardly any particular. Each has his pet theory or prejudice. The truth doubtless is that causes are so complex that it is impossible to separate them or lay a preponderance of blame on any one thing.—Bristol Press.

POOR HORN

Van Horn, the bridge dynamiter, it might be supposed, would feel somewhat disappointed and chagrined over the lack of interest the German official authorities either at Berlin or at the embassy at Washington are apparently taking in him. So far as anything has yet developed they have manifested no desire to concern themselves about him or to compromise themselves with his exploit, in which even his bid for notoriety last night proved very profitable to him.—Fall River Globe.

OSTRICH LIKE PERFORMANCE

We should say that this time the Germans can chuckle for they have the picture of a scared English merchant marine. They have also proved their case that the English merchantmen are ready to use a neutral flag. It is pretty well known that the Germans have used neutral flags, even the Stars and Stripes for their ships, laying mines or carrying supplies for submarines. But they have not been caught in such an astonishing performance as floating Old Glory over one of the most beautiful ships in existence. The English admiralty will later explain why it counselled such an act on the part of Capt. Dow.—Holyoke Transcript.

SENATOR LAWRENCE Y. SHERMAN

Republicans in Illinois already are talking of United States Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman, of whom this is a new picture, for the republican nomination for president in 1916. Senator Sherman is fifty-six years old. He had been a member of the Illinois state house of representatives, speaker of that body and lieutenant-governor when he was elected in 1913 to complete the Lorimer term. Last fall he defeated Roger Sullivan, and he is in the national senate until March 4, 1921.

ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD

Rev. Joseph A. Malone a Former Resident of Lowell Ordained at Mt. St. Mary's College

At the chapel of Mt. St. Mary's college, at Emmitsburg, Md., this morning, in the presence of a large gathering of distinguished clergymen, the college students and seminarians and friends, Rev. Joseph A. Malone, formerly of this city, was ordained to the priesthood by Right Rev. Edward P. Allen, D. D., Bishop of Mobile, Ala.

He received the sacrament of matrimony prior to that of holy orders. Fr. Malone is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and after attending the elementary schools of that city entered Mt. St. Mary's college where he pursued the classical course, graduating with honors in the class of 1893. At that time Bishop Allen was president of Mt. St. Mary's college, and Fr. Malone is a cousin of the prelate. After leaving college Fr. Malone came to Lowell and for a time was employed as a bookkeeper by the late Richard B. Allen of this city, a brother of Bishop Allen. Fr. Malone went to Mobile and became a teacher in the McGill preparatory school of that city, a position which he filled with credit up to the time of entering the seminary. Several years ago, after his departure from Lowell, he married, his wife being a member of a prominent Catholic family of St. Louis. After a brief but happy married life his wife died, and he continued as a teacher in Mobile until four years ago when he entered the seminary at Mt. St. Mary's to pursue his theological studies. He received minor orders last September, was made deacon a few months ago and his ordination took place this morning. Assisting at the ordination was his younger brother, Rev. Aloysius S. Malone, of Newton, Mass. Among those present at today's ceremony were Miss Lizzie Allen and Mr. Henry J. O'Brien, of this city. Fr. Malone has many relatives in this city, including the Allen family of Rogers street, Dr. William P. Lawler, and the family of the late James W. Cassidy. He will sing his first mass at Mt. St. Mary's tomorrow.

REV. JOSEPH A. MALONE

and, after a visit to this city he will take up his clerical duties in the Mobile diocese.

Fr. Malone has had an unusual career and is one of the very few priests of the Catholic church who have re-

'A PERFECT MAN'

Karl Lemle, the Bohemian "Perfect Man," who will do battle with Eric Arvidson in one of the big events at the Crescent rink Friday night, is one of the new foreign wrestlers who have visited this country in recent years who has not depended upon extra weight to win his mat battles. Although usually referred to as Al, Lemle is between 210 and 215 at his best, but is so symmetrical in his development that he looks even heavier.

Lemle, although one of the most powerful men in the world in downright strength, declares that power alone is dangerous for a wrestler to depend on. He banks on his knowledge of the laws of leverage as used in wrestling and believes that if he can keep the other fellow even the slightest of a fraction of an inch off his center of gravity that the latter's power is minimized and thus placed in a position where he is in danger of being toppled over.

Few foreign wrestlers can lie up an opponent in the same manner as Lemle, who uses feet and hands with equal facility. Much of his success against American wrestlers he attributes to this fact.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
Dancing that is fetching is given by the Six Military Dancers, who are headlining the bill at the B. F. Keith theatre this week. Three young women and three young men give the steps in unison, and in the final part of their act they not only dance but drill with guns, too. The scene is laid near West Point, Md. The singer of his own songs apparently hasn't a repertoire of numbers big enough to suit Lowell audiences. Seven and eight are required at every performance, and Morton could easily come back with several more, if he had them. He has an inimitable manner which wins him many friends. Bessie and Harriet Kumpel & Co. in "What We Grow Up To" are fine rate entertainers. The act is filled with good comedy, and the sisters and their supporting company are fully adequate. Marion Cooke, the new soprano, sings several good numbers. She, too, has a personality. Other acts on this bill which are winning friends are The Three Wilkins, the Novelty Clowns, and Jewell's New Manikins. The Hearst-Sells News Pictorial holds several good foreign views. Seats may be obtained for all performances. Phone 28.

DEATHS

LOVE—Anna Love died yesterday at the Chelmsford street hospital, aged 55 years. She leaves a brother, William, and several nephews. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock at the home of Undertakers James J. O'Donnell & Sons.

KIRBY—Mary Kirby died yesterday at the state hospital in Tewksbury, aged 63 years. The body was taken to the rooms of Undertaker C. H. Molloy.

PRESCOTT—Mrs. Lilla A. Prescott, aged 48 years, died this forenoon at her home, 270 Thordike street. She leaves besides her husband, George, two daughters, Ida and Jennie, and one sister, Mrs. Ralph Sheppard. The body was removed to the chapel of Undertaker C. H. Molloy.

DULLIGAN—Died in this city, Feb. 9, at her home, 29 Otis street, Mrs. Catherine Dulligan, aged 48 years. She is survived by four sons, Charles E., Thomas J., Lawrence P. and John; and four daughters, Mrs. Joseph Carney, William A., Winifred M. and Catherine D. Dulligan. She was a well known and esteemed resident of the Sacred Heart parish for many years.

COMERY SENTENCED TO BE HANGED FOR MURDER

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 10.—Oscar J. Comery was last night sentenced to be hanged in the state prison at Concord on Feb. 18, 1916, for the murder of his wife.

The jury was out just an hour.

On the court being informed that a verdict had been reached, the prisoner was sent for. He made his appearance, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff George H. Phinney, superintendent of the county jail, and was extremely pale. The jury filed in and the members were asked if they had reached a verdict. Foreman George S. Hall answered in the affirmative.

"What is your verdict of death or imprisonment for life?" asked the clerk.

"Death," was the answer.

County Solicitor P. H. Sullivan moved that sentence be imposed.

Attorney L. Ashton Thorpe, appearing for the respondent, addressed the court and stated that it was the desire of the counsel for the prisoner to take the case to the supreme court on exceptions.

The court replied that it would impose sentence at this time and in doing so, would not in any way jeopardize the rights of the prisoner, but would aid in every way in the preparation of the exceptions. It felt that by imposing sentence at this time matters might be expedited.

The court asked the prisoner if he desired to say anything and give any reason why sentence of death should not be pronounced on him.

Comery arose and said in a clear, low tone, but without a tremor: "I only wish to say that I desire the case taken to the supreme court."

"This right will not be denied you," said Judge Kivel on the bench.

The court then imposed sentence and dismissed the jury.

Attorney Thorpe said that he rested his appeal to the supreme court on the ground that the prisoner, having pleaded guilty and asked for sentence and the court having accepted the plea, should have imposed sentence and not impounded a jury and forced a trial. The point is one that has never before been raised in New Hampshire.

The final arguments to the jury were made by Atty. Gen. James P. Tuttle and by Attorney Thorpe.

Comery's sentence is the first time the death penalty has been imposed in New Hampshire in nearly a quarter of a century.

The last execution in this state was that of Frank Alm on May 16, 1893, for the murder of Christie Warden of Hanover.

It was charged that Comery poisoned his wife because of his alleged relations with a schoolgirl.

During the day the jury listened to the testimony of the mother of the girl, the physician who attended Mrs. Comery, Amanda Allard, a neighbor who was present when she died, the police and medical authorities.

SOME OF KITCHENER'S MILLION IN FRANCE; ENGLAND RUSHING TROOPS ACROSS CHANNEL

ENGLISH TROOPS ON THE MARCH AND IN CAMP IN NORTHWESTERN FRANCE

England is said to be gradually sending Kitchener's million to France. It is reported that by the end of March England will have an army of 700,000 in the field, and this will be well to 1,000,000 by the end of April. When spring comes it is taken for granted in official circles in England that the Germans will try desperately to reach Dunkirk and Calais. It is to frustrate this drive that the men are now being rushed to the front. The pictures show some of the new British troops in the war zone.

SEC. TUMULTUOUS WITNESS IN THE SULLIVAN CASE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, and Rep. James A. Hamill of New Jersey were witnesses yesterday at the investigation into charges against James M. Sullivan, minister to the Dominican republic. Hearings here were concluded last night, but Special Commissioner Phelan will later examine witnesses in the Dominican republic.

Tumulty testified that Hamill introduced Sullivan to him and that he "simply acted as a medium for transmitting the endorsements of Sullivan to the secretary of state." He said he knew of no "hood of debts," which were presented as an argument against appointing Sullivan. He had heard of personal debts which it was claimed Sullivan owed, but asserted "that it is a usual thing in candidates for office."

The only real argument presented against Sullivan, Tumulty said, was his connection with the Becker letter as counsel for Jack Rose, and a letter from the then Dist. Atty. Whitman dispelled that.

Tumulty declared that he never knew of any connection between Sullivan prior to his appointment and the role in the Dominican revolution. He said John G. Gray or the Banco Nacional of the Dominican republic.

"The White House is a great clearing house for rumors," said Tumulty, "and when these charges began to come in about Mr. Sullivan, I heard about the Jarvis interests and the Banco Nacional. I asked Mr. Vick (former receiver general of Dominican customs) to watch Mr. Sullivan closely, and keep the White House advised. I also told him to warn Minister Sullivan that the president would be displeased if he heard of Sullivan growing too close to any interests and would take such action as became necessary."

Tumulty testified that the White House had ever denoted or "white-washed" Sullivan. He said J. Franklin Fort, who had headed a commission to settle a Dominican revolution, had told the president that Sullivan was a "big hearted Irishman" and that there "was nothing against him."

He declined to express any opinion as to Sullivan's fitness for office, but criticized Vick as a "sorehead."

Hamill told the commissioner he had never discussed Sullivan's candidacy for the Dominican post with W. C. Beer, John G. Gray or any other representative of the Jarvis interests. He had been an intimate friend of Sullivan and gave him his support as a friend.

Hamill told of a debt of $500 or $600 which Sullivan paid to Bishop Broderick for the Dominican post with W. C. Beer. Bishop Broderick, he explained, withdrew a protest against Sullivan's nomination after the debt was paid.

EXECUTED BY GERMANS PISTOL SHOT WENT WILD

LIEUT. COL. MARITZ, HEAD OF REVOLUTION IN SO. AFRICA, HAS BEEN PUT TO DEATH

PRETORIA, S. A., Feb. 10.—Certain newspapers of Pretoria have published a report that Lieutenant Colonel S. G. Maritz, the Boer officer who has been at the head of the rebellious movement in South Africa, has been executed by the Germans for treachery.

Maritz's movement was supported by the Germans of German South-west Africa. There is yet no official confirmation of this report.

CONG. LA FOLLETTE MAY BE FIRST GOVERNOR OF NEW COMMONWEALTH

REPRESENTATIVE WILLIAM LA FOLLETTE

This is Congressman Wm. La Follette, cousin of Senator Robert M. La Follette, representing the section of the state of Washington which in time will be the principal part of the proposed state of Lincoln. It would comprise most of eastern Washington, the Panhandle of northern Idaho and a part of western Montana, making a large area and a population of over 1,000,000 to start with. Mr. La Follette went west from Indiana nearly 40 years ago at the age of 15. He had to pawn his watch on the way. Today he is called "the fruit king of the inland empire." Will he be the first governor of the state of Lincoln?

WOMAN IN BELVIDERE HAD NARROW ESCAPE—BULLET FIRED BY GANG

While sitting in the dining room of her home at 199 Pleasant street about 8 o'clock Monday evening, Mrs. Patrick J. Clark, her four children and Mrs. George Houle, who resides downstairs were nearly thrown into hysterics by the sound of a rifle or pistol shot which seemed to be fired very near the house, and the crashing of glass in one of the windows of the house near which Mrs. Houle was sitting in a rocking chair. The bullet crashed through the glass about a foot over Mrs. Houle's head, and just fell somewhere, but just where, nobody seems to know, not even the police who were detailed to the scene a short while after the shot was fired.

The shot was fired it is said by one of a gang of youths who congregated at the corner of Concord and Rogers streets nightly, and although several people who live in that vicinity and who heard the report have intimated that they know who fired the revolver, they refuse absolutely to divulge the youth's name.

It is believed that a can was placed on one of the pickets of a fence surrounding Cawley's pipe yard, to be used as a target by the youth with the pistol. The pipe yard is directly in the rear of the Clark residence.

Mr. Clark was in the house at the time and was working about the cellar when he heard the report. Rushing upstairs he found his wife, children and Mrs. Houle in a state of excitement and after ascertaining the cause, he immediately telephoned to the police station. Sergeant Duncan and Officers Lane and Connors were immediately detailed to the scene but after spending some time investigating about the premises and questioning several people in the vicinity, they were unable to obtain any clue as to who did the shooting.

Had the bullet struck but a foot lower it would have probably resulted fatally for Mrs. Houle, and she has not recovered from the effects of the shock as yet.

About 10 o'clock the same evening three more shots were heard by residents of the vicinity, and although the police were around about that time they were unable to find out who used the revolver.

This gang has been a nuisance to the neighborhood for some time and the people in the vicinity object to it not only because of the noise and the obstruction of the sidewalk, but because it is a sort of school for freight jumpers.

CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—The sundry civil appropriation bill was again before the house for consideration today. It was up for debate and included an appropriation of $2,000,000 for a physical valuation of the railroads of the country. Republican opposition to the proposed appropriation was responsible for an abrupt adjournment of the house last night.

DOUBLE MURDER LITTLE LOST BOY COUNT BONI LOST

Police Try to Solve Mystery of Murder of Pastor and Housekeeper

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 10.—With apparently little tangible to work on the police today continued their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the murder of Rev. Joseph Zebray, pastor of St. Andrew's Lithuanian Roman Catholic church, and his housekeeper, Miss Eva Gilman, this. The bodies of the priest and his housekeeper were found in the rectory yesterday when neighbors investigated the non-appearance of the clergyman for mass and the preliminary inquiry by the coroner, has established the fact that the murders were committed Monday evening, probably between 7 and 11 o'clock.

The autopsy, begun by Dr. Philip DeBunce of Hartford last night, under direction of Coroner Calhoun, was expected to be resumed today. So far as it has gone it shows that Father Zebray was shot four times in the body, two bullets entering over the heart; one in the side and one in the back. The housekeeper was strangled in her room in the attic apparently after a desperate struggle as indicated by the disorder of the room and her garments.

The police early today found a gold watch in a pocket of one of the coats of the slain priest. A gold-filled watch was also found in a cabinet and in another part of the house four gold-chained candlesticks and a valuable crucifix. The finding of these articles, the police think, tends to show that while the house was ransacked, the search was not as thorough as appearances would indicate and lend strength to the theory that some other motive than robbery may have prompted the crimes.

Has Anybody in This City Lost a Pretty Laddie?

Supt. Welch received a letter today from the captain of the Philadelphia detectives, R. D. Cameron, asking him for information leading to identification of a 4-year old boy. Has anybody lost a pretty little boy? A little boy was found asleep on the steps of St. Patrick's cathedral in New York City. The child was turned over to one of the charitable institutions and since that time the authorities have been making vain efforts to locate his relatives. Although the little fellow did not appear to know just who he was he said he thought his name either was McLeary or McLeary. Although dressed poorly when found the boy has every indication of having been very carefully brought up and it is the opinion of the police that he was kidnapped when quite young and then deserted by the kidnappers.

Sixth street seems to dwell in the youngster's brain as his home and the police are sending out communications to every city in the country which has a Sixth street upon its map. Has anyone on Sixth street, Lowell, lost a four year old boy? If his picture was published perhaps there would be more than one claimant for he is just the sweetest little tot you ever saw.

Rota Tribunal Rejects Suit for Annulment of Marriage

PARIS, Feb. 10.—The Rota Tribunal has rejected Count Boni De Castellane's suit for the annulment of his marriage to Anna Gould, now the Duchess of Talland, according to a special despatch from Rome. Arguments in the third trial of the case were closed yesterday after which the court announced its decision.

Count De Castellane's appeal to the Vatican courts for the annulment of his marriage to Anna Gould has been pending since 1909. Under the ecclesiastical judicial system before a religious marriage is annulled the case must be heard three times by the Rota Tribunal, each time by three different judges, and two decisions must favor a contestant before the judgment is final. In the Castellane case the priest Duchesne of Talland has won two of these decisions.

If the court had been successful in obtaining annulment of the religious marriage he would have been enabled to marry again. Under the French law he would have obtained possession of their three children, who were given into the custody of their mother when she secured a divorce in the Paris courts in 1906.

De Castellane based his petition largely upon affidavits made by Prince Del Drago and Jean De Castellane, the count's brother, who declared the then Miss Gould had been guilty of "fornication" by declaring to the priest that she was a widow when the ceremony was performed that she intended to divorce her husband if ever he were proved unfaithful to her.

Anna Gould, daughter of the late Jay Gould, was married to Count De Castellane in New York city on March 4, 1899. After her divorce from him she married Prince De Sagan on July 1, 1905, and became the Duchess of Talland when her husband succeeded to the title upon the death of his father in Paris, Feb. 21, 1910.

THE WAREHUSES' DANCE

Lovers of dancing and music will be furnished a rare treat in Associated Hall next Friday night when the Warehouses will hold their sixth annual dance. Miner's orchestra will furnish the music. The feature of the evening's entertainment will be The Joke Dance, the rag from the south, which is difficult to attempt to describe. It really needs to be seen to be properly appreciated. See it at Associated hall next Friday evening.

TOBACCO HABIT EASILY CONQUERED

A New Yorker of wide experience, has written a book telling how the tobacco of snuff habit may be easily and completely banished in three days with delightful benefit. The author, Edward J. Woolf, 1311 B. Station E. New York City, will mail his book free on request.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported by those who have freed themselves of that nervous feeling, no more need of pipe, cigars, cigarette, snuff or chewing tobacco to pacify morbid desire.

IN POLICE COURT

Two delinquent husbands made their appearance before Judge Enright in police court this morning. In each case the wife went on to the witness stand and laid bare to the court the terrible existence led by a woman and family whose husband and father care more for liquor and barroom associates than for his home.

George E. Hanscom had very little to say in defense of his recent actions toward his wife and child. The woman related a sad tale to the court. Hanscom has not given his wife a penny toward the support of either herself or child for more than a year. During that time he has been a continual annoyance and lately has proved himself especially obnoxious.

The climax came the other day when he entered his wife's room stole her gold watch, a much valued gift, and then took it to a pawn shop where he collected $1.50 on it.

The pawn ticket was restored to the wife this morning. Judge Enright sentenced Hanscom to a four months term in the house of correction.

James T. Flannery has a wife and six children. He has recently furnished a five months' sentence in the house of correction for failing to support his wife.

His wife stated to the court this morning that he has not improved since his incarceration. He immediately returned to the house where she is keeping house for her children and began his former abusive tactics. "I don't want him near me nor do my children," she told Judge Enright. The court did not wish to send the defendant back to prison so quickly after his release and placed him under a suspended sentence of five months to the house of correction.

Deputy Downey sent an officer along with Flannery to get his belongings at his wife's home and the court warned him that should he be found at his wife's premises again he would go back to the house of correction.

George Belliveau was charged with drunkenness and also with the larceny of a quart of milk last night from George Dugan's. Officer Brault made the arrest and after stating the circumstances surrounding the theft of the milk, said that the defendant is not fond of work. Belliveau was fined $5.

Marlin O'Donnell of Marshfield, N. H., had been working in Enfield, N. H., until a few weeks ago when he came to Lowell. Since his advent into this city he was twice arrested for intoxication.

Judge Enright asked him whether or not he would depart from this section if given an opportunity. O'Donnell answered in the affirmative without hesitation. He was given a suspended sentence of two months to the barracks.

George Christophols and George Kouzais were charged with assault and battery upon a fellow countryman. The prosecution was not ready to go on today, the case was held over until next Wednesday.

LECTURES TO FARMERS VILLA TROOPS ADVANCE

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT BILLERICA COURSE—HOW TO COOK CEREALS

With a larger attendance than on its opening day, the second day's sessions of the Agricultural Extension school were held yesterday in the town hall. The women's courses in the lower hall attracted the larger number though a good sized gathering of men were present at the afternoon session.

Following the lectures on the topics of the day many questions were asked the experts by different persons in the audience and all the speakers showed a good knowledge of farming and household necessities. At noon dinner was served.

"Feeding Dairy Cattle," was George P. Story's subject in the men's session yesterday. In the course of his lecture he said: "A cow requires 100 pounds of water each day. In the winter it is a good investment to heat the water as cattle do not like ice cold water. When the water is cold, they will not drink as much as they should and the milk yield will show it."

If farmers could grow alfalfa it would be an easier matter to cut down the grain bills. Cottonseed has become so cheap this winter that it is now profitable as a feed. Prices vary so that it is not possible to take any charted rating as a standard. What will be profitable one year may be quite unsatisfactory the next.

A lecture on "Soil Fertility" by Frank T. Haynes was very interesting. Miss Laura Comstock and Miss Harriet Hopkins were the speakers in the women's course while Mr. Story spoke on "Dairying From a Home Maker's Standpoint."

The following rules for cooking cereals were given out by Miss Hopkins:

"Remove foreign substances from the cereal. A double boiler is the best utensil for cooking cereals. Fill the lower part one-third full of boiling water; must be kept rapidly boiling while the cereal is cooking. If more water is needed before the cooking is completed, boiling water must be used. Boil the water; add the salt and the cereal slowly; place directly over the heat, and cook from 10 to 15 minutes stirring to prevent burning; place over the boiling water and steam until cooked. Mush may be poured into a bread pan which has been wet with cold water. When cold, cut in one-third of an inch slices, dip in flour and fry in small amount of fat. Any cold mush may be thinned with cream, milk or water, and served as gruel. All cereal preparations, grains or flour, may be used for gruels; also, plain crackers, powdered. Gruels made with meal are made by pouring the meal into the boiling water. They should be cooked for three hours over boiling water. When gruels are made from flour, flour must be first mixed to a smooth, thin paste with one-eighth cold water or milk, then stirred into hot liquid. They should be cooked at least one hour. If gruels are too thick, add liquid to make them the right consistency. A double boiler must be used for gruels made with milk. Sugar, thick cinnamon, whole cloves, nutmeg, raisins, lemon rind, fruit juice or meat extract may be used to flavor gruels."

The following general rules were given for cooking vegetables:

"Wash thoroughly; pare or scrape. If skins must be removed. Stand in cold water until ready to cook, keep them crisp and to prevent their being discolored. Cook in boiling water; the water must be kept at the boiling point. Use two tablespoonfuls of salt."

MOVING IN DIRECTION OF NEW LAREDO, MEXICO, FROM THE SOUTH

LAREDO, Texas, Feb. 10.—Reports from Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, late last night say a large force of Villa troops is moving in the direction of that town from the south.

In response to a call for reinforcements sent from Nuevo Laredo on Jan. 8, four hundred Carranza soldiers are reported en route to Nuevo Laredo from Matamoros. The Villa troops are said to outnumber nearly two to one the Carranza forces in that vicinity.

With two quarts of water; put the salt into the water when the vegetables are partially cooked. The water in which vegetables are cooked is called vegetable stock. Fresh green vegetables require less water than others. Cabbage, cauliflower, onions and turnips should be cooked uncovered, in a large amount of water. All vegetables must be drained as soon as tender. Season with salt and pepper and serve hot, with butter or sauce. The color may be kept in green vegetables, as spinach, by pouring cold water through them after draining. Cold vegetables may be used for salads, or may be placed in a baking dish with one-half the quantity of sauce (two cups of vegetable and one cup of sauce), covered with buttered crumbs and browned in hot oven."

KNOW WHAT YOU PUT IN YOUR MOUTH

Millions of people, who are otherwise very careful of what enters the mouth, know nothing of what is contained in the preparation which they must be kept rapidly boiling while the cereal is cooking. If more water is needed before the cooking is completed, boiling water must be used. Boil the water; add the salt and the cereal slowly; place directly over the heat, and cook from 10 to 15 minutes stirring to prevent burning; place over the boiling water and steam until cooked. Mush may be poured into a bread pan which has been wet with cold water. When cold, cut in one-third of an inch slices, dip in flour and fry in small amount of fat. Any cold mush may be thinned with cream, milk or water, and served as gruel. All cereal preparations, grains or flour, may be used for gruels; also, plain crackers, powdered. Gruels made with meal are made by pouring the meal into the boiling water. They should be cooked for three hours over boiling water. When gruels are made from flour, flour must be first mixed to a smooth, thin paste with one-eighth cold water or milk, then stirred into hot liquid. They should be cooked at least one hour. If gruels are too thick, add liquid to make them the right consistency. A double boiler must be used for gruels made with milk. Sugar, thick cinnamon, whole cloves, nutmeg, raisins, lemon rind, fruit juice or meat extract may be used to flavor gruels."
